He showed a remarkable artitude for business early in the state of this father in 1873. During his half century connection with the business it has developed into one of the most prominent in the United States.

In 1893, after having absorbed several minor concerns, Joseph Breek & Sons bought the stock and business of Parker & Wood, and combined the plants of the two houses, incorporating under the statutes of Massachusetts as "The Joseph Breek & Sons, Corporation," with Charles H. B. Breek as president; his sons, Charles H. Breek and Joseph F. Breek, respectively treasurer and secretary; Edward O. Hatch general manager, and Archibald Smith, manager of the seed departments. The business now occupies four buildings with two acres of foor space. Mr. Breek has been a representative man in all the lines pertaining to his business, and has done much to advance the interests of agriculture and horticulture throughout the United States.

One of the most delightful of short sea trips is to Yarmouth, N. S., the western gateway to the Acadian province. With fine hotels, drives, picturesque scenery and excellent harbor for boating and fishing, Yarmouth is one of the most attractive of summering places. Since the Yarmouth Steamship company reduced the round trip rate to Yarmouth to $3 the travel over the Yarmouth line steamers to that port has greatly increased. There are four steamers each way each week, and a trip to Yarmouth in August means that the heat of the Atlantic seaboard is escaped. For particulars inquire at the tourist agencies, 201, 296 or 332 Washington street, or of H. F. A man, recently left a widower, when arranging for his late wife's tombstone, gave orders that the lettering should be of a stated size. At the bottom of the stone he wished to have the words, "Lord, ishe was thine." The stonemason said he was afraid there would not be room for the words, but the bereaved widower insisted, and the carving was put in hand. The correctness of the mason's view was justified, for when the stone was finished, at the foot of the tablet were the words, "Lord she was thin." London Chronicle.

for many summers and who was one of the best known restaurant keepers in Boston, died at a Brookline sanitarium last Sunday. The remains were brought to "Islington" on Monday afternoon. Mr. Ober's place of business was on Winter place, Boston. He was 63 years old, and was born in Alsace, When he was 14 years old his father came to this country alone, but was followed shortly after by his family. They settled first in Williamsburg, N. Y., now a part of Brooklyn, and young Louis went to work making watch crystals.

After one year in this business the family removed to Newark, where Louis went to work for a barber and taxidermist. After a year spent in Newark, the young man went to New York for six months and worked as a barber, at the end of which time he returned to Newark and opened a barber shop. His next venture was in the book business with a man named Kenny, but it did now as and the making of picture was an experience of the state of the barber's trade when he reached Cincinnati, but, not finding this profitable, he made a trip through Pennsylvania and shipped produce to his father, who had entered that business. Again he drifted back to the barber's shop and worked at the St. Nicholas Hotel, New York, for two years, when he shifted to the Fifth Avenne. From there he came to the Tremont House shop, in this city, where he remained eight years.

Mr. Ober made a visit home in 1878, after 17 years in this country, and returned to take charge of the Tremont House shop and that of the Revere also. More than 30 years ago he bought out the restaurant of F. A. Blanco n. Winter place, which he conducted successfully for years, and accumulated a considerable property in real estate.

The funeral took place Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Bernard's church, Yest Newton.

In the large gathering were many Boston friends of the Ober family, and a number of the departed's business associated. Charlier, S. J., of Boston, deacon; Rev. W. G. Read Mullen, S. J., president of the tener were no pallbearers. A thre close of Dog Officer Laffie's activity has been shown the past week by the large number of residents who have appeared during the week and each paid a fine of $15. In most cases it was pure neglect upon the part of the detendants but the law gives the judge no option. It states specifically that if a person is found guilty of the offence he must be fined $15.

On Monday morning, William Bribe, charged with peddling without a license was fined $2; Joseph Landry, charged with disturbing the peace on July 21, was committed to the house of correction for 20 days.

Tuesday's session of the police included the conviction of James Shields of Newton Centre, arrested by Patrolman Taffe for assault upon an 11 year old girl. Shields was fined $15. John Hannabrin for disturbing the peace on July 2!, was fined $15. In the juvenile session, Henry J. Carr and Antonio D'Angelo, arrested by Patrolman Tapply, for the larceny of apples from Wauwinet farm, were placed on probation. Thomas J. Anderson, Charles F. Donovan and Richard J. Foley, three Somerville boys, were complained of by Patrolman N. F. Bosworth, for the larceny of three barrels at Nonantum on Monday morning. Each pleaded guilty and were fined $5.

As thousands already know the beautiful green mountain state of Vermont is one of the most charming places in America in which to bose characteristics are to the whole to pass the summer months and year by year its fame in this direction is growing. It doesn't cost a small fortune for the man of family to go there; indeed, the cost of living is lower than in any other section of New England. The range of prices for first-class accommodations both at the mountain resorts and on the islands and shores of Lake Champlain is from $4 to $10 a week, with choice between a hundred farm and village homes, and as many good hotels. Vermont has a glorious summer climate, unrivalled scenery, and there are opportunities everywhere for genuine rest and pleasant recreation. The Delhaven lumber mills of Delhaven, Calif. receives $50,000 a year from the lumber trust of the Pacific to shut down. Robert Dollar, a Scotchman, who operates a great millat Ural, Cal., recently gave $20,000 to his home town in Scotland for a library. But Americans would not pay tribute to foreigners! Once they knocked King George nearly off the throne and run his soidlers out of the country rather than submit to taxation without representation. Dollar does the same thing, and the American voters supply him with an army and the courts protect him in it. What queer changes a few years make in a people! The grand-children of the revolutionary fathers not bonly submit to having foreigners tax them and send great gifts to other nations, but actually have come to believe it is right! Why, ignorant and heathenish as the Chinese are they revolt at less oppressive conditions. If we did not live in the land of the free and the home of the brave and intelligent these things would be remarkable. A writer from one of these camps says that the idea of heaven which these mill slaves have is a place where saw mill hands get $15 or $20 a month for a 12 hour day. But they are very well contented to slave out their lives for wealth to build libraries in Scotland!

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. It is a godsend to weak, sickly, run-down people. Cure guaranteed. Only 50c. Sold by Arthur Hudson, druggist.

The reader who remembers his first citgar, and how it effected him, may be able

English Cubinet Secrets,

English Cabinet Secrets, Secrets of state are probably the best kept of all secrets. When cabinet ministers in England first are admitted to the palvy council, they have to take a solemn cath not to make known the conversation or proceedings of cabinet councils or any communications they may have with the queen or with an-other minister. They cannot give a hint of such things even to the highest members of the government who are members of the government who are not cabinet ministers. No clerk or secretary is allowed to be present at cabinet councils, no written record is kept, and it is the custom not to take any notes; hence no one but the crown and the ministers ever knows what has really been said and decided at cabinet meetings. The oath of secrecy lasts to the end of life. An ex-cabinet minister is as much bound by it as an actual cabinet minister. cannet minister.

Any conversation a minister or a peer may have with the crown on state matters must also be kept secret. So must letters to and from the sovereign. And even communications that have passed between sovereigns and ministers of former reigns must not be divulged. But in cases of extreme urgency the crown could and would allow a breach of the oath of secrecy.

Napoleon's "Dog Teeth,

Napoleon's "Dog Teeth,"
"In the world's history," said a Buffalo man, "there are three characters who in the popular mind stand pre-eminent—Alexander the Great, Casar and Napoleon. Napoleon lived so near our own time as to be almost within the manuary of living range and there are memory of living men, and there are plenty of men today in France who heard of Napoleon from their fathers, who lived in the stirring times connected with his name.

"There is a curious fact in connection with Napoleon's personal appearance that I have nover been able to ance that I have never been able to find mention of in any of the blogra-phies, and that is that two upper front teeth were very long and lapped over the lower ones to an unusual extent, giving him a most peculiar appearance when smiling. These teeth—the two upper incisors, on either side of the mesial plane—ordinarily form a line that meets with the corresponding teeth in the lower jaw, but in Napoleon's case they overlapped. This information came to my father directly from the son of Napoleon's dentist, who made a memorandum of the fact."

Tom accordingly bent down, and Jack, with a little difficulty, managed to gain the top of the wall, where, instead of assisting his friend, he disappeared on the other side and, as he was making off, shouted:

"Well, I think, Jack, you'll be better to stay on another fortnight yet. You're not nearly cured!"

Twelve Days on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. S. Ship Kaiser Wilhelm. July 8, 1900

S. Ship Kaiser Wilhelm.
July 8, 1900.
A lazy fascinating life, beginning with the hurry and bustle of boarding the steamer at the loaned docks of the Hamburg American line, in sight of the recently burned wharves, where so many lives and ships were lost—crowds of people, piles of luggage, chairs, trunks and rugs for cabin passengers, and for the five hundred Italians indescribable bundles, pans, kettles, baskets and babies. All is excitement, noise, hurry, smiles, tears and flowers, mingled with good byes, it may be forever, who knows?

And off we go, the wharf and waiting crowds rapidly receding and soon we cut loose from pilot boat and the tie to American shores, and a feeling of sadness and longing inevitably follows. But it is soon dissipated by activity on ship board.

Lunch comes to divert and cheer. A thunder storm follows with crashing and terrifying noise and lightning that seems to blind—rain pours, port holes are closed and we are for a time shut in. In a little while distribution of the complex we are for a time shut in. In a little while we are for a time shut in. In a little while there is sunshine again and dinner comes, with moon light and deck promenade, and our first day closes. Now come the days to try, if not our souls, surely our stomachs. our first day closes. Now come the days to try, if not our souls, surely our stomachs. The waves dash high, the boat roils, the people lie low, diners are few, and deck stewards are busy. Good music by the ship orchestra tends to cheer. Some read and write, many sleep, a few play chess and there are the ltailians to amaze and divert us. Poor souls! How we pity them, ail huddled up in a bunch and fed like animals. Why such contrast between two companies of human beings? "Oh, they never knew anything better." Well, it may be so, but the contrast is painful and is emphasized by the sad fact of a stoker overboard at night, crazed, they say, with the fiery heat of the furnace below; the life boat is lowered, a lighted buoy thrown out but no trace of the man, and our boat salls on.

Another day bright and beautiful; games and promenading amuse us, the sea smooth and people happy. The Italians sun themselves in ful force and one or two of them sing with most of the man and sweet as that of the day; five mean such as the first of the day; five means and many an include It is wonderful how fast the hours slip by and how gay the people seem. The weather and sailing are perfect. We are about 100 miles out and nothing in sight but sky and sea. The moon is full and gives such pictures with the clouds as no artist ever painted. This soft, fresh breeze and smooth sailing are bewitching. We spend much time on stern deck and bask in the sunshine. We meet new people and wonder at their peculiarities, forgetting our own. And now comes our first rainy morning. We visit the Captain, a large dignified, kindly man, who gives us all a black ribbon with the name of the ship embroidered in gold. The clouds soon scatter, the sun shines brightly. Dancing and music on deck tonight, monilish on the water fascinating. Today we sight the Azores, and pass quite close; most beautiful to see. They are high mountainous islands some of them cultivated to the very top. Fayal, though one of the smallest, is one of the greenest and prettiest, with it distinguish people and animals and give and answer signals. A whole week out and exceptionally fine weather and good sailing.

A religious service on board this morning attracts many people. It is held on deck, where the Italians can see and hear, and it is very interesting to note their devout attitude and close attention during the sermon delivered in Italian. The band plays some lovely German hymn tunes and we close the day with Gospel hymns of praise. And now dawns a cool windy day and sailing rough—how soon it tells upon the passengers, many of whom are not feeling happy and excite the attention and commiseration of those who are good sailors. But the day soon passes and the next morning is fair and sailing all we can wish. Glimpses of land cheer us all the afternon, and about 5-30 we reach the mighty rock of Gibraltar, which looms up like a great mountain. Our boat anchors in the strait and we are taken over to the fort in a tender, carriages are engaged, funny little phaeton like wagons, which take us to the entrance of the fortress, where we resister and are guided by a British soldier through some of the tunnels or galleries so-called, where great cannon are placed at the porthoies commanding both strait and bay. 5000 soldiers man the fort, the greatest in the world, I imagine, and they have provisions for five years. The town itself is curious, with very narrow streets, literally of stone, full of soldiers, women and children, with bright black eyes and sweet smiles, saying thanks and good bye in Eggish and Spanish when pennies are given. The houses are high of cream colored stone and plaster. Many flights of stone steps, leading up and down to and from the fort and town. On the other side are the Alameda Gardens and plaza, great hedges of heliotrope and oleander and olive trees make the ali fragrant. The stores are large and brilliantly lighted, full of all sorts of fancey goods, fine hotels and the Alameda Gardens and plaza, great hedges of heliotrope and oleander and olive trees make the ali fragra picturesque and beautiful. To night we have a concert for the beneit of the wives and children of the sailors so recently lost in the fire at Hoboken. And now comes our last day on this steady old boat, which we shall regret to leave. The concert was a success in the way of emertainment and financially. The ship orchestra gave some of its finest selections, and there was quite a program of songs and readings. At eleven o'clock the moon rose over the dark blue waters and was a wierd and beautiful sight, the heavens above filled with countess stars.

This sailing on the Mediterranean is certainly enchanting, and the more we have of it the more we want. We will wind up this last day with music and a dance, and bid fareweil to the good Kaiser Wilhelm, which though slow is steady and strong. To morrow will find us in sunny Naples, and there will begin the fun and tribulations of land travel in a foreign country.

GOVERNOR CRANE has made the changes GOVERNOR CRANE has made the changes in the state highway commission made necessary by the law passed by the recent legislature, that members of the board shall give their whole time to the duties of the commission. The chairman of the board, Thomas C. Menden-hall, president of the Worcester Polytechnic school, has long de Woreester Polytechnic school, has long desired to resign and he has done so. William E. McClintock, the consulting engineer member of the board is re-appointed as chairman, with a salary of $3000 a year. The governor had some difficulty with the other positions, as the salary is only $2000 a year, and Mr. Charles W. Ross of Nayton would not accent a re-appoint. Newton would not accept a re-appointment, which would necessitate his giving up his position as Superintendent of Streets in Newton at a higher salary than the state board pays. Governor Crane had therefore board pays. Governor tranenat meretore to find new members and he appointed Harold Parker of Lancaster, and John H. Manning of Pittsfield. The board is thus entirely reorganized and will have a great work before it to live up to the high reputation of the old bard. It is to be bread tation of the oid board. It is to be hoped that the old policy, made necessary by the claims of different localities, of building a little piece of new road here and another there will be given up and some well defined and wise plan of improvement will be substituted when we accomplishing the first little of the control be substituted, such as a continuous high-way through the state, which would be of some permanent benefit to some one.

CITY politics are evoking some interest, in the vacation period at the shore and mountains, and most of the talk is now in mountains, and most of the talk is now in regard to the representatives and the sena-tor from this district. Among the candi-dates talked of for representatives from Newton are Mr. Geo. P. Bullard of West Newton and Alderman Dana of Newton, whose friends are putting them forward as good men to represent Newton. Both of the present representatives are not candi-dates for re-election, it is said. Represen-tive Langford is talked of for senator from this district, by the political leaders, who are not at all satisfied with the present who are not at all satisfied with the present senator, and in fact it is said that Newton has no reason to desire that he should be re-elected as he has been too much interested in measures that were for the benefit of his end of the district and against the good of the district, generally. Mr. Langford has made an excellent representative, as those who have read the legislative letters in the Graphic have had abundant proof, and he has also been a valuable man for the state, on account of his knowledge of engineering and water supplies for cities and towns.

All the stories about Gen. Draper's intention to run for governor, or to be a rival of Senator Hoar for the Senate, and his disappointment because he was not nominated for vice president, are effectually disproved by his letter to the Milford Board of Trade. He was prevented by disproved by his letter to the minoral Board of Trade. He was prevented by filness from attending their annual Field day on Tuesday, but he sent a letter fully explaining his position. He resigned his ambassadorship to Italy for business reais, and he is out of politics for the prescons, and he is out of politics for the present for the same cause, and he hints that he is out for the future also. The business at Hopedale has grown to such great proportions that he feels that he cannot safely neglect it and he is therefore out of politics. At the Milford meeting, Mr. Samuel I, Powers was the chief speaker, being the only one from outside of Milford.

SECRETARY LONG says it is too hot to make political speeches in August, when the campaign committee asks him, and in this he shows his good sense. It is not this he shows his good sense. It is not only too hot to make speeches, but it is too hot to listen to them. August is the chief vacation month and the chief object in life for the majority of people is to keep comfortable, and one way to do that is to avoid politics. Even the political leaders in the daily papers are suffering evidently from the heat, and can be skinned without from the heat, and can be skipped without any serious loss.

JEREMIAH GATCHELL, who has just resigned the position of national bank examiner, has been twenty-five years in the business of examining banks, ten as the Massachusetts state examiner, and fifteen as a national bank examiner. He was first appointed by Governor Gaston, and in 1885 he was appointed by President Cleveland. He retires with a high reputation for faithfulness and fidelity, and will now take life easy in his home at East Blackstone.

THEY had a novel fire in South Framing-They had a novel are in South Framing-ham this week, which called out the fire department. A local doctor there was lighting up his automobile, before starting out on his rounds, and the gasolene having leaked out in some way there was a sudden flash and the vehicle was in a sudden flash and the vehicle was in a blaze. The local fire department was called out and after the wooden parts of the machine and the upholstery had burned up, they succeeded in saving the metal part. The doctor escaped without injury.

OFFICIALS at City Hall seem to be but little inconvenienced by the extreme heat as heads of departments and their assistants may be found busy any time o' day. There is always plenty to be done not with standing the inactivity of the Board of Aldermen, which has adjourned its meetings until September. Mayor Wilson is at his office every day and has not planned for an extended vacation being satisfied with occasional brief outings.

DURING the week more than half a score of citizens have found it costly negligence in overlooking the payment of dog license fees. Everyone found guilty is obliged to pay a fine of $15 and the license fee in addition. There are always many delinquent ones each July but this year Dog Officer Laffie seems to have summoned more than an ordinary gathering before the court. an ordinary gathering before the court.

THESE are busy days in the local police court, which it seems the usual summer duliness has not effected. The number of cases during July as shown by the court records is almost astonishing. Judge Kennedy is surely deserving of a rest as well as the other court officials who have been uncommonly active with the rush of business.

WALTHAM is to join the procession with a new $300,000 high school building. They come high, but all up to date cities must have them.

The entire menagerie at the Park is now in mouroing and all the animals are walking about with saddened faces, on account of the death of the inoffensive little American sable, who, by the way, had the honor of being the only one of his species in captivity. He was discovered on Tuesday night by the watchman, who was attracted by his yells, with one leg missing. It had been bitten off at the shoulder by one of the male fishers and the result was a speedy death. The fishers are among the most savage of American animals, and their agility is vouched for by the fact that only by catching the foot of the sable through a small meshed netting could they have succeeded in inflicting such a wound.

In an elevated train sat a dignified, severe looking lady. In her lap lay a thick book, whose manila paper cover bore the stamp of the Y. W. C. A. library. Beside her was a bundle and beside the bundle a little flat tin box. The seat facing her was occupied by

The seat facing her was occupied by a very young man and a white haired old man, rather nervous, but with a kind and interested expression.

As the train slowed up for the Fiftieth street station the lady gathered up her bundle, rose and began to elbow her way through the crowded aisle toward the door. The young man looked at the little tin box left on the seat, but did not budge. The old gentleman no sooner spied it than he grabbed it, stumbled over the young man's theman no sooner spied it than he grab-bed it, stumbled over the young man's feet and gently touched the lady's shoulder, gracefully lifting his hat as she turned around.

He sank back into his seat dum-founded. The young man laughed out-right, and the other passengers grin-ned. Putting on his spectacles, the old man brought the object near his eyes, and the look of amazement on his face gave way to a sickly smile as he read in large, gilt letters, "All Tobacco Cigarettes."—New York Mail and Ex-

Pays Every Day.

One New York millionaire who carned his fortune by his own efforts under rather disadvantageous circumstances conducts his business in a way that is conducts his business in a way that is aighly original in many particulars. One of the most striking of these is his method of dealing with his employees. They are paid every night, and at the close of every business day all the exhighly enses of running the business have penses of running the business have been met, and the manager knows just how his affairs stand as far as that feature of his business is concerned. But that is not his object in paying salaries every day instead of following the usual custom and waiting until the end of the week or month. He employs many men who have lost former situ-ations through intemperance, although they were all men of ability in their they were all men of ability in their field. If they severed their connection practically with the establishment at the close of every business day, it made no difference to the employer what happened to the man after he left his establishment. By this means the millionaire is able to get the services of good men at a small salary and have no responsibility as to their conduct after they have received their pay for one day's work.—New York Sun.

which had been more or less abandoned for 12 years.
"I could not," he says, "find a single member of the church left except one old lady who had been bedridden for a number of years. 'Yes,' she said in answer to my inquiry, 'I am still a member of the Episcopal church, I reckon. We did have about a dozen members once. There was'— And she called over a number of names. I interrupted her in each case by asking what had become of them, 'She's joined the Latter Day Saints,' was the answer when the object of my question had Latter Day Saints, was the answer when the object of my question had neither removed nor died. 'It seems to me everybody has joined the Latter Day Saints,' I commented. 'Yes,' she replied; 'most every one. They had a replied; 'most every one. They had a revival here and got them all except me.' 'Why didn't they get you?' I ask-ed. 'I reckon because I was bedridden, and they could not get at me,' she said frankly."

The Sex of Ships.

The word "ship" its masculine in French, Italian, Spanish and Portuguese and possesses no sex in Teutonic and Scandinavian. Perhaps it would not be an error to trace the custom of feminizing ships back to the Grecks, who called them by feminine names, probably out of deference to Athene, goddess of the sea. But the English speaking sailor assigns no such reasons. The ship to him is always a lady, even though she be a man-o'-war. KILLING THE MARMOT.

AN INCIDENT IN THE WOODS THAT MADE A BRAHMIN OF ME-THE KILLING MANIA IN IMMORTAL SOULS.

There is some kind of mysterious relationship between man and the rest of the animate creation, quite aside from man's being the latest development of that creation. There is no record that the beasts of prey first killed man, and there are various intimations of a belief by some of our philosophers that man first attacked the beasts of prey, and established the entity which has continued ever since. It has glimmered slowly upon me in my summer exile that the animals have always been willing to make up this feud, if man had not been the worse beast of prey of the two. I do not pretend to understand why an animal should desire to become intimate with man, unless it is his ignorance of the species. But that he is willing to forget and forgive is a part of my experience in the woods, and it has brought with it a serene adjustment of things.

I had brought fishing-tackle and fowling-piece with me, but had not used them. My affectation of sportsmanship somehow disappeared as I became acquainted with the various grades of animated life that were sporting and doing their works obselently and spontaneously all around my boy could not enjoy ourselves in the woods without killing something graw way, without any conscious seatimentality, to the tacit understanding that it would be some kind of inhuman impertinence to disturb matters as we found them.

THE BRAIMINICAL GROWTH.

The Brahminical growth was very curtous, and I now see that it was a part of the general obedience to which we had only ourselves in the woods, and the server in the summary of things. It is the work of the woods without killing something graw way, without any conscious seatimentality, to the tacit understanding that it would be some kind of inhuman impertinence to disturb matters as we found them.

THE BRAHMINICAL GROWTH.

The Brahminical growth was very curious, and I now see that it was a part of the general obedience to which I had subjected myself. No sooner had I condescended of the property of the property of the general obedience to which I had subjected myself. No sooner had I condescended awhile, and put myself implicity into the general order, and drift with the ordained arrangement, than the general order came inquiringly up to my threshold and held out paws and beaks and mandibles, and wagged tails as if it carried in its poor, half developed consciousness a kindly desire to renew the paradisalcal trace. It is astonishing how quickly the gossip of the woods carries. The birds told the squirrels and the squirrels told the woodchucks: "That man and his boy in the Hotchkiss hut are not killers. It is incredible but true, they haven't destroyed anything since they arrived."

This rumor appeared to have excited the curiosity of every bug and beast and creeping thing within half a mile of us. There was one adventurous chipmunk which, having heard these flying yarns in the bush resolved to find out for himself, and being of a reckless disposition, he sat on our windowledge one morning, and pushed his impertinence over the table, where there were some peanuts that Charlie had left scattered about. We stood still and watched him, and he sat up and tasted the new order of nut with a trembling kind of bravado, carrying one of them away with him to corroboratehis story, knowing very well that he would be cailed a liar if there was a crow about. He must have made up a most interesting account, for the next morning several of them came and kept at safe distance in the trees to watch him gothrough the performance that he had evidently boasted of. He was such a preturn lax duties, that I could how the way with my with reference to his marvellous swiftness of motion, Charlie shortened it into "Jack," and by that name he was known in the family as long as we stayed in the hour. ARRIVAL OF THE MARMOT.

That this squirrel somehow spread the news that we were a pair of incomprehensible and effeminate duffers who lives to peanuts, without sufficient masculinity to interfere with anything, and that this whole animal creation ought to take advantage of it, I have not the slightest doubt, for I was not long before a wood, the control of the c

TRIUMPHANT BRUTALITY,

TRIUMPHANT BRUTALITY.

Suddenly there broke in upon it all the discordant sound of men's voices, harsh and jarring, accompanied by eager dog barks—that blend of screams and yaps that indicates intense animal excitement, and I started off to find out what was the matter. It was not long before I came up with a group of stalwart young men with their coats off working like mad at a close and group of stalwart young men with their coats off working like mad at a close with their coats off working like mad at a close with their coats off working like mad at a close with their coats off working like mad at a close with their coats off working like mad at a close with their coats of the coats men, and why four such lusty examples of manhood should be so devoid of a sense of mannanimity, I could not for the life of me understand.

This little incident colored from the inside of me, for the rest of that morning, the whole aspect of the peaceful scene. It was as if that old bugaboo, the mystery of evil, had jarred everything with its sudden appearance and had been lurking back of the singing surface of things in human shape. I strode away, but could not get rid of a sombre strain of reflection. I recalled how, years before, I had been been coming across the continent on the great railway and we ran suddenly into a peaceful herd of buffalces. They had been feeding quietly until we statled them, and receding quietly until we statled them, and the statled them are the statled than the same fashion, chiefly anxious to go their way. But instantly the whole car was in a whirl of excitement, and the speed of the train was slackened that the passengers might get a shot at the noble herd. A killing mania seized upon everybody. Up went the sashes, guns and revolvers came suddenly into view, and an irresistible desire to wound and injure that which was passing made the whole car kin; even the women begged for one shot.

I did not understand then, nor have I understood since, what it is that impels intelligent mortal souls to this purposeless and cruel frenzy. I came slowly back, and when Charlie arrived and saw the two apples lying on the grass he asked me if Marmion had not come that morning. I only said, "No; he did not come."

Governor Shaw of Iowa had amusing experience with newspaper men during a recent wish down east. "One reporter," he said referred to me as disport little of man, norther said my clothes did not man, and the said my clothes did not man, and so small a figure as a human paign in my own state. After I had made a speech before a crowd that had gathered to hear a debate between Jim Weaver and myself an old farmer pushed his way through to where I stood, grasped my hand and said, with every indication of sincere admiration; "Governor, that was a fine speechan secellent speech! Do you know, you remain due of Abraham Lincoln in your powers of illustration? Of course you are a better looking man than Lincoln was!" Then, stepping back and taking another look at me from head to feet and evidently intending to emphasize the compliment, he added, 'But not much, either!' "-Omaha Bee.

WHEN SELF-CONSCIOUSNESS BEGINS.
I suppose that man in his development loses that delicious vagrancy and trust of the childish fancy the time that he breaks open his sister's talking doll to see how it is made inside, and lies awake at night to discover if it is not the "old man" who goes down stairs and puts the things in the

Will Make a Cat Run. Will Make a Cat Run.
With regard to color, both cats and dogs appear to have little resthetic perception. We have heard of a dog appearing to prefer scarlet to blue, but it is difficult to eliminate the effect of asis diment to eliminate the elect of association in dealing with a single instance. Cats, however, seem to show a definite æsthetic perception of texture—æsthetic, for it is not ordinary bodily comfort which rules. They may like to sleep on velvet, but they revel, waking, in the feeling of crackling pa waking, in the teeling of clacking paper or texture of stiff silks, and there is a well authenticated story of a cat which goes into the garden to lick the undersides of foxglove leaves and cannot be kept from trying with his tongue

But the keenest asthetic pleasure for a cat lies in the region of smell. The dog uses smell merely as a medium of information, but the cat revels in it. She will linger near a tree trunk, smelling each separate aromatic leaf for the pure pleasure of it—not like a dog, to trace friend, fee or prey. If the window of a close room is opened, the cat leans out, smelling the air. New dresses are smelled, partly, perhaps, for future recognition, but also, apparently, for pleasure. A strong smell, above all a spirituous smell, is not only disagreeable, but absolutely painful. Lavender water may please a tiger, but it will put a cat to flight.—London Spectator. ### Father McGlynne's Doctrine.

The doctrines taught by the Rev. Dr. Ed ward McGlynn, that brought him to the severe censure of his church, are best stated in his own words. He is now very ill, and was once a great figure. He said:

was once a great figure. He said:

Education is properly a function of the state. It must oe so for the state's own preservation. The state must fit the citizen for civic and municipal business and political life. The church must teach spiritual dogma and look after the erring. Did Christ command us to look after arithmetic, geography, and botany?

I have taught and shall continue to teach, in speeches and writing, as long as I live, that land is rightly the ir operty of the people in common, and that the private ownership of land is against the natural justice, no matter by what divil or ecclesiastical laws it may be sanctioned, and I would bring about, instantly, if I could, such change of laws all the world over as would confiscate private property in land without one penny of compensation to the miscalled owners.

one penny of compensation to the missalled owners.

While the tax on land values promotes industry, and, therefore, increases private wealth, taxes upon industry act like a fine or punishment inflicted on industry. They impede and restrain and finally strangle it. The sociological panacea would be the removal of all taxes and other impediments from capital and from all products of industry, and placing taxes upon natural bounties by appropriating the rental value to public use.

There is today a slayery worse than chair.

Blakey is a born housekeeper. What he doesn't know about the care of the kitchen sink isn't written in the books, and a person who tries to teach him how to make good coffee is simply conveying anthracite to a well filled bin. It's a grief to Blakey that he can't get a proper substitute in his office, so that he can stay at home all day and see to things.

And yet, in spite of all these interests in common with them, Blakey isn't popular with women. There are days when he isn't even popular with his wife, and she is one of the most devoted spouses that ever made an effort to keep up with the procession. Some good friend ought to tell Blakey how women feel about these things. He ought to be informed that the man who is a winner tells his wife how it fills him with admiration to behold her as if by magic creating a feast from as it by imagic creating a reast from the materials in the pantry. "I have it all planned out," he said. "I've been lying awake for two hours getting up a code of signals for you to use in calling Nora to serve the table. I'll write it down for you. This is the idea: One pressure of your foot on the electric button in the floor will mean clear the table for next course,' two pressures might call for repassing of the bread, three would indicate that the glasses needed refilling, and so forth. I think I can make it cover the whole ground.

"But, David, it is Nora's duty to watch the glasses and keep them filled without any telling her at all."

"But she'd have to remember what the signal stood for.

"Leave that to me," he answered. "I shall make it very plain and easy, and I'll take it down to the office and have two typewritten copies made—one for you and one for Nora

"I-hope Nora will like it," ventured Mrs. Blakey anxiously. "She's a little particular, you know."

"She's sure to like it! You women never seem to understand what a sense of satisfaction it is to the employee when he feels a systematic hand on when he reess a systematic hand on the helm. Why, the people who work for you would rather have things run pretty strict than not to feel system in the management. They want to know there's a head planning things for them. I've found that out in business. them. I've found that out in business. I tell you, all that housekeeping needs to make it run easy is the application of masculine brains and business methods! Nora will like it, all right enough."

But Nora didn't. Loyal Mrs. Blakey presented the plan as joyfully as if it were her own pet project, but her ef-fort to catch and impart her husband's enthusiasm about it was a dead failure. Nora looked very glum as she pinned the typewritten code of signals up by the kitchen clock, and Mrs. Blakey felt glummer still as she fas-tened her own copy on the edge of her mirror and stood mumbling over its

The table was perfect; the cut glass blazed with rainbow hues, the silver dazzled and the floral centerpiece was a credit to Mr. Blakey's taste. The feast was to be rather more pretentious than anything Mr. Blakey had heretofore planned, but he had no fears about the service. He relied on the code. Mrs. Blakey, on her part, was determined to please David by ap-pearing quite unconscious whenever she signaled Nora. The consequence was that her smiles and attention to the man on her left during the soup course half turned his head.

"How delightfully clever; do tell me another!" Mrs. Blakey was saying to him, brightly, as her small foot pressed the button and telegraphed Nora to the button and telegraphed Nora to "clear table for next course."

Nora appeared—a dream of delight in a black dress, an exquisite apron and a brand new butterfly cap that Mr. Blakey himself had selected and brought home for the occasion. She waited for the cue. She never so much be glanged at Mrs. Blakey, who in her wanted for the cue. She never so much as glanced at Mrs. Blakey, who in her turn kept her eyes determinedly away from the maid as she chatted on with the man at her left. Nora flitted about, deftly removing soup plates

Suddenly Mrs. Blakey felt herself pierced by her husband's gaze. Great heavens! What was the girl doing? Finger bowls after the soup! Had she given her the wrong signal? The guests were looking puzzled and watching their hostess. Mrs. Blakey rose to the occasion and desperately dipped her fingers, while she peremp-torily gave the signal for next course. Away went the finger bowls, and Nora,

Away went the inger pows, and root, with a wild look in her pretty eyes, began to bring in black coffee.

"Horrible!" ejaculated Mrs. Blakey to the man on her left, who had just finished quoting her a little quatrain of his own. Then she apologized, with one eye on him and another on Nora, who was floating past her, all unconscious of appealing glances and furtive clutches at her sleeve. The code of signals was eddying like a whirlpool In Mrs. Blakey's mind. The coffee was finished and something must be done. She gave one long, continuous ring, and watched breathlessly to see what would turn up. A cold perspiration started upon her forehead. Another round of finger bowls! And while they were using them, Nora, with a face like a lobster, passed the bread.

It was a long dinner—the largest and pact indirectible that tithes he or March.

most indigestible that either he or Mrs. Blakey had ever eaten—but it came to an end at last. The guests had de-parted, and Mr. Blakey stood with his hands in his pockets looking reproachfully at his wife as she sobbed it out on a sofa pillow. Suddenly she sat up and gave a shrick of laughter. Then another and Then He Felt Better.

In a certain skirmish a Colonel — (general he came to call himself) got a slight scratch on the leg. The wound was a matter of great glory to him, and he nursed it through after days, growing lamer with every year, that the memory of his bravery might ever be near him.

One day late in his life as he sat nursing his leg and pondering the glorious past a young man, visiting the family for the first time, approached and sympathetically remarked:

"Lame, general?" "Yes, sir," after a pause and with pressible solemnity, "I am lame."

"Ah, slipped on the ice, general?"
"No, sir!" with actual ferocity.

lifted his pet leg in both hands, set it carefully on the floor, rose slowly from his chair and, looking down upon the

One of Nature's Wonders.
At the sacred village of Totatri, about 40 miles from Tinnevelly, India, there is one of the most wonderful natural curiosities in the world. It is an oil well containing inexhaustible quan on well containing inexhaustrise quantities of the flquid. The well or spring is situated within the celebrated tem ple of Narayan, said to be about the largest sacred edifice in India. A Baku, in the southeastern part of Cau casia, there are also wonderful oil casia, there are also wonderful oil wells that spout petroleum high into the air. In September, 1886, a well tapped in the ordinary manner began to spout with such extraordinary force that it deluged the whole district. For she broke off suddenly. "I sometimes wish David wouldn't take so much interest in making my work easy."

But David's interest kept right up. He urged the use of the code with untiring zeal, and one day when pretty, black eyed Nora actually came and filled the water glasses in answer to the company of the code with until the continuous continuous of the code with untiring zeal, and one day when pretty, black eyed Nora actually came and filled the water glasses in answer to the code with until the continuous conti "three short rings" he glowed with unspeakable pride and declared that they must really give a dinner.
"Eight is the proper number for our table," he told his wife. And then he began to plan the menu.

Mrs. Blakey was a cheerful, gay little body at the time of her marriage, and the sparkle isn't entirely gone. Sile looked very pretty on the night of the dinner. The table was perfect; the from the timber so obtained a sort of box coffin was constructed for the re-ception of the remains.

It is, however, among the mining population that instances of funeral ec-population that instances of funeral eccentricity are most common. Jack Hustler, a coal hewer of Tong, near Leeds, who died the other day at the age of 67, was buried in a coffin constructed to his own specification 20 years ago. It was made of pitch pine, with silver handles, and the lid was hinged at one end. The deceased was buried with a lump of coal which he had carefully preserved for years. It served as his pillow, and his tobacco and pipe also found a place beside him. and pipe also found a place beside him This latter custom is said to be very prevalent among the coal miners. The tin miners of Cornwall almost invari-ably include an umbrella among the coffin "furniture."

It would be interesting to learn the origin and significance of this strange use.—London Express.

Didn't Get His Money's Worth. He came into the police office, his hands clinched, his jaws knotted and his cycbrows swooping downward to-ward the bridge of his nose. "Say!" he bawled in resonant tones. "Well?" said the captain.

"How much do you charge in a case of assault and battery?"

"Ten dollars." "You can lick the stuffings out of a man for that, can't you?" "Possibly."
"Can a fellow pay his fine in advance? "Sure."

The visitor laid two fives on the desk "I'm going to lick a man bad, and I don't want any interference of the police while I do it." And he stalked out, muttering. Half an hour afterward a man came in. Both his eyes were puffed and green, his nose sagged, his clothing looked like Chilus Chilus Chilonides' before he acquired Nero's favor.

"Say," he said gently, "do you recognize were."

Income of a Sleeping Car.

The income or earning capacity of a sleeping car is considerable. Take the run from New York to Chicago, 1,000 miles. Every road in the United States pays 3 cents a mile for the privilege of hauling a sleeper and contracts to return said car in as good shape as it is received and to pay for all damages.
The journey on the limited expresses to Chicago is made in 24 hours; therefore the car carns $30 a day for travel.

If it is full, which is generally the

It is full, which is generally the case, receipts from borths, sections and staterooms amount to $185, making a total revenue of $125 a day. Out of this must come the wages of the porter and conductor—the latter, however, usually having charge of several cars—the towels shower seen is easier to the the towels, sheets, soap, ice, etc., the whole amounting to but a small sum.

Then there are the wear and tear and general depreciation, the daily cleaning, the annual refitting and repainting. Set these charges down at 10 per ing. Set these charges down at 10 per cent and give the car three trips a week of 1,000 miles each, and we have its earnings at over $60,000 annually. Some can earn a great deal more.— Kansas City Journal.

Passing of the Old Maid.
The old maid of the past—sour, scandal loving, sharp of temper and of features—is now almost an unknown quantity. The unmarried woman of today who has passed her twenties is cheery, active, busy and useful. Generally she is in business or has some special art, profession or accountible. erally she is in business or has some special art, profession or accomplishment to which she devotes herself. Anyway she is not idle. She finds many things to employ her hands and brains. She has little time for gossip and less inclination. Culture and occupation have broadened her nature and given her charity and wisdom.—Mrs. Mary E. Bryan in Macon Telegraph.

Snake Burglar Alarm

Snake Burglar Alarm.
One of our correspondents tells a story of a tame snake that was so intelligent that one night, while it was roaming about the house of its owner, it caught a burglar in the dining room. The snake coiled itself around the legs of the burglar and with its tall reached a hell on the dining room table and. a bell on the dining room table and, ringing it vigorously, alarmed the household, resulting in the capture of the burglar.—Bradford Star.

to Berman, indigated return home through the property of the hardware store of C. H. Campbell, of the hardware store of the fire. He called at the store for a small can of gasoiene, and, after receiving it, decided to try an experiment. The experiment consisted in pouring some gasoiene on a shingle, and, after it had worked into the wood, touching a lighted match to it. As is usual in such cases, before the conclusion of the experiment it was found necessary to call in the aid of several places of fire apparatus and the police. The water pumped on the fire had much effect, but chemical A of West Newton was also called linto service to extinguish the flames. The damage done by the fire is estimated at $3.5.

Henry W. Fanning, a prominent Newton Upper Falls resident, passed away at his home last Sunday, aged 84 years. Death was due to old age.

Mr. Fanning was born in Marlboro, near Glastenbury, Conn. May 23rd, 1816. He was one of a family of nine childred. The early part of his life was spent in citton manufacturing in the employ of John W. Slater, one of the pioneers in the cotton in. manufacturing in the employ of John W. Slater, one of the ploneers in the cotton industry in this country. At the age of 16 Mr. Fanning was superintendent, in charge of the weaving department of two mills belonging to Mr. Slater, at Jewett City, of the weaving department of two mills belonging to Mr. Slater, at Jewett City, Conn. At the age of 26, in partnership with one of his brothers, he built and operated a small twine and batting mill manded the mill and a few houses, was manded Dorrville. The business was carried on successfully for a number of years until the property was destroyed by fire. Later the land and water privileges were sold to the Ashland Manufacturing Company, who own the property day. Being a thoroughly experienced man, Mr. Fanning's services were sought after by a number of mills and he finally accepted a position with the Clinton mills, Woonscoket, R. I. It was at this time the mill was being built and he superintended the starting of all the new machiney in the weaving department. He came to Newton Upper Falls to enter the employ of the late Oits Pettee, at the Newton cotton mills, about 48 years ago. He spent several years in the employ of the Newton this Co. and finally resigned his position, and with his sons entered the grocery business, and was very successful and continued the business for over 30 years at Newton Upper Falls. The last few years of his life he has spent in a quiet, retired way at his home, corner of Summer and Spring streets.

Announcement.

To accommodate those who are partial to the use of atomizers in applying liquids into the nasal passages for catarrhal troubles, the proprietors prepare Cream Balm in liquid form, which will be known as Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price including the spraying tube is 75 cts. Druggists or by mail. The liquid form embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation. Cream Balm is quickly absorbed by the membrane and does not dry up the secretions but changes them to a natural and healthy character. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.

Death of James Vickers.

James Vickers, a former well known citizen, died early Tuesday morning at the Soldiers' Home, Chelsea, from a complica-tion of troubles. Mr. Vickers was a native stone of troubles. Mr. Vickers was a native of Otley, Eng., and was about 71 years of age. He came to this country when a young man, and on the outbreak of the viril war enlisted in the navy, where he remained throughout the war, seeing active service on the Wabash and other vessels. After his retirement from the navy he established himself in the grocery business at Woburn, where he remained for a number of years. About 21 years ago he came the continued in but iness up to about three years ago, when ill health compelled him to retire. Shortly after giving up his business he went to the Soldiers' Home. He was a member of Charles Ward Post 62, 6. A.R., and a number of other organizations. He is survived by a widow.

A pretty home wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra J. Whiton, on Church street, Wednesday noon, when their daughter, Miss Effie May Whiton, was of any value," said an observant many yesterday. "Now, do you know I don't bedeve one woman out of six knows her right hand from her left without stopping to consider the matter."
"I was standing in the foyer of a theater the other day at a matinee watching the audience, mostly feminine, as it passed in. Well, each maid handed her cheek to the right' or 'Second door to the left, as the case might be. With hardly an exception those girls turned in the wrong direction then they'd pause to consider, exclaim, "We're going the wrong way! and skurry back again.
"This happened so often that I spoke to the usher about it.
"They always do it,' he replied laconically, 'I usually point so they'll know the way, but I've neglected to do that to-day. They're all right if they stop to think, but they never do think."
"I myself know an intelligent young woman who has to make a little motion as if she were writing with both hands before she can determine the right one and she declares all her acquaintances are affected in the same manner, so perhaps this is a general feminine failing, and the colored witness was unjustly excluded."—Baltimore American.

was due to heart failure.

The Rev. Henry Allen Hazen was born in Hartford, Vt., Dec. 27, 1882. He was the son of Allen and Hannah Putnam (Dana) Hazen. His early education was secured in the schools of his native town, and later he took complete courses at the Phillips Academy, Danville, Vt., and kimball Union Academy. In 1850 he entered Dartmouth College and was graduated in 1854. After three years of training in the Andover Theological Seminary, he left that institution and was ordained with Henry Fairbanks at St. Johnsbury, Vt., on Feb. 17, 1858.

His first charge was that of acting pastor at the Congregational church in Hardwick, Vt., which he held from 1835 until 1832. The following two years he presided over a church at Batton, Vt., and in 1861 and 1862 was in Randolph. He was installed at Plymouth, N. H., Jan, 21, 1883, and remained there until July 15, 1868, a period of five years. On Sept. 2, 1868, he went to June and remained until Sept. 30, 1870. On Dec. 3 of that year he went to Pitts. Bield, N. H., and remained until Nov. 30, 1872. His ast charge was in Billerica, this state, where he was installed May 2, 1874, and from which pastorate he resigned on May 4, 1879. Since 1880 he had resided in Auburndale.

It was in 1870 that the Rev. Mr. Hazen assumed the duties of a clerkship in the Congregational Sunday school and Publishing Society's offices in Boston. The honorary pallbearers included a representative of the Horticultural society of Massachusetts, three representatives of Bethesda lodge, F. and A. M., of Brighton; John M. Marden, representing Joseph Breck & Sons' corporation; M. Clinton Viles, representing the Metropolitan bank, of which Mr. Breck was for many years a director; Thomas J. Grey, representing the seed trade of Boston, and H. L. Doten, representing the New England iron hardware association.

Many beautiful foral tributes lay upon the coffin, including tokens of love and esteem from Mr. Breck's employes, his business associates and Newton friends. At the grave impressive services were conducted by the members of Bethesda lodge, F. and A. M., of P. righton.

The Quotation from Goldsmith.

To the Editor of the Republican:—
A West Newton reader sends this message from Goldsmith to Senator Hoar:— Who, born for the universe, narrowed his mind.

And to party gave up what was meant for mankind,

A Berkshire reader hopes you reminded the writer from West Newton that Gold-smith's flippant couplet was intended in retaliation to belittle the purest, ablest and retaliation to belittle the purest, ablest and most philosophical of English statesmen. His talents and great attainments adorned the British House of Commons at the time of the American revolution, and opposed the oppressive measures of George III and Lord North against the American colonists. The statesmanship of Senator Hoar will not be damaged by comparison even with Edmund Burks.

Stockbridge, August 6, 1900.

Story of a Slave. Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. It is a godsend to weak, sickly, run-down people. Cure guaranteed. Only 30c. Sold by Arthur Hudson, druggist.

A Suggestion From Albany.

The Albany (New York) Press is greatly concerned in regard to the advertising cards in street cars, and makes the unique sugges-tions that follow in regard to them: Among modern nui-ances is street car ad-vertising. We mean the row of card signs hoisted up aloft whereon in uncouth Eng-lish and inartistic letters and pictures are set forth the alleged virtues of corsets, livset forth the anged virtues of corsets, hy-er pills, candied beans, evaporated oats and other commodities for man and beast. These monstrosities commit visual assault and battery upon us every time we are obliged to use the motor lines. The thing and battery upon us every time we are obliged to use the motor lines. The thing has become almost intolerable to sensitive people. The railway companies have no leval right to thus disfigure their cars. The franchises donated to them by the silly public were to use the streets and highways as common carriers of passengers, not to block traffic with traveling billboards and steal good advertising money from the newspapers. The companies might just as legally distribute milk and vegetables along the route, or start a laundry, collecting collars and enfs from passengers en transit. Let the cars be cleansed of the atrocious cards and if the space they occupied must be filled there are texts, mottoes, pictures and portraits of worth and beauty that are available. Thus one car could be adorned with good battle pictures, Lexington, Bunker Hill, Yorktown, Saratoga. Another could have portraits of the Presidents, generals or statesmen, Washington, Webster, Grant, Dewey. Still another car might be beautified with pictures and verses from American poets, with a brief biographical sketch of each; and in another car should be set forth the constitution of state or nation—documents marvelonsly unfamiliar to our citizens. In this way the people would be refusated in manuers and good taste. We hope our idea may find encouragement and produce results. But also, we lear that before any reform, least of all this one; can be adopted. Albany must witness several first class funerals.

Norumbega Park.

The Alhambra Novelty Co. playing this week at the rustic theatre in Norumbega Park is making a great name for itself, and in spite of the threatening weather on two days, has had very large audiences. The company includes Madame Wilson, on the trapeze, Rhemhold, with novel sand pictures, the Raymond musical trio, Jones and Satton in a darkey character sketch, the famous O'Brien family of acrobats and the Bijou Pony Circus. Every one of these specialties is familiar to friends of vaude-ville, and the result has been large audiences and enthusiastic applanes at Norumbega. The last two performances by this company will be given Saturday. Next week's attraction will be the International Vaudeville Co., which, as its name denotes, is made up of artists from both sides of the water. There is no doubt but that it will add one more to the many past successes of the rustic's season.

Funeral of Mrs. Fayette Shaw.

The funeral service of Mrs. Fayette Shaw took place Saturday afternoon, August 4th, at 3 o'clock at the family residence on Harvard street, Newtonville. The house was filled with a large gathering of relatives and friends. Musical selections were ren-dered by the Temple quartet of Boston. The house was The eulogy was pronounced by Rev. S. G. Dunham, pastor of the Newton Universal The eulogy was pronounced by Rev. S. G. Dunham, pastor of the Newton Universalist church. He began his address with a favorite quotation of Mrs. Shaw from Charles Summer: "If you feel weary and languid and sometimes wonder why the angels tarry so long, remember that the powers that can read the value of a human life know when to call you home." He said that this stendard could scarcely measure the value of such a life, that it was only at times like this that we realize something of the worth of human life. The sadness of the hour, the deep grief, the preclous memories, the yearning of hearts for the old-time love—all tell more eloquently than words can express of the beauty and strength of the life now closed to earth. He spoke of the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Shaw had enjoyed nearly 56 years of married life. He also referred to the fact that Mrs. Shaw had enjoyed nearly 53 years of married life. He also referred to the fact that Mrs. Shaw had lived in Newtonville for 35 years, where she had won a large citcle of friends by her gracious hospitality and her many deeds of kindness performed in such a spirit of charity that her nearest friends had no idea of their number or extent. The service was concluded by the reading of a favorite poem.

The coffin was surrounded by many floral remembrances from every member of the family and from friends in New York and Medford, Wis., where Mrs. Shaw had a very large circle of friends. The burial was at Newton cemetery, where there was a brief service at the grave. The bearers were Mesers, Frank Cutting, Winchester, John F. Mills, Somerville, A. K. Kunball and T. T., Brooks, Boston.

Lavantia Ford was born in Cummington, Mass., Annust 13, 1825. She was one of a family of 5 daughters, 2 of whom survive her. She was married to Fayette Shaw at Cummington, Sept. 13, 1841. Four children were born to them. One, a son, died in infancy three, two daughters and a son, survive her.

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC:—
In the midst of the shock and sad surprise caused by the sudden death of Mrs Fayette Shaw, of your city, it seems to me fitting that some word be said of her many noble traits of character and of her useful noble traits of character and of her useful-ness both in society and as a benefactor of the poor. As many friends can testify, Mrs. Shaw was, even to the end of her life, an ardent student and lover of literature. Especially was she interested in an-cient lore-Egyptian, Persian and East Indian-and she seemed to have an unusual grasp of the meaning of their-to most peo-ple-mystical sayings. Many a delightful afternoon did she afford her lady friends, when, gathered in her beautiful home, they ple—mystical sayings. Many a delightful afternoon did she afford her lady friends, when, gathered in her beautiful home, they were privileged to listen to her interpretation of her fayorite authors.

In her home life, too, and in her relations with those nearest and dearest, Mrs. Shaw showed her loving and kindly spirit. A true and helpful companion to her husband an affectionate mother and a proud grand-parent. She showed to all who knew her, that the home life and home loves were dear and precious. Yet these demands upon heart and time never led her to disregard outside calls for sympathy and aid. Probably that part of her life which per tained to her charities and pollanthropic dee s is the side hast known, perhaps hardly suspected, by many who thought they knew her well. But like the gracious life of Mrs. Mary T. Goddard, which ceased to this world less than a year aro, so was that of this dear friend: filled with deeds of benevolence, bestewed not unthinkingly and without liked purpose, but following well defined plans and resulting in large helpfulness and in the increased happiness of many a needy one. One of Moody's Jokes.
D. L. Moody was always full of fun.
He saw the comic side of things, and as a boy enjoyed putting practical jokes upon any one whom he well knew. In the rear of his Uncle Samuel's retail shoe store in Boston was a cobbler's repair kit—seat, tools, awis, etc., and the seat was, as usual, a piece of leather concavely shaped downward at its center.

One day the workman on this saucer shaped seat felt it becoming uncomfortably damp, then really moist. He rose and saw a damp spot on the seat. Supposing that a few drops of water had been accidentally dropped upon the seat before he sat down to his work, he folded an old newspaper and placed it and sat comfortably down to resume his work. But the moisture seemed his work. But the moisture seemed strangely persistent. Rising again, he found the paper becoming soaked with water, and he stood perplexed, his hammer in one hand and the soft, wet paper in the other.

Looking this way and that in his Looking this way and that in his perplexity, he soon heard a half chuckle, half snicker, which could no longer be repressed, and there behind the door was the country boy, learning how to be useful in a city shoe store, as he really and rapidly did, but taking his fun as he went along. He had placed a shallow dish of water close up to the underside of the center of the leather seat, which only touched the water when the weight of the occupant was upon it, so three or four small awl holes served his purpose for that time.—Congregationalist. that time.-Congregationalist

Our Endurance.

During life each member of the human body produces poison to itself. When this poison accumulates faster than it can be eliminated, which always occurs unless the muscle has an interval of rest, then will come fatigue, which is only another expres-sion for toxic infection.

If the muscle is given an interval of It the muscle is given an interval of rest, so that the cell can give off its waste product to keep pace with the new productions, the muscle will then liberate energy for a long time. This latter condition is what we call endurance.

Like any other ponderous and in-Like any other ponderous and in-tricate machine, the body requires time to get in harmonious working order. The brain, nerves, heart and skeletal muscles must be given some warning of the work they are expected to perform. Ignorance of this fact has broken down many a young man who

The necessity of getting all the parts of the body slowly in working order is well understood by trainers and jackeys on the race track, as is eviaced by the preliminary "warming up" they give their horses, although it is doubtful if the trainers could give any physiologic reason for their custom.—Popular

THE present adulation of rich men by politicians and political papers has its comical side. Somehow this worship never seemed so outspoken and intense before, seemed so outspoken and intense before, but perhaps that is merely because of recent events in our history. But we see an ordinary man who has made a million or so lauded because of his democratic manners, and because he still recognizes his former friends. It is told with great impressiveness that he still repeits to enumy, recold ness that he still speaks to common people, as if this were something of great merit, or as if he were not one of the common or as it he were not one of the common people himself. There are rich men in politics and elsewhere who are boorish ignorant and very unpleasant companions, and their influence on public affairs is the reverse of beneficial. They have made millions, but that is hardly to their credit, as it was done by dishonest methods. The late Jay Gould, for instance, made his money by wrecking railroads and fleecing small investors, and his whole fortune would not pay for all the suffering he has caused. Many of the wrest fortunes were would not pay for all the suffering he has caused. Many of the great fortunes were made in like manner. Other men had a pull with the government and made their money by having a high tariff put on the goods they manufactured, and taxing their dellow citizens. In fact, if the old friends of many of the millionaires are willing to the control of the c still recognize them it is to their credit rather than that of the millionaires. Other countries have old families which started in rebbery or some other successful crime or scandal, but it was so long ago that their decompositions of the started than the started than the started that the start descendants and every one else have forgotten it, but here our millionaires are too with any perceptible halo. It may be very well for political papers and politicians to flatter and crawl before the possessors of millions, as money buys legislatures and appointments and all sorts of honors, but they are waiting a mission in their thick are waiting and they are making a mis ake in doing this so openly. The great majority of people are not dazzled, but still measure a man by what he is and not by what he has.

SENATOR HANNA'S visit to Boston this week is said to have caused a general scattering of wealthy Republicans, who left down for an indefinite period, a yacht being the favorite method. Four years ago

THE SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN says THE SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN says that when Americans complain of their coal bills let them think about their British cousins and be content—or measurably so. The high price of coal is becoming a serious factor in England, both in manufacturing and domestic circles. It is increasing the cost of making goods as well as the expense of the railways, so that the decline in the prices of the stocks of English roads is considerably attributed to this cause. Householders in London have to pay $8 and $9 a ton for their coal. All this must mean in the long run a greater demand throughout the world for American coal—and no relief in the prices at home. Already continental steamers coming to New York are making it a general practice to buy enough coal on the Ameripractice to buy enough coat on the American side to last them for the round trip, "American coal must soon come to the London market, just as American steel is now doing," says a London dispatch—and then we shall be "carrying coals to Newcastle."

THE rain of this week has been very welcome as it marks the end of the pro-longed drouth that has existed since June. Lawns about the city are burned badly and gardens have needed constant watering to keep the vegetables and flowers growing. In the country districts the dust has been something terrible and summer visitors found that it took away all pleasures of drivin, as the fine powder was six inches, more or less, deep on all the roads, and it was almost impossible to drive fast enough to keep out of the clouds that were raised by every team. The hill pastures were dry and brown and the country hal lost half its attractiveness. But this rair will do a good deal to remedy matters, and in August the usual damp and muggy weather always freshens up the grass and and gardens have needed constant watering weather always freshens up the grass and foliage. In the farming districts such a rain as we have had is worth much money

MR. FRED H. WILLIAMS has now con e. out as the anticorporation candidate for Congress from this district. He thinks corporations are a great danger in this state, but it seems to be a very recent discovery, as he did not make a record as an anti-corporation man while he was in the anti-corporation man white ne was in the legislature. But if he feels this way and is serious about the gravity of the danger his place is right here at home, in the legislature, where he can fight the corporations, and he should not aim to run away to Washington, out of the sight of danger. When a candidate for office suddenly and without warning begins to talk about the danger of corporation influence, it looks as if his chances were getting desperate.

The excellence of Newton's water sup ply has been shown in this dry weather. WALTHAM'S tax rate has been reduced to $14 this year, and the Watch city people are correspondingly happy. It is a reduction of $1.20 from last year and is due to the efforts of Mayor Mayberry, who has all along blue pencilled appropriations in the interest of economy.

The wheat crop in Kansas will be worth over two million dollars this year, its said, and prosperity is smilling on the Kansas farmers, together with drummers with all sorts of things to sell.

Aspinwall Ave., Cor. Harvard St. Brooklin 54 Langley Road, Newton Centre. Corkscrew Seed

There are some seeds which "literally corkscrew themselves into the ground." The most remarkable instance is perhaps that of the Spina pennata, a beautiful south European grass. The actual seed is small, with a sharp point and stiff short hairs pointing backward. The top end of the seed is produced into a fine, twisted, corkscrewlike rod, which is followed by a plain cylindrical portion, ending in a long, delicate feather, the whole being more than a foot in length whole being more than a root in length. Owing to this feather the seed falls to the earth point downward and sticks in the ground.

But even if the seed should settle on its side, damp, by acting on the hairs attached to it, causes it to rise up till its point is downward. If a shower attached to it, causes it to rise up till its point is downward. If a shower comes on or dew falls, the spiral unwinds, elongating itself upward. Being covered, like the seed, with backward pointing hairs, it usually presses against some blade of grass or other obstacle, with the result that the seed is pressed into the ground.

On the spiral becoming dry again, it curls up, and the seed is not drawn out of the ground owing to its backward pointing hairs, but the spiral and ward pointing hairs, but the spiral and ward pointing hairs, but the spiral and the feather are easily drawn down. On the return of damp the spiral again un-winds and, acting as before, drives the seed still farther down until at last it is quite buried.

A Couple of Shocks "Where have you been, Mr Rocky?" demanded the boss,

"Oh. sir," replied Rocky mendaciously, "my landlady is a most excellent woman, and she has been so ill that I had to stay at home to nurse her."

This excuse went, and the boss turned This excuse went, and the boss turned away. The following day Rocky felt like he had sand in his head, and a headache as long as a rainy Sunday in the country developed. He staid at home, sending the excuse that his landlady was dead and he had to attend the funeral. Later in the day a woman entered the bookstore and inquired for Mr. Rocky about him."

"His landlady!" gasped the boss.

"Why, woman, he's attending your funeral this very day and has been nursing you for a week."

It was a shock to the poor woman to find she was dead, but a shock of another sort struck Rocky when he came back to work. It was his funeral that time.—Louisville Times.

Distinctions In Being Kicked.

The Arabs, clever horsemen as they are, are quite as liable to accident as English grooms. But the Arab likes to Engish grooms. But the Arab likes to be kicked by a thoroughbred horse and cannot endure to be put to any pain by an animal whose pedigree is at all defective. An English surgeon had been setting the broken leg of an Arab who complained more of the accident that had befallen him than was thought becoming in one of his tribe. This the coming in one of his tribe. This the surgeon remarked to him, and his answer was truly characteri-tic. Leg Gyves For Women. The costume of the Pu Yuan Pen-jen women in the Shan states is very strikwomen in the Snan states is very strik-ing, consisting of a cloth hood, an open jacket and a pair of short white trou-sers reaching barely to the knee. But the most important, though the least noticeable, part of their costume is their colored cloth gaiters. These the women are obliged to wear, as without them it is believed they would be able them it is believed they would be able to fly away, leaving their husbands and sweethearts sorrowful. This legend recalls a custom of ancient Carthage, where the unmarried women wore metal leg gyves, which were severed only during the marriage ceremony. The Akkas, also a Woni tribe, wear similar gaiters, though I do not think similar gatters, though 1 do not think the same importance is attached to them. It is probably an emblem of some old custom of which the true sig-nificance has been forgotten.—Geo-graphical Journal.

"How are you getting on with your photography?"

"Well," answered the young man with brown finger tips, "I'm doing better. The snap shot portrait I took of Mr. Curmudge must have been recognizable."

"You are sure of that?"
"Perfectly, for as soon as Curmudge saw it he said he could whip the man who made that picture."-Exchange.

That Crying Baby.

When a baby cries at an entertainment, turn around and look disapprovingly at its mother. She is not pinching it to make it cry, is trying her best to hush it and probably had no one to leave it with at home. But that makes no difference. By no means remember that you were a baby once yourself.—Atchison Globe.

SHE LOOKED, THEN LEAPED

Bright eyed Mary had a lover, Handsome, kind and true. "But," she said, "I must discover What is best to do." So she went for sound advice To aunts and cousins married twice.

"Don't," said Aunty Martha Teeters;
"Men are full of flaws;
Scolding round—the hateful creeturs—
At the slightest cause,
Take your aunty's counsel, Mary;
Men are always 'conter-ary,' "

Then she went to those still older, Cousins Jane and Ruth; Both agreed that aunty told her Plain, unvarnished truth, "Married wowen sigh and moan, dear; You just let the men alone, dear."

Pretty Mary stood and wondered How these matrons nice, Thinking thus, should all have blundered Into marrying twice. Into marrying twice.
Then said she, 'They've griefs and bear 'em,
I'll take one myself and share 'em.''

Sept. 4, 1897, 10:30 a. m.—Just now, Sept. 4, 1897, 10:30 a. m.—Just now, when I took dad his cup of coffee, I found him poring over a bill and looking worried to the verge of distraction. At last I drew from him that The Weekly Wag is wagging all the wrong way and is bound to go to the wall unless he can secure a few articles from some comic writer of note. But, though he has written to several with that object, nothing has come of it. "In a word, the paper has turned out a ruinous investment for me," he concluded bitterly.

a ruinous investment for me," he concluded bitterly.

As I came up stairs, feeling utterly miscrable and depressed, a happy thought darted into my mind. Men don't like refusing a request when framed by feminine lips, so perhaps I may succeed where poor dad has falled. At any rate, "without a trial there's no denial," and a recent incident opens the way for me to make the trial.

A few days ago, while aunt and I A rew days ago, while aunt and I were whiling away an hour in the Brit-ish museum, she bowed to a librarian. He responded to her recognition with a courtly bow, and a polite smile relaxed for the moment his clean shaven, inscrutable face.

"That was the celebrated Mr. Rutland, the writer of those clever arti-cles, my dear. I met him last week at Mrs. Pelham's," she explained as we passed on into another room.

Seeing that she had turned as red as a peony, I concluded that he was a celibate as well as a celebrity! But he certainly did not look a bit like I imagcertainly did not look a bit like I imagined him, for, strange to say, dad had been speaking of him to me that same morning, when he had enviously pointed out an attractive announcement in a rival weekly to the effect that a series of brilliant sketches from the pen of the widely known humorist, Rolf Rutland, would shortly appear in its columns. I am very glad now that we chanced to see him, since it paves the way for me to call on him and explain in confidence the sad straits of The Weekly Wag and beg of him to contribute semething to its pages. contribute semething to its pages.

Aunt mentioned that he lives at Forest Gate, in a benutiful residence known as Olive Lodge. So tomorrow morning I shall take heart of grace and start on this foriorn hope.

Sept. 5, 1897, 1:10 p. m.—What a day of days this has been! I really ought to have dated it in red ink. This morning directly the dear, unsuspecting dad had started for the city, I put on my sallor hat and sallied forth on my secret mission.

About two hours later I mounted a broad flight of steps to the threshold of Olive Lodge, and 1 must confess that while 1 waited admittance my courage

The Weekly Wag."

The slighting emphasis with which he named the poor little weekly, and the withering glance he cast on it, made me tingle with rage and mortification.

"Then there is nothing more to be said, except to apologize for having troubled you with this 'preposterous request,' "I said, rising to my feet. And making him a stiff little bow, I moved toward the door. He had the politeness to hasten to open it for me, and I passed out with all the dignity I could summon. At the same moment the hall door was hastily opened, and a tear blurred vision of a tall, straight figure in cricketing flannels made me redouble my efforts to repress my inclination to burst out crying.

"So much for my 'happy thought!'"

I reflected briefly, as I descended the deep stairway into the station. Haring ascertained that my train was not due for 15 minutes, I fell to pacing the platform, where the flaunting posters of many a prosperous compeer of the luckless little weekly I still grasped gave a yet keener edge to my disappointment. Turning in my perambulation I was surprised to see the flannel clad figure of my tear blurred vision hurrying toward me.

"The old bigwig has repented of his insulting refusal." I thought hopefully, while I bowed in response to the young fellow's doff of cap.
"Exècuse me, Miss Harvey, but there has been some unfortunate mistake.

"Excuse me, Aliss Harvey, but there has been some unfortunate mistake, and I have followed you here in the hope of straightening matters," he said, his quick breathing and heightened color testifying to the hot haste he had made. "I am the Rolf Rutland who scribbles nonsense; my uncle is a carent, and only writes for the science."

who scribbles nonsense; my uncle is a savant, and only writes for the scientific journals."

"A savant! No wonder he was so annoyed at my request!" I exclaimed, blushing painfully. "But, really, knowing you write humor, he might have guessed I had made some such mistake."

"Ah, but he did not know it until ten minutes ago, I have 'great expectation."

"Ah, but he did not know it that caminutes ago. I have 'great expectations' in that quarter, and have kept my frivolous talent a dead secret from him," he replied, with a whimsical could smile.
"Then I hope you will have no reason to rue this stupid blunder of mine, I said impulsively.

I said impulsively.
"I should certainly have rued it sadly if I had never discovered it—which is a rank Hibernicism, I suppose."
And a mutual laugh set us both at our ease.

"And now, Miss Harvey, with regard "And now, Miss Harvey, with regard to The Weekly Wag, I shall be most pleased to contribute to its columns," he said, as eagerly as though he were a struggling aspirant, anxious to see his effusions in print.

In the midst of my delighted thanks the train dashed in, and all was confusion. When he had handed me into a carriage he told me that directly the cricket match was over he should run

About 5 o'clock there came a telegram from dad, to the effect that Mr. Rutland would dine with us at 7. In a flutter of delight, I helped aunt to improve our menu and then hastened to make my dinner tollet.

When, half an hour later, dad and Mr. Rutland entered the drawing room.

Sept. 5, 1898, 10:45 p. m.—My wedding eve, and exactly a year since the day I made that absurd blunder. And day I made that absurd blunder. And now, thanks to the spur given it by Rolf's pen. The Weekly Wag is the foremost of its class and its editor his cheery old self again.

"But I shall never forget," he said to me this morning, "that it owes its success not to the editor, but to the editor's daughter!"—Exchange.

Cricket Versus Baseball,

Life is more strenuous in America than in England, and this is shown in About two hours later I mounted a broad flight of steps to the threshold of Olive Lodge, and I must confess that while I waited admittance my courage seemed to ooze out of my finger tips. "You are a little simpleton, Rose Harvey, quaking and shaking as though you were going to face an ogre instead of a wit," I said angrily to myself as a boy in buttens ushered me into a large drawing room, very handsomely furnished, but lacking in pretty trifies. Giving the boy my card I subsided into an easy chair. As I did so I caught sight of myself in a pier glass, and was relieved to see that I looked perfectly self possessed—which I certainly did not feel.

The next minute the curtained door swung open, and "the celebrated Mr, Rutland" entered the room. Unless I was much mistaken a gleam of relief flashed from his steel gray eyes as they alighted on me. Possibly, since my and and I bear the same names, he had expected to see her, and of "two evils" would rather deal with the lesser! Producing the current number of The Weekly Wag, I explained—rather Franklin Set It Up. United States, but the vault in which It was set up is still standing. It is in the Chateau de Ramezay, a quaint old building whose history is contemporary with that of the city, and which is carefully preserved as a relic of the French regime in New France. Frank-lin's idea from the first was to include Canada in the confederation, and he wished to include Ireland as well. His journey to Canada later, however, convinced him that there was no possibility of the Canadian possessions joining in the revolt.

Some years ago George Jay Gould and a companion came down town one day on the elevated road and were standing on the platform. Mr. Gould, after selecting a cigarette from his case, offered the case to the guard. That worthy took a cigarette, and with a "thank you" stowed it away in his pocket. "Oh, take more than that," urged Mr. Gould good-naturedly, "Take a half dozen." No thanks," returned the guard, "one will do me. It's lucky though," he aided, as an afterthought, "that I'm not old Gould. You wouldn't have got off so e.sy. He'd probably have taken all you have, and the case as wother lied and the first his frame that the case as worker lied and the case as the content of the his frame that the horst into uncontrollable shrieks of laughter. The guard looked suspiciously first at one and then at the other of the laughing pair, and then apparently coming to the conclusion that he had fathered an unexpectedly witty speech, icined in the mirth, and at intervals said to one or the other "That's a pretty good crack I made, wasn't it?" "I! was," they both assured him. "Hanover Square!" called the guard, and this being their destination the other man said, "Give me one of your cards, George," which being done he pressed it into the hand of the man as he got off the car. The guard and through the past, montled white, his jaw worked and he seemed to essay speech as the train dew out of the station. "It seems like fate," commented the other man, "that out of the two million or more to whom he could have made that remark without ill effect he should have made it to one of the very few with whom it could work him harm. ATTRACTIVE NEW FOLDER ADDED TO LITERATURE OF CENTRAL VERMONT RAILWAY.

The Central Vermont Rallway has just added to its summer resort literature a new folder of the Green Mountain Route, which is a complete guide to the many attractive summering places reached by this popular northern line. Besides schedules of time of all local and through trains the little book has an accurate map of the system, a list of stage connections and a convenient index of stations. Several pages are devoted to good half tone views of summer scenes in the Green Mountains, where "cool breezes always blow." There are 32 pages in the book and the blue ink and the white paper give a pleasing color effect. The folder is published for free distribution and copies may be had at the Central Vermont Office, 306 Washington St., Boston. folder of the Green Mountain Route, which TREMONT THEATRE—Manager Schoeffel will maugurate the next regular season at the Tremont Theatron the season the season the greatest successes of last season, and comes with the prestige of runs of 109 nights in New York and 133 in Chicago. No play has received a greater degree of approval from the best class of theatre goers; not only have the critics praised it, but it has won the end-resement of the clergy, in every city where it has been presented, for its healthy moral, its purity of theme, its strength of characterization and the fidelity with which it depicts episodes of pastoral life. The scene is laid in a little village in Northern New York in the decade preceding the civil war, and the work has been pronounced a perfect picture of the period, a time remote enough to be picture of the period, a time remote enough to be picture sque, yet recent enough to be remembered, with the charm of distance idealizing it, by many play-goers of today. The story is extremely fusion for the off great dramatic power. The basis on the plot is the hate of a "isseriy of the off great dramatic power. The basis on the plot is the hate of a "isseriy of the off season has been trapped and sold back into bondage in the South by the miser. The slavery question agitating the country during the campaign that resulted in the election of Franklin Pierce to the Presidency, plays a prominent part in the development of the story, and an old-time political rally, in which the abolitionists and pro-slavery men are arrayed against each other, forms one of the most thrilling episodes. The produced, and an entirely new outif of beautiful and picturesque scenery has been provided for the Boston engagement, which is for four weeks only.

David Harom was a good horse trader, but a recent transaction in horseflesh which was made by a well-known Memphian shows that there are others who know how to get the long end of a horse trade. Several weeks ago this Memphis man saw a fine buggy horse which he thought he wanted. He located the owner and asked the price. "One fifty," was the reply. After looking the animal over and trying her speed, he concluded it was a good trade, and without more ado wrote a check for the amount. The next day he found that the mare was as blind as a bat, but this did not hinder her speed nor detract from her general appearance. He drove the animal for several weeks and succeeded in attracting the admiration of another lover of horseflesh, who made a proposal to purchase. "Well." said the Memphian, "I gave one fifty for her, but I will let you have her for one sixty-live." The prospective owner looked the animal over and concluded he had a bargain. He paid over the money and took the mare. When the animal over and concluded he had a bargain. He paid over the money and took the mare. * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

Under an Inspiration He Distinguished Himself. * BY W. R. ROSE.

Spencer Gifford was quite too ready to admit that he was just an average sort of fellow. That was really all he cared to be. What he could do he did fairly well, but he did just as little as was decently possible. At college he had gone in a little for athletics, and made a very creditable record, but he shrank from anything really brilliant. He was a good scholar, too, but was quite willing to rank with the intellec tual second raters. When he left col lege, he went abroad and dawdled about in an aimless way, and came about in an aimless way, and came home with few impressions that he cared to mention. Then he went in for society, and there seemed to be reasonably contented. Society amused him and wasn't too exacting. coddled him; he was young, handsome clever and rich.

And yet he would admit that he felt a little conscience stricken when Anna Goldie gravely asked him one day dout his future hopes. There was a look in her eyes that he didn't like when he laughed off the query. It set him to thinking, and thinking was an occupation he rarely indulged in. Thinking almost disquieted him. He avoided Anna Goldie for a time, and found that was still more disquieting. And then just as he was thinking be would invite another talk with her on the original disquieting subject she suddenly went away. She went, they told him, to visit an invalid aunt in the interior of the state. She might be gone some time. It was more a visit of duty than of pleasure, and its con-tinuance would depend altogether upon the failing health of the aunt. In what part of the state did Miss Goldie's aunt live? Somewhere near Palmyra.

Falmyra? That was where Jim Robbins lived. Good old Jim Robbins, whom he hadn't seen since his last college year. Jim was somebody down in Palmyra. Member of the legislature, or something. He saw Jim's name in the papers occasionally. Jim was a rising man.

As the days wore along the desire to visit Jim grew upon him. He had a standing invitation to come down at standing invitation to come down at any time. There was a pressing note in his desk of quite recent date in which he was told of the treat he was missing in not making the acquaint-ance of Jini's matchless wife and equally matchless girls. He wondered if Jim would know the abiding place of Anna Cellidic's aunt. If he was a noti-Anna Goldie's aunt: If he was a politician, he probably knew everybody. He decided to go down at once and make Jim a visit, and he wrote to him to that effect.

Then he went to the bank and called on his father. And while he was there his uncle Tom came in and the three were closeted for a long time in his father's private room. When they came out, his uncle Tom shook hands with him and nexted him on the lead. with him and patted him on the back in his usual hearty fashion. And his father shook hands with him in grave fashion, and both the elder men seemed highly elated. Spencer shook his head a little doubtfully as he left them. Then he braced up with a swift stiffening of his fingure and elimibits of his ing of his fingers and clinching of his hands and accelerated his pace. He was going to his rooms to fill his dress suit case for the visit to Jim.

He arrived at Palmyra early in the evening. He had meant to reach there in the afternoon, but the train was de layed. He hadn't told Jim just what layed. He hadn't told Jim just what day he would start, and so his old friend wasn't bothering over his non-appearance. Spencer concluded he would look Jim up in the morning. He went to the hotel and had his supper. After supper he strolled up to the elerk's desk and inquired about his his hand. "What's the matter with Jim Robone of the laughingly called.

In an instant his friend's hand gripped his.

Spencer, old man, so glad to se you." He pushed Spencer off a little and held him there. "You are looking prime." he said. "And, by George! you are just in time." He laughed as he spoke, and looked at Spencer with such a comical expression that it in-stantly recalled to the latter some amusing experiences of the dear old amusing experiences of the dear old school days.

"What mischief are you up to?" he dried. "But, here, I'm in the way. Don't let me bother you. I'll see you in the merning." And he drew back and half turned toward the door.

"Hold on," cried Jim, with a plungath him, "you don't get away from me tonight. You stay right here until I can properly dispose of you."

speech told of the purpose of the ban-quet. He introduced the mayor, who briefly welcomed back Hon. Mr. Speed to Palmyra. Then Hon. Mr. Speed responded in a brisk speech, testifying to his delight in returning home to such ment which was greeted with loud a plause. Then Jim rose again, with crumpled telegram in his hand. I much regretted, he said, to be obliged to announce that Hon. Dwight Perkins could not be with them. A telegram he had just received announced a railway accident that blocked the road and held back Mr. Perkins, 60 miles away.

"Our regret, however," said Jim, "i our regret, nowever, said Jim, 'is somewhat mitigated by the fact that we fortunately have with us as an honored guest one of the most prominent of New York's young political and social leaders, Mr. Spencer Gifford, who will talk to us on the question of

"Remember your old debating triumphs," whispered the perfidious Jim,
"and sail in."

Spencer gave him a horrible scowl as he rose to his feet. Then he turned to the auditors with a pleasant smile. He the additions with a pleasant simile. He put his teeth together hard. He wouldn't be bluffed. And deep down in his soul he felt gratified that Jim, despite his consummate meanness, had confidence in him. Jim knew he wouldn't fluke. He would say a wow. wouldn't fluke. He would say a word or two and retire as gracefully as possible.

When Spencer, after an eloquent wind up, finally took his seat, the applause was vigorous and long drawn out, and Jim, his face flushed and his eyes sparkling, grabbed Spencer's hand under the table and squeezed it hard and said: "Great, my boy, great! You ought to get down on your bended knees to me for bringing you out."

When it was all over, Jim said: "We must get our coats and hunt up Min-

By the way, she has a young woman from your overgrown town in tow tonight, and we'll have to escort her to her aunt's home. Know her? She's a Miss Anna Goldie."

A little later they were out in the open air, Anna walking with Spencer and Mr. and Mrs. Jim going ahead, that acute married dame having apparently sized up the situation.

"After hearing you this evening," said Anna softly, "I think this is the field you are fitted for."

There was a pause. They fell back a little farther.

"Do you know," he asked abruptly, "what it is that has awakened me?"

"No" she answered.

"what it is that has awakened me?"
"No," she answered.
"It is love," he said.
He looked down at her. Her face was averted.
"Do you know what brought me down here? Do you know what carried me through that speech tonight?"
"No," she softly murmured.
"You!"

She was gowned in white muli, trimmed with lace and satin. She wore the customary tuile veil, which was caught up with a sprig of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white asters. The maid of honor was Miss Elizabeth Chapman of Needham, a cousin of the groom. She was gowned in yellow organdie, and carried a bouquet of yellow asters. The best man was Mr. George Brigham, a brother of the groom, A reception followed the ceremony, After a tour, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Brigham will reside on Hartford street.

Upper Falls Bathhouse.

o the Editor of the Graphic:I wish to thank you for giving the space I wish to thank you for giving the space you have in the frequent mention you have made about the new bathhouse in the Metropolitan park. In the last Graphic, however, in the local items it was stated that the water in front of the house was scarcely two feet deep. This item is true as far as it goes, but the writer of the item neglected to say that just above the bridge the water is over five feet deep and below the bridge in places it is about eight feet deep. Fearing that some readers of the item alluded to might think the water is only deep enough for small boys, I send you this addition.

M. Ernest Blum told a joke which he and some friends played on Offen-bach when "La Belle Hele" was about to be produced. The composer was most anxious that his airs should not get about before the first night and had asked all his company to be most careful not to let any one hear them careful not to let any one hear them, but his tunes were so catchy that it was impossible to help singing them.

One day Blum and his friends were sitting opposite Offenbach in a cafe when one of them began to hum a leading air of "La Belle Helene."

'Who taught you that?" cried Offen-

"No one," replied Blum. "I have known it for ages," and they all agreed that their nurses used to sing it to them when they were children. Pres-ently Albert Wolff, who was one of the party, began to sing another of the airs.
"What!" cried Offenbach, "you know that too?

"I composed it myself," said Wolff. Offenbach then saw that they were playing a practical joke on him and de manded the name of the singer who had sung them the opera. They re fused, and so the composer threatened that he would fine every one in the theater unless they told him. So Blum and his friends stood up and began the first chorus of the first act and declared they would sing the finale before the whole gafe, unless Offenbech was the whole cafe unless Offenbach re lented. The composer, in terror for his music, gave in, beaten by his own facility in writing music.

A Gastronomie Cyclone, All men and women eat. If they don't, they won't last long, and no one need worry as to whether they count for much or not. But good eaters are usually very depend-on-able. By good eaters I do not mean large eaters or greedy eaters, though I may include some of both, but I mean the men and women who enjoy what they eat and show no disposition, either from dys-pepsia or other form of indigestion, to quarrel with their food.

Gluttons, however, are not very love-I sat at table once with a woman at a summer resort who every day for dinner ate 12 ears of corn from the cob. That is more than the regulation mid-day feed for a horse. And in the operation she greased her hands and her cheeks, and every now and again her nose was decorated with the well but-tered grains. She was a sight, and at the end of the table she bred a famine that it took waiters to relieve. And she was in repose not by any means a and looking woman, but in action—in action at the table—she was a kind of human cyclone, leaving desolation in L-r path. She had had three husbands and is a widow again. What became of the poor men I never knew. Maybe she ate them .- John Gilmer Speed in Criterion.

When Bees Beat Troops.

It is on record that a swarm of bees as weapons of war were used not once, but twice, and with the best possible effect.

When Themiseyra, in Pontus, was besieged by Lucullus, the Romans employed turrets, built mounds and made huge mines beneath the city. While they were creating the mines the people of Themiseyra dug down through the earth to the mines and then cast in upon the Roman workers bears and other wild animals, together with a History repeated itself in England when the Danes and Norwegians made when the Danes and Norwegians made their attack upon Chester, about ten centuries since. The town was held by the Saxons and some Gallic alles, who tried stones and boiling water up-on the besiegers without effect. As a last resource they collected all the bee-hives and upset them into the enemy's camp beneath the city wall.

This had the effect of making things "hum," so to speak, and it is recorded that the enemy were so badly stung that they could move neither arms no

A Good Lincoln Story.

Mr. Lincoln said once that the best story he ever read in the papers of himself was this: "Two Quakeresses were traveling on the railroad and were heard discuss-ing the probable termination of the

"'Why does thee think so?' asked the

"'Because Jefferson is a praying man."
"'And so is Abraham a praying man," objected the second.

Norumbega Park.

A week ago Norumbega Park released twenty wood chucks from its menagerie as it was overstocked with these animals. Since then several of its patrons have gone to the head keeper with one or more of the wanderers. The chucks had become very tame and were easily approached by human beings, and no less than twelve have been offered to the Park. One of them was caught in the Charles, which he was evidently trying to cross.

The engagement of the International Vandeville Co. ends on Saturday. In spite of the unpleasant weather it has had large audiences, and has been one of the big successes of the season. It will be followed next week by J. W. Gorman's Noveity Co. In addition to the regular vaudeville show of this company, humorous moving pictures will be shown by the Romograph, the machine which created so much aughter a few weeks ago. This act is "oy request," and is simply another instance of the liberality of the management of the Park.

[Frankin Sentinel.]
The friends of Hon. Samuel L. Powers of Newton do not rest their case entirely on the locality point, by any manuer of means, but upon the fact of his superior ability. It is claimed that he is so well equipped for the position that he will make a mark of distinction in the National house, because of his honesty of dealing, his purity of motive, his rare oratorical genius and consummate geniality, and that he will keep pace with the other members of the Massachusetts delegation.

Recent Building Permits.

Young Man Frightened; Copper Fooled. It is due entirely to the reticence of the two principals that an affair of recent occurrence has been kept from the official records of the police department where it properly belongs, and from the knowledge of the public who have learned of it only of the public who have learned of it only as an amusing episode.

It happened at 2 a. m., Sunday, when the quiet of the day had settled upon the city, particularly upon that section, which proved the scene of the story.

Walking slowly down Centre street in the giapity of Republication and the story.

Walking slowly down centre street in the vicinity of Bennington street was a young man of this place, whose feet were pointed homewards. History does not state where he had passed the evening. He crossed Bennington street and was under the shade of a huge elm when there ap-peared in the young man's path the form of a man.

a man.

Thoughts of highwaymen and a "holdmp" almost terrified the young man, who dished past the figure and ran down the hill towards Nonantum square. Luckly he wore canvas shoes with rubber soles.
They made it easier for him, a fact which he much appreciated. Unfortunately, however, he carried a light jacket under his arm. This was the chief cause of the his arm. This was the chief cause of the touble.

The figure behind the tree was that of a patrolman. The jacket under the young man's arm, which looked to the patrolman like a bundle and the "sneakers" had aroused his suspicions. He was sure he had come upon a burglar. He was sure also that the burglar was a better runner than he.

Down Centre street hill they dashed the runner man gaining ground and the patrolman falling to the rear. Resorting to the old established though dangerous bluff, the patrolman cried, "Stop, I'll fire if you don't."

patrolman cried, "Stop, I'll fire if you don't."

At that time the young man was at the corner of Centre and Richardson streets and the patrolman at the corner of Centre and Church streets. The young man did not stop and the patrolman fired.

Without turning backward to see what had become of the patrolman's bullet, which might have struck him as easily as not, he kept on running until a short distance ahead he saw a policeman. Turning back he realized his pursurer in the rear was also a patrolman, and between two fires he decided to stop.

Leaning against Associates' block at the corner of Centre street and Centre place the young man waited for the copper in the rear. They met within a short time and talked to each other.

In the meantime residents of the neighborhood were up at open windows with anxious looks. The copper and his man were on to this fact and contined their

In the meantime residents of the neighborhood were up at open windows with anxious looks. The copper and his man were on to this fact and conducted their conversation in an undertone.

There is only this to say; they settled the matter by agreeing to keep "mum."
The patrolman, who halled from the other direction, found something else to occupy his time while the explanation was being made. Thus is explained a sensation, which was a sensation while it lasted, but a flasco after it had been explained.

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleep-lessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. It is a godsend to weak, sickly, run-down people. Marshai Saivatore's friend.

"Marshai Saivatore's was injured in securing the arrest of King Humbert's assassin.

"We were permitted to see the assassin, Angelo Bresei, who was confined in a small cell in Carbineri barracks. We saw him through a peep-hole through which he was viewed and tannted by the cavalry officers and men. The interior of the cell was constantly guarded.

"Bresei wore a cloth over his knees, and when I saw him, was eating bread. We were the only foreigners allowed to see him and only one newspaper man, who represented the Milan Tempo, was accorded the privilege.

"We were taken up stairs to the room where Salvatore lay. We had the pleasure of shaking hands with the brave fellow."

The fire which destroyed last Saturday evening the dairy and stock farm of Mr. Edward Jennings on Glen road, South Weston, brilliantly lighted the sky in that vicinity for several hours and was seen for vicinity for several hours and was seen for some distance. The entire plant, including buildings, which covered an acre, was entirely wheel out. The loss will reach $35,000, about two-thirds of which is covered by insurance. Apparatus was sent from Lower Falls and West Newton, but was unable to render any material aid. One hundred and twenty-five cows and fifteen horses were saved, and all the wagons, but only a part of the harnesses. In spite of the fire, all of Mr. Jennings' customers in Newton were promptly served the next morning, which is certainly a remarkable feat.

some weeks ago by a woman who claimed to be their mother. Since then they have seen nothing of her, and have received only one communication from her. Neither have the women received any money for the board of the children.
On July 29, a woman who gave her name as Mrs. Rivers, and her address at 107 Warren avenue, Boston, brought a 21-2year-old girl to the home of Mrs. Hertsch, and arranged to have the child boarded there for a few weeks. On the following day, the same woman brought a 31-2-yearold boy to the home of Mrs. Berry, who made arrangements similar to those made by Mrs. Hertsch for the care of the cheep to see filter the children, and recently Mrs. Hertsch wrote to Mrs. Rivers, asking followed by several more letters. But one response to all this correspondence was re ceived. This was to the effect that Mrs.
Rivers would come out to Newton at the sartiest possible date, and would then settle for the board of the children.
As Mrs. Rivers failed to appear, Mrs.
Hertsch decided to call on her at 107 Warren avenue, and ask the former to pay the children's board, and come and take them away. When she called Mrs. Hertsch claims that the persons in the house in

Interesting Newton Golf Schedules.

The Newton Highlands golf club was organized in the early spring, and, while it has had no regular series of fixtures, hardly a week has passed since the course has been completed that some event of interest has not taken place. The club's membership, limited to 100 active and 50 associates, is full, and there is a waiting list. It is the intention to lengthen and further perfect the course next season by changing several of the holes. The new holes will be constructed probably between the present greens three and four, on high hard land. hard land. The present course is barely 2000 yards in length, and it is expected that next year a playing distance of 2000 yards will be secured. A clubhouse is also likely to be one of the improvements for the season of 1801.

George Stevens holds the single nine-hole record with 42, and the 13 holes with 80. Watter Clark has been giving lessons to members during the summer. The club has not issued a formal list of fall fixtures, but the tournament committee has arranged for the following:

Aug. 11—Team match vs. Winthrop Golf Club.

Sept. 3—Members' handicap tournament,

Club.
Sept. 3—Members' handleap tournament, 18 holes for men, 9 holes for women; prizes for best net and gross scores; also driving contests for men and women.

tournament committee—Andrew B. Cobb, Frank N. Robbins and George E. Warrenis carried out.

The first of these fixtures is the Holidav handicap on Labor day, Sept. 3, 18 holes, medal play, morning or afternoon, for prizes for best net and gross scores.

The September cup, an 18-hole handicap, will be played for on Saturdays, Sept. 8, 15, 22 and 29. The lowest net score in each day's competition counts three points, the next lowest two, and the third lowest one, and the player having the most points at the end of the month will receive the cup. A prize for the best score will be given each day.

On the 17th there will be a women's handicap at 18 holes, medal play.

Mixed foursome handicaps will be played on Sept. 12, 19 and 28; these will be at 18 holes, and the prizes for best net scores seach day will be Newton Golf Club spoons for both partners.

Club members will be Newton Golf Club spoons for both partners.

Club members will doubtless be pleased to know that there will be no entrance fees for September.

HOW TO GET ON IN THE WORLD.

POINTERS GIVEN BY THE LATE COLLIS P. HUNTINGTON.

"Appreciate the value of to-day," he said. "That's my advice to young men. It has been my rule through life—I am nearing the century mark now—not to look forward, for the future is a blank. To-day is

From the moment it was known that the Hon. C. F. Sprague would not again be a candidate for the high office which he has so ably filled,many Republicans in all parts of the eleventh congressional district have instinctively turned to Mr. Powers as the logical and eminently well fitted candidate for the place. While it is conceded that he will not receive the nomination uncontested, his chances of success would appear to be remarkably bright if we are to judge the entire district by our own wards. Here, as we said last week, the opposition to Mr. Powers has not yet shown its hand sufficiently to be estimated, but the number of prominent citizens and earnest party workers already enthusiastically supporting Mr. Powers, both in Wards 22 and 23, furnishes no empty foundation for sanguine hopes on the part of his friends. It was a case where the honor was thrust upon me, not of my own choosing. I was forced to foreclose a mortgage that I held against a country newspaper, and, not being able to sell the plant, I was forced to run it myself. I was younger then than I am now, and I took hold with all the enthusiasm of youth, fully resolved to fill a long felt want. I had an idea I was cut out for an editor, and I thought that the paper might be a stepping stone for far greater things. Well, I came out with a burning editorial with the time stone for far greater things. Well, I came out with a burning editorial with the time honored formula that we were there to stay, and that we wanted it understood from the first that the paper would be run on a strictly cash basis, and that it would be useless to bring in wood, squashes or potatoes on subscription. It wasn't two days later that I chanced to look out of the back window of my office and there discovered an old farmer unloading a load of wood. 'What are you doing there?' I shouted. 'Thought I'd bring you down a load of wood on subscription,' he answered. Now, it so happened that I was out of wood as well as money, and with no idea where either was coming from, so I allowed him to go ahead, realizing for the first time that a country editor had to take what he could get and be thankful. I found the wood the matter with the wood?' he asked. 'It's green' I shouted. 'Wul, guess it ain't any greener than you be,' he retorted. I felt the force of what he said and retired as gracefully as I could, not only from the discussion but from the editorial chair as well.'"—Detroit Free Press-

Mr. Powers' candidacy for Congress from the 11th district is creating a wide-spread interest in Ward 25 and much enthusiasm is already evidenced by the opening of his campaign. As soon as it was proposed to the conference of th unusiasm is already evidenced by the opening of his campaign. As soon as it was learned that the Hon. C. F. Sprague would not be a candidate for the office he has so ably filled, Mr. Powers was one of the first who was looked upon as a candidate for the high office. Since that time others have been brought forward in opposition, but many Republicans and friends of Mr. Powers have most sanguine hopes of his successful support throughout the entire district, from present indications.

A guileless rustic who wished to become attached to one of our railways emerged from the examination room and informed the expectant relatives that he had failed to pass the sight test. "Why, you can't have!" exclaimed the father, who was horrified at the thought. "You're no more color blind than I am," "Happen not, but they won't have me," answered the rustic bitterly, "It all comes o' trying to be politic and obliging, as you said I was to be feyther." "But I can't see how being politic could make any difference," quavered the father. "It did, though," said the rustic. "The old chap held something up an says: This is green, isn't it? Come now isn't it green? quite pleading like, and, though I could see it wor red, I couldn't find it in my 'art to tell him he wor wrong for fear he might take offence. So I simply said, 'it is, yer honor,' an't they bundled me out. No more politeness for me. It don't pay,"—London Answers.

Dear Sirs:—Some days since a package of your GRAIN-O preparation was left at my office. I took it home and gave it at trial, and I have to say I was very much pleased with it, as a substitute for coffee. St. Peter stood guard at the golden gate, With a solemn mien and air sedate, When up to the top of the golden stair A man and a woman, ascending there, Applied for admission. They came and stood Before St. Peter, so great and good, In hope the City of Peace to win, And asked St. Peter to let them in.

The woman was tall and lank and lean, With a snaggy beardlet upon her chin. The man was short and thick and stout, His stomach was built so it rounded out; His face was pleasant, and all the while He wore a kindly and genial smile; The choirs in the distance the echoes awoke, And the man kept still while the woman spoke.

"O thou who guardest the gate," said she,
"We came hither, beseeching thee,
To let us enter the heavenly land
And play our harps with the angel band,
Of me, St. Peter, there is no doubt,
There's nothing in heaven to bar me out;
I've been to meeting three times a week,
And almost always I'd rise and speak.

"I've told the sinners about the day
When they'd repent of their evil way;
I've told my neighbors—I've told them all—Bout Adam and Eve and the primal fall.
I've shown them what they'd have to do
If they'd pass in with the chosen few.

THE LOCALITY ARGUMENT.

The Brookline papers can not give up their attacks on the locality argument, and the Chronicle last week returned to it and the Chronicle last week returned to it and instanced United States Senators, who are elected by this state practically for life. But Mr. Williams is not a candidate for United States Senator, as yet, and in the case of a new Congressman the locality argument has generally held in this state, except in cases where an ambitions. except in cases where an ambitious aspirant, like Mr. Williams, wants to succeed a representative from his own town. Of course he has no respect for the locality argument, and thinks it should be disre-garded in his case.

The Chroniele goes so far as to say "rotation can properly be tolerated when a candidate in some other part of the district is found who can do better, greater and more efficient work than Mr. Williams." The implication is of course that Mr. Williams stands without a peer in the district, which is news indeed. We fear that outside of a small circle of personal friends no one in Brookling thinks that is the ease. At this is news indeed. We fear that outside of a small circle of personal friends no one in Brookline thinks that is the case. At this distance from that superlatively wealthy town, Mr. Williams does not tower above the crowd, and the ordinary person would say that there must be at least a thousand men in the district equally well fitted for the duties of a congressman, while it would be within limits to say that there are a hundred who are better fitted in every way. Brookline has had several representatives in Congress, and their friends have always apologized for their never being heard of after they get to Washington, by claiming that they were "strong in committee work." In his terms at the State House, Mr. Williams was "strong in committee work." In his terms at the State House, Mr. Williams was "strong in committee work." In his terms at the State House, Mr. Williams was "strong in committee work." In his terms of the state House. Most people who pride themselves on keeping the run of State House affairs had some difficulty in recalling his name, when he first presented by the state of the sta of State House affairs had some difficulty in recalling his name, when he first presented himself as a candidate for Congress. Of course he would like the office, and so would a hundred or more other men. But the people in the district would like a change from the average Brookline candidate, and that is the reason they have espoused the cause of Mr. Powers. He has been in such demand as a speaker at public meetings, his oratory is so attractive and gives evidence of so much readiness to meet every occasion, such familiarity with the issues of the day, and such ability, that the people have hopes that he will rescue the issues of the day, and such ability, that the people have hopes that he will rescue this district from the insignificance it has had, and make it as famous as any district in the state. His ability as a speaker would make him prominent at Washington, and his name would be as well known as that of Mr. McCail or Mr. Moody.

The district has followed long enough the policy of letting the namigation of the discrete show the general sentiment to be all ame way. Even Mr. Williams' remarkable change of heart on the corporation question does not seem to have helped him any, as the fact is well known that corporations employ the ablest lawyers they can find, and if they retained Mr. Powers it was only because they could not find an abler man. But they are not a ning Mr. Powers to Congress, and he will go to represent the people as he would no longer be retained by the corporations. The experience he has had would make him a much more valuable representative of the people. As for the sneer against corporation. When the proposed is the sum of the people as he would be very difficult to find a lawyers, it would be very difficult to find a lawyer of first class ablity who has a lawyer of first class ability who has system, having long enjoyed its benefits.

Superintendent is dass ability who has not been at some time or other retained by corporations, and the fact is merely a tribate to their ability.

The squirrals in some sections of the city are becoming a great nuisance. They have been protected till there are great numbers of them and they are now eating pears, apples and quinces, just for the seeds. One gentleman found 45 pears half eaten under one of the trees the other day, and he says the peats have destroyed his whole crop of quinces. Evidently war will have to be declared, against these animals or else all fruits will have to be given up. They gather it is a'l the currants on one garden, saving the owner the rants on one garden, saving the owner the trouble of picking them, and are now eating up the blackberries. One gardener has bought a shot gun in self defence and the general opinion seems to be that while one or two squirrels may be very decorative, a hundred or more will breed a famine and it is time to organize a pot hunting brigade.

CITIZENS of Weston must have been convinced, had any doubts lingered in their mind, of the inefficiency of their fire department as shown at the large fire there department as shown at the large fire there last Saturday night. True, there was no available water to work with except that secured from wells and ponds, yet this was not all. The response was slow and the apparatus which responded would have been entirely inadequate to handle a fire of such magnitude even if given a chance to display its powers. It seems from the foregoing that a town of Weston's size and importance with so many large and valuable estates within its borders should be more completely equipped for, as shown by Saturday night's fire, there is no telling when emergencies of such a no telling when emergencies of such a character are to be met.

THE BOSTON COURIER finds a congenial midsummer topic in a consideration of the "gold brick" industry. It is of the opinion that New England furnishes the field in which the largest sales are effected. The Courier contends that this is by no means due to a prevalent and overmastering desire to get something for nothing, to overreach at a bargain. It offers a higher and finer explanation. "If our Massachusetts and New England farmers fall easy prey to the man who wants to sell them a gold brick, or to the man who wants a deposit for safe-keeping a roll of brown paper against their roll of bank notes, it is because of their too great confidence in THE BOSTON COURIER finds a congenial cause of their too great confidence in human nature; and this is bred of simple uprightness of character in themselves."

THE BOSTON ADVERTISER Says that the average of prison life in Massachusetts county institutions is said to be so pleasant county institutions is said to be so pleasant and attractive that it is not strange to find that some of the prisons are kept nearly full most of the time. Massachusetts is periodically affilicted with invasions by tramps for whom the ordinary country prison has no terrors. Superintendent Wadlin, a few years ago, published a tramp census, showing how the number of tramps in Massachusetts was increasing, but these tables showed also that in sections where discipline was enforced the tramps were fewer in number. Evidently there is such fewer in number. Evidently there is such a thing as making a prison too pleasant and attractive, and when that is done, the public suffers, in the long run.

Last week broke the record for summer heat and no one will forget the weather of last Saturday, which was so scorehing that it was impossible to find a cool spot. Around this section factories had to shut down out of regard to the lives of their down out of regard to the lives of their euployes, and work was generally sus-pended everywhere. The heat hung on through the night and it was not until day-light that the east wind sprang up and prought relief. This week has been cool brought relief. This week has been cool and damp with frequent showers and the stay at homes have had a chance to enjoy themselves and also to bring out their overceats, about the first time this summer that that article of apparel has been needed.

The political campaign has really begun. judging from the story that Oom Paul has been contributing millions to the democrat-ic campaign fund, and other equally true sensations may be expected every week. The Oom Paul story was such an evident infringement on the British gold yarn that it fell rather flat and did not need the prompt denial that followed it to be regard prompt denial that followed it to be regard ed as absurd. Whether the usual British gold yarn will also be started this year is questionable, although it may be given out by the Democrats, the British sympathles being so evidently with their opponents this year.

THE SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN in regard to Mr. Fred H. Williams' sudden conversion to anti-corporation beliefs says it might be interesting to the voters to look up his record in connection with the Beverley Farms case before the legislature. That was a celebrated case and many men made rather an unfortunate record, in siding with the rich summer visitors who wanted a nice little tax dodging paradise all by themselves. The people generally did not favor this scheme and it failed, but not till after repeated efforts.

The death of Collis P, Huntington removes a man who had great influence at Washington. What he wanted went through Congress and what he opposed failed. It is said also that he secured what would make him prominent at Washington, and his name would be as well known as that of Mr. McCall or Mr. Moody.

The district has followed long enough the policy of letting the nomination go to some ordinary man because he wanted it so badly, or had inthuence, or something edse, and it can certainly lose nothing by making a change and taking a man like Mr. Powers because of his ability. The

A Raymont and whiteomb party of fifty returned by La Grande Duchesse this week and the Zingari Cricket Club of Boston and Rhode Island Cricket Club of Providence, left on the same ship Saturday for a tour of Nova Scotia and Newdoundland. The map so highly spoken of will be raled on receipt of two cent stamp, by J. A. Flanders, N. E. A., 290 Washington street, Boston, or E. H. Downing, Agent, 20 Atlantic avenue, Boston.

DROWNED AT RIVERSIDE.

AN UNKNOWN YOUNG WOMAN LOSES HER LIFE.

A drowning accident took place near Long Bridge, on the Charles river near Riverside, last evening. W. H. Thomas of Green street and the young woman went up the river about 9 o'clock, and near the bridge the canoe was overturned. The cries for help attracted a number of canoes, but when they reached the place Thomas was found in the water insensible, and the young woman had disappeared. Thomas was taken to the boat house on the recreation grounds, but it was some time before he was revived enough to give his name. He was unable to give the name of his companion. Her body was found a short time after the accident occurred, and after all attempts at resuscitation had been tied, without avail, wasiremoved to Cate's undertaking rooms at West Newton.

The young woman was about 20 years old, 5 feet 9 inches it, height, and weighed about 150 pounds. She wore a black silk skirt and lavendar waist. She is supposed to belong in Auburndale, and had not been identified up to noon today. Assistant Medical Examiner Utley of Newton viewed to body. A drowning accident took place near

NEWTON LOWER FALLS.

-The bell has been removed from the old to the new hose station.

-Marshall Spring and Clifford Jennings have returned from a short vacation at the Weirs, N. H.

-Mr. Robert Whittaker left for England Wednesday, to visit relatives. He is to be absent about four weeks.

—It is believed the old hose station will be removed to Walnut street, Wellesley Hills, to replace the one occupied by hose 3. The town officials favor the purchasing, but appropriation allowed for fire department purposes may not allow project to be carried through.

ment purposes may not allow project to be carried through.

The barn and connecting buildings owned by E. Jennings, Weston, were totally destroyed by fire last Saturday evening that raged for three hours, and at times the destruction of houses on both sides was threatened. The fire was discovered in time to allow the escape of 150 head of cattle and 15 horses, while many hogs were burned, The town being without a water supply, and it being a iong time before assistance from Wellesley and Newton was called, all efforts were put toward saving adjoining property, with aid of hand pumps. Steamer 2 of Newton with Hose 6 and the Wellesley apparatus had streams on the blaze and saved some property after many feet of hose were laid to a pond some distance away. The loss was estimated at $33,000, well covered by insurance. The fire originated in the upper part of the barn and an investigation is to be made at once. Temporary shelter is being provided for cattle by the erection of many sheds. Mr. Jennings had one of the best equipped dairy farms in the state and will as soon as possible begin erection of new buildings.

—About 5 o'clock last Friday afternoon the police arrested a man giving the name of Louis Durmont, who had been going from door to door, apparently soliciting alms. When searched at police headquarters a letter was found in Dummont specket dated liverside. N. Y., promising him a situation there. According to the police, Dummont would call at some house, show the occupants the letter, and ask them to direct him to the house of the person which the person of the person when the person of the person when the person is signed at the letters as shown saw the date line, they would naturally inform Dummont that the Riverside mentioned was in New York, and not the Riverside mentioned was in New York, and not the Riverside which forms a part of Newton. Dummond would then throw up his hand, and in tones of despair declare that he had no money to go to New York. A few tears would add to the general effect, and it was no fault of Dummont if he did not get some money from sympathizers. Dummont was detained at police head-quarters for several hours, but as there was no direct evidence against him, he was finally allowed to go free, with a warning to leave the city. The police claim that Dummont has operated in Dorchester and other places.

Municipal Ownership.

(Banker & Tradesman.)

The decision of Judge Coit of the United States Circuit Court in the case of the New buryport Water Co., will hardly be agreeable to public s-rvice corporations in this state. The Water Co., when the city took its plant, contended that the legislature had no constitutional right to provide that in determining the value of the property, the good will, franchise and future earning capacity should not be taken in considng capacity should not be taken in consideration. It was also objected that the legislature exceeded its authority in passing an act giving the city the right to establish a plant of its own; this, the company asserted, amounted to a threat and made the taking involuntary. The court decides against the company on all points. It is held that the legislature had a right to pass the statutes it did and that the company's property was not taker, without due process of law. The result of this decision if it stands on appeal will be that shareholders in public service corporations which are doing business at a profit might as well make up their minds to have their property taken sooner or later. The time is not far distant when probably gas and water companies will all be run as municipal departments. The success which has attended the control of water might easily be duplicated in the case of gas. ration. It was also objected that the leg-

A JERICHO FAILURE.

THE ATTEMPT TO FORM A COMPANY OF HOME GUARDS.

Pap Perkins, the Postmaster, Tells How Bill Lapham Sprung His Scheme on the Meeting and How Lish Billings Gave It a Black Eye.

[Copyright, 1900, by C. B. Lewis.]

I was gittin the mail ready to put Into the Tarrytown bag when Bill Lapham comes in. Bill runs a goose farm just out of Jericho and has bin gittin up in the world like a basswood tree. Tre known fur the last year that he wanted to do sunthin smart to git hisself talked about, and when I seen him come in with his chin in the air I s'pect-

"Look here, pap," he whispers, though we was all alone, "I've struck the biggest, broadest, tallest, heftiest iden

I'm hevin hard work to catch my breath. I'll be hanged if my head don't swim and my knees wabble over it."

"Is it how to grow geese feathers on hens?" says I, knowin he'd bin experimentin in that direction.

perimentin in that direction.

"I'd tell you, pap, quicker'n any other man in the United States, but I want to keep it to hit the crowd with tonight. I want the biggest, bustinest crowd to gather here tonight that the town of Jericho has ever seen. Give town of Jericho has ever seen. Give every man notice as he drops in today, and along about 7 o'clock I'll hev the fire bells rung and the horns tooted. Tell 'em it's a big thing, pap; tell 'em it's sunthin that's bound to jump this town over a ten rail fence and make city lots wuth a thousand dollars suntee."

apiece."
There was a good deal of excitement around town that afternoon, and when night came the crowd at the postoffice was as big as the time when war was declared ag'in Spain. Most of 'em thought Bill Lapham was goin to de-clar war ag'in Mexico or Canada, and everybody was lookin pale when Dea-con Spooner called the meetin to order

"Sons of freedom, we hev gathered here tonight to hear some remarks from our esteemed feller townsman, William Lapham, and we kin take it that them remarks will go beyand geese and goslin's. Make your p'int, Bill."

"My p'int is this," says Bill as he "My p'int is this," says Bill as he draws a long breath and steps out to git room. "We ar' now in the midst of the turmoil of a political campaign. Somebody is goin to be elected. I ain't sayin who it'll be, but the golden opportunity fur which Jericho has sighed is at hand. When the newly elected official takes the oath of office, he will be escorted to and fro."

"That's k'rect," says Deacon Spooner as Bill pauses fur breath. "The speaker ain't through yit, but he's made a er ain't through yit, but he's made a p'int aiready. When he refers to the turmoil of campaign, it's not only high flown language, but a strong p'int. Go

"That escort will not only do the pres-"That escort will not only do the president proud," continued Bill, "but every man in it will be mentioned by all the papers in the United States. They'll speak of his wife and children and town and home, and he'll be a big man fur the rest of his life. He kin be elected sheriff without opposition, and if any one runs ag'in him fur the legislature they'll be snowed under. What I'm here tonight fur is to ask the questions: Why not organize the Jericho Guards? And why shouldn't the Jericho Guards be that escort?"

There was yellin and whoopin fur the next five minits, but when the deacon could make himself heard he said:

con could make himself heard he said:

"it's a p'int, gentlemen—six or seven p'ints. I've read all the speeches ever delivered by Henry Clay or Daniel Webster, and both of 'em put together never made the p'ints our Bill Lapham has. Bein I hev the floor, I'll say I favor the idea. Yes, sir, I'm with it heart and soul. I want my name to go down fust fur the Jericho Guards, and I'm even willin to sacrifice myself and be captain of the company. S'posin we hear from Abner Jones on the subtect."

"I s'pose it's known in this town that "I s'pose it's known in this town that my great-grandfather was killed at the battle of Monmouth," says Abner as he gets off the counter, "though I ain't braggin about it. I'll jest say that I'm willin to die fur my country any time I'm called upon, and if I'm elected captain of the Jericho Guards I'll promise that no invader shall set foot on these shores and live for five minits."

"Thar's a p'int in that," says the dea "Thar's a pint in that," says the deacon as he looks a bit put out. "When a man's willin to die fur his country, that's a p'int in his favor, but of course we want to hear from other patriots.
How is it with you, Moses Plumber?"

"Does any man here doubt that I'm willin to die fur America?" asks Moses as he draws himself up. "My great-

"The seven uncles and seven invaders is a p'int, Moses," says the deacon, "and I'm proud that we both live in the same town. Bill Lapham seems to be oneasy, and I'll ask him if he has anything more to say."

"In the fust place," says Bill, "I'd like to know if everybody is in favor of organizin the Jericho Guards." Everybody swung his hat and yelled

"But everybody can't be," protested Bill. "I don't want nobody to charge me with bein selfish or conceited, but I'm tellin you that this idea is mine and that I'm the man to boss the Jericho Guards. "But he must see"—
"Of course he must!"
Then thar was yellin and shoutin and a great uproar, and Bill Lapham said a great uproar, and Bin Laplain said it was a doggoned crowd, and he could lick any two of 'em rolled together. Deacon Spooner hammered on the stovepipe with his cane till he could be heard, and then he said: "It appears as if we all want to lead the Jeriche Guards and die fur our wouldn't be any Jericho Guards to die with. You've all bin wastin your breath."

"How's that?" "They's jest 96 men in this town," continues Lish, "and when the war was goin on and thar was talk that it might come to a draft the hull crowd of us went to the doctors to be examined. We had busts and ruptures and short legs and spring kness. We had ed. We had ousts and ruptures and short legs and sprung knees. We had consumption and rheumatism and heart trouble. We was deaf and nigh sighted and toothiess. Thar wasn't one blessed critter in the hull 96 who was fit to jump over a tow string or chaw peanuts, and I kinder reckon we'd better git sunthin soft to eat fur breakfast and carry each other home."

didn't seem a bit pleased with the suggestion that superstition might sometimes be responsible for the actions of miners.

"Coal miners," he went on to say, "are not superstitious. Hear noises? Of course they do, but do people suppose those noises are imaginary? It beats all how little is known generally about coal mining.

"Folks get it into their heads," the inspector continued, "that a man who will quit work in a certain part of a mine because he sees the rats desert-will quit work in a certain part of a mine because he sees the rats deserting that section is superstitious when, as a matter of fact, he simply displays sound judgment. Very soon after the rats quit sounds will be heard, and later on a slide follows. What would have happened to the man had he credited his fears to superstition by disregarding the exodus of the rats and the subsequent noises?

"Rats are the first of a mine's inhabitants to realize danger, and then itants to realize danger, and then comes the mule. Man is the last. So comes the mule. Man is the last. So it is only natural that he should take as positive indications of trouble the actions of the others, and he should not be regarded as a superstitious creature on that account.

"After rats desert an entry it is next to impossible to get a mule into it, not because the rats left, but because the mule realizes the danger. Left to themselves rats or mules would neve be caught in slides in mines, but it i different with men, who will not follow the lead of the other two."—Denver Post.

A Yale Summit girl recently played a cruel joke on her mother, and this is how it happened: She accidentally found a love letter that her father had written to her mother in the halycon days of their courtship. She read the letter to her mother, substituting her own name and that of her lover. The mother raved with anger and stamped her foot in disgust, forbidding her her foot in disgust, forbidding daughter to have anything to do with daughter to have anything to do with a man whe would write such nonsen-sical stuff to a girl. The girl then gave the letter to her mother to read, and the house became so suddenly quiet that she could hear the cat winking in the back yard.-Saltsbury Press.

The Deadliest Poisons.

The discoverer of prussic acid was instantly killed by invaling one whiff of his own handiwork.

Pure prussic acid is never sold or handled. The smell of it is always fatal. It kills not in three minutes or half an Leur, but the instant it enters the lungs as h gas. The mixture or-dinarily sold as prussic acid is 98 parts dinarity sold as prussic acid is see parts water to two parts of the drug. Even in this form it is very deadly. A 20 per cent mixture of the acid would kill nearly as quickly as if pure.

Atropine, though it has no harmful odor, is so deadly that as much of it as odor, is so deadly that as much of it as would adhere to the end of a moistened forefinger would instantly cause death.

Cyanide of potassium has a pleasant smell, which is not injurious, but a small quantity swallowed kills at once.

Pure ammonia, if inhaled, would cause death almost as quickly as prussive acid.

Every one ran away, leaving the acid to amuse itself by setting fire to things. Soon it was seen that the building would be destroyed and hundreds of people thrown out of work, and four men volunteered to put out the fire in the acid room. They succeeded and came out all right. Five hours later all were dead.

Mr. Campbell's Legal Adventure, Robert J. Campbell of New York had an odd and even awkward experience one day which illustrates forcibly a peculiar phase in the practice of law in the metropolis. Returning home late at night, he was attacked and severely beaten by a drunken stranger. To allay the apprehension of his family Mr. Campbell explained that he had been struck by a street car. He was put to bed and a maid sent out for liniment and bandages. She returned with a strange doctor, who proceeded at once to make a minute examination.

examination. The examination disclosed that the The examination disclosed that the patient was suffering countless injuries, most of them incurable, to his spine, knees, thighs, shoulders and arms. Mr. Campbell, who knew how little he was hurt, was even alarmed by the result, hurt, was even alarmed by the result, and his family were thrown into almost senseless fear. The following day the doctor returned and announced that he was not a physician at all, but an "accident" lawyer—that is, one who sues corporations for damages resultsues corporations for damages resulting from physical injuries. He also brought with him several alleged witnesses to the street car accident, all of whom were willing to swear to anything for a consideration.—Saturday Evening Post.

Dive Jay Tree Planters.

An old time Arizona woodchopper says the blue jays have planted thousands of the trees now growing all over Arizona. He says these birds have a Arizona. He says these birds have a habit of burying small seed in the ground with their beaks and that they ground with their beaks and that they frequent pinyon trees and bury large numbers of the small pine nuts in the ground, many of which sprout and grow. He was walking through the pines with an eastern gentleman a short time ago when one of these birds flew time ago when one of these birds new from a tree to the ground, stuck his bill in the earth and quickly flew away. When told what had happened, the eastern man was skeptical, but the two went to the spot and with a knife blade dug out a sound pine nut from a depth of about 11/2 inches. Thus it will be so that nature has plans of her own for Plants That Bear Jewels.

One of the directors of Kew gardens, lecturing at the London institute on some curiosities of tropical plant life, said that among these were the pearls said that among these were the pearls found occasionally in the coconnut palm of the Philippine Islands—pearls which, like those of the ocean, are composed of carbonate of lime. The bamboo, too, yields another precious product in the shape of true opals, which are found in its joints.

Nature's Winter Storage

As the result of 29 years of experiments at Rothamsted, England, it is shown that in the winter mouths more than half of the amount of rain that falls penetrates into the soil and becomes available for the supply of springs, while in the summer only one-quarter of the rainfall is absorbed by the soil. The maximum quantity of water in the soil is at a depth of about 40 theles

Low Rates on the Yarmouth Line Are Popular

The fact that the Yarmouth Steamship Company's business for July greatly ex-ceeded that of the corresponding month company's business for July greatly exceeded that of the corresponding month last year, despite the fact that the rates between Boston and Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, have been reduced one half is evidence that low rates to Nova Scotia are popular. An ocean trip to Yarmouth and return on the steamer "Boston" or "Yarmouth" even if it is for only a few days will prove beneficial to those seeking rest and change. #### The Man for Congress.

[Hyde Park Gazette.]

This district ought to send a strong man to Congress. No man can be a power in that body unless he is an able debater and to Congress. No man can be a power in that body unless he is an able debater and possessed of force and ability. Previous legislative experience counts for nothing, if the candidate is wanting in these essential qualities. General Draper never held a public office until elected from this district to congress; nevertheless he exercised a great influence at Washington, because he was a man of brains and force. Congressman Moody, without any previous legislative experience, sprang into the front rank during his first term and Congressmen McCall and Gillett, neither of whom ever served in our state senate, rank among the ablest men in Congress. This is so because they are all men of ability and lave the capacity to measure swords in debate with the best men in the national House of Representatives. Samuel L. Powers of Newton belongs to this c ass of men. He has the very qualities requisite to give him a high rank in Congress. A magnetic and forceful speaker, a genial good nature, abundant diplomacy and a tremendous capacity for labor. If such a man can be persuaded to leave his profession and enter the service of the public, the voters of this district ought to welcome him.

Vermont and Lake Champlain.

To one who loves nature in her quiet and sweetest moods there is no corner of our land more attractive as a summering section than the beautiful Green Mountains state. Vermont not only surpasses other sections in the beauty and variety of its scenery, but in the healthfulness of its clients and in the appropriations is former. scenery, but in the healthfulness of its climate and in the opportunities it offers for the enjoyment of out-door life. From a scenic point of view Vermont is all interesting. You may travel that the world of the property of the Whooski river gives to one, riding on a Central Vermont railway train down the western slopes of Green Mountains toward the great Lake Champlain valley with the lake in the distance, a thing of scenic beauty unrivalled in this part of the world. Of the lake poets have sung, but no one has yet done it justice. It is 145 miles in length and 16 miles in width at its widest point, and harrowing towards the south until it is scarcely wider than a river. Dotted all its length with islands, many of them only large enough for a summer cottage, yet some towards the north like North Hero and Grand Isle are of considerable size. West of Champlain rise the lofty peaks of the Adirondacks, grand back ground to a picture that has no equal. A handsome illustrated book describing this charming country, "Summer Homes among the Green Hills" may be obtained for 4 cent stamp on application to T. H. #### A NIGHT OF TORTURE

IT BROUGHT A FORTUNE TO ITS IN NOCENT VICTIM.

Twice Strung Up by Lynchers, He Confessed to Murder and Was Aft-erward Vindicated and Recovered $25,000 From His Assailants.

Late in the fiftles George W. King was the proprietor of a hotel in Oxford, 26 miles from Lafayette, Ind. In 1859 a stranger arrived at the hotel and gave his name as Dr. Rowe. He told King that he had no money and asked to be trusted for his board till he could get practice in the place, promising to pay him as promptly as possible. King consented to the arrangement, and Rowe soon became a favorite with the people on account of his companion-able disposition and superior intelligence. The doctor, however, fell deepgenee. The doctor, however, rei deep-er and deeper in debt. He had been at the hotel for nearly a year when King reminded him one morning that he had not paid anything on his board bill for three months. The conversation, it afterward appeared, was over-heard by some one in the hotel, though nothing was thought of it at the time. A week after the conversation Rowe was called out late at night to see a patient and failed to return. Days patient and failed to return. Days passed without any word from him, and his disappearance soon was connected with the conversation that had passed between him and the landlord about the unpaid board. One night three months later a party of disguised men entered the hotel and, overpowering King, took him to a woodland adjoining the town.

He recognized the voices of several of his captors and especially of the leader, who told him that he was suspected of murdering Rowe and demanded that he confess. King stoutly pected of murdering Rowe and demanded that he confess. King stoutly maintained his innocence, and the leader of the mob ordered his companions "to string him up." A rope was placed around his neck, a dozen men pulled down a stout limb, over which the other end of the rope was thrown, and when the limb was rethrown, and when the limb was re-leased it carried King off his feet and left him hanging by the neck. He was nearly unconscious when let down and again ordered to confess.

After much delay he was restored sufficiently to understand what was said to him, and he again refused, declaring his innocence and saying he did not know what had become of Rowe. A second time he was strung up and a second time let down, but life was nearly cylind. life was nearly extinct, and he was much longer in being restored than be-not pass through another such ordeal and live, so be consented to confess. He purposely lengthened the confession in order to gain time, and said that he and two men, named Rogers and Haggard, had poisoned some whisky and induced Rowe to drink it, and after his death they had buried him in a hollow some distance away. It was nearly daylight when the confession was made, and the lynchers determined to take King to jail in Lafayette and then arrest Rogers and Haggard. and live, so he consented to confess

Before the jail was reached day had Before the jall was reached day had dawned, and King recognized his captors as members of the Horse Thief Detective company of Benton, Warren and Tippecanoe counties, nearly all of whom were known to him. Confident of his guilt, the men made no attempt to conceal their indentity. So great was the excitement and so intense the fashing eacher. Why that he walked feeling against King that he waived examination and went to jail, hoping that something would turn up to establish his innocence.

From the jail at Lafayette King ad dressed letters to editors of papers in Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, Louis-ville and other cities, setting out the circumstances of his confinement and asking them to keep his letter in the asking them to keep in steter a under Rowe's notice. The appeal was a pathetic one and was copied into many papers throughout the northwest.

Two weeks after its first appearance Dr. Rowe rode into Oxford and, attended by a number of citizens, protended by a number of citizens, pro ceeded to Lafayette, where his appear ceeded to Latayette, where his appear-ance caused the immediate release of the accused landlord. In explanation of his disappearance Rowe said he had left his home in the east on account of domestic troubles; that he had learned that his wife was on her way to Ox that his wife was on her way to Os-ford and he had determined to leave the place secretly in order to prevent her from learning where he had gone. He had gone to a little town in south-ern Illinois, and it was there that he learned that the man who had befriended him was suspected of his mur-

AVERTED A TRAGEDY.

The Nerve Displayed by Daniel O'Connell at a Critical Moment, Daniel O'Connell, the famous Irish agitator, had a contempt for physical danger. On a certain occasion a meet-ing had been convened, and a large crowd assembled in a room on the first floor of a building in a small city in

O'Connell was about to address the people when a gentleman, pale with fear, made his way to the platform and hoarsely whispered: "Liberator, the floor is giving way!

ing, and we shall fall through in a few "Keep silent," said O'Connell. Then, raising his voice he addressed the as-sembly:

contain the number who desire to co

ontain the number who desire to come in, so we must leave it and hold the meeting outside the building."

At this a few rose and went out, but the majority retained their seats. Then O'Connell said:

"I will tell you the truth. You are Irishung, they for heave man. The Irishmen, therefore brave men. frisimen, therefore brave men. The floor is giving way, and we must leave this room at once. If there is a panic and a rush to the door, we shall all be precipitated into the room below, but if you obey my orders we shall be saved. Let the 12 men nearest the door saved. Let the 12 men nearest the door go quietly out, then the next 12, and so on till all have gone. I shall be the last to leave."

His instructions were obeyed to the letter, and he waited, patient and calm, till all had gone out in safety. Then he walked quietly across the sundering, cracking floor, reaching the door just as the shattered beams gave way. And thus, by the force of his strong will, a terrible accident was averted.—Exchange.

A LIVE COAL TRICK.

Teaches Natural Law, Yet Has All the Appearance of Magic, No one would suppose that it is pos-sible to hold a glowing coal on a piece of linen or cotton without burning the of then or cotton without burning the cloth, but that such can be done is easy for any one to prove, and at the same time the experiment teaches an impor-rant natural law. Every child knows that the telephone and telegraph wires are made of copper because that metal is a good conductor of heat and electricity, which is only another form of heat. If a poker is heated in the fire, you pick up a cloth to hold the outer end, although it has not been in the fire heatened according to the leading of the leading to the leading the leading to the leadi fire, because experience has taught you that the heat is connected through the metal from the fire to the outer end.

This experiment with the flaming coal is based upon this principle and the additional one that linen and cotten are pear conductors of heat. Take the additional one that linen and cot-tion are poor conductors of heat. Take a globe of copper and draw a piece of cloth tightly over it so that there is not a wrinkle at the top. If the linen or cotton is closely woven, the trick is all the more certain. Then, holding the cloth tightly in place, you can safe-ity put a glowing coal on top of the ly put a glowing coal on top of the cloth, and, while it burns flercely, the cloth, and, while it burns hereely, the cloth will not even be scorched.

The reason is that the great conductivity of the copper draws the heat of the coal before it can burn the cloth. Do not try this experiment with a good handkerchief first, for if the cloth is not tickly drawn it may hurn, but good manderenet hist, for it the cotal is not tightly drawn it may burn, but take some worthless piece of linen or muslin, and after you are certain of your experience you can astonish your friends who do not know the secret.— Washington Post.

That Date Engaged.

Some time ago a rich but ignorant yoman wrote to the weather bureau in woman wrote to the weather bureau in Washington saying that she was to give a lawn party on a certain day, and asking the bureau to see that it was clear on that day. prominent people she intended to invite.

"I entered into the humor of the thing," said the weather chief, "and sent her an answer to the effect that the afternoon she designated had already been bespoken by a poor washerwoman who wanted to obtain some rainwater with which to wash clothes, and that on this account I could not possibly make it clear on that date."

Making a Billiard Ball.
It requires skilled labor to turn out a billiard ball. One half of it is first turned, an instrument of the finest steel being used for the work. Then the half turned ball is hung up in a for nearly a year to dry. Next the second half is turned, and then comes the polishing. Whiting and water and the polishing. Whiting and water and a good deal of rubbing are requisite for this. It is necessary in the end that the ball shall, to the vertest frac-tion of a grain, be of a certain weight.

His Comparison.

When you eat, be careful to leave off hungry, is advice often given at the dinner table, but seldox received in an obedient spirit.

The caution was repeated not long since to a yourgster of vigorous appetite.

"Pshaw!" he said. "You might as well tell me to wash my face and be careful to leave off dirty." Potatoes.

Potatoes as a food vary in value according to the way they are cooked Roasted they are in the best form fo eating. Peasants eat potatoes together with milk and are correct in principle, as the milk furnishes the elements lacking in the tubers.

He tried strenuously to scale the Gopattenborn, for the sake of carrying his name upon the peak, but all his efforts were vain. The next year he returned to the attack, and eventually, by taking many precautions, arrived at the summit. On his next appearance at the table dibote he recounted his exploit to the d'hote he recounted his exploit to the company and informed them that he had planted on the spot a blue silk flag containing his name embroidered in large characters.

An Englishman, who had listened silently, rose from the table and marched out of the hotel. Two days afterward a parcel was delivered to the adventurous Gaul. He opened to and found inside his blue silk flag, which his English neighbor at the table d'hote had won from the peak by his own pluck and daring.

It is related on good authority, and in this case good authority means good in this case good authority means good authority—this is no Kaffirgram—that a young woman went into a music store in this city the other day and asked the clerk for a copy of "Angels Always Polished." The clerk turned over a stock of coon songs in a puzzled way and said he was afraid that they were just out, but he could send for it.

"My teacher said you would be sure to have it," said the maiden. "It's by Handel." Guessing is a part of the clerk's business, and he showed her "Angels Ever Bright and Fair." It was what she wanted.—Worcester Gazette.

Woodland Park Hotel.

There was an automobile party from Boston, containing 36 people, entertained at the Woodland Park Hotel Wednesday evening. They came out in three wagon-ettes evening. They came out in three waron-ettes.

The people who made this their home last season are beginning to return, and the prospect for the fall is that the house will be well filled.

The police keep a close watch over all closed houses, and this fact is so well known that burgiars seem to give Newton a wide berth. A daily inspection of the houses is made by the police.

The funeral of Elizabeth, the S year old daughter of Mrs Elizabeth McAribur of Elimond street, who died at the Newton Hospital Wednesday, was held at the Newton Cemetery Thursday morning a of was conducted by Rev. S. L. B. Speare.

—One day of this week the house of H. S. Leonard, 22 Maple avenue, was entered. The thieves gained an entrance by breaking a rear window. After ransacking the house the only thing they carried off mas a rvoiver. It is thought the break was the work of boys, as quantities of popeers were found distributed about the house.

—On the Wammbek golf links at Jefferson Highlands, N. H., hast Friday in the finals in the women's tournament Mrs. Andrew B. Cobb defeated her daughter, Miss Margaret Cobb by 3 up and 2 to play. Miss Cobb and the place is held by hard work during the week. Both Mrs. Cobb and her daughter are members of the Newton Golf Club.

—What will surely prove a great convenience to Newton people is the public carriage stand in Nonantum square. It was placed there this week by Mr. G. W. Bush of the Elmwood stables. A first class coupe driven by Dwight C. Morgan stands in the driveway of Scott's carriage shops, Nonantum square, and is on hand for public service. Strangers, and resident place in the driveway of Scott's carriage shops, Nonantum square, and is on hand for public service. Strangers, and resident by the service strangers, and resident as well, cannot help to appreciate it.

—Ex Mayor Bothfield, Mr. Charles Roosevelt of New York, a consin of Teddy's and Mr. Gibson Corceran of Patimore made the ascent of Mt. Washington Mong for the summit every day now, and the Mountains are rowded with visitors to the summit every day now, and the Mountains are rowded with visitors.

ANOTHER FATALITY AT RIVERSIDE.

DANGERS OF A CANOE TRIP ON THE CHARLES RIVER.

The fourth drowning on the Newton portion of the upper Charles river within five days occurred at 6.30 Tuesday evening, when Miss Rosa Cox, 26, colored, lost her life, the result of a canoeing accident. Her escort, Marshall Mays, also colored, parameter compared to the colored of the colore rowly escape 1.

Miss Coxs' home is at 344 West 41st street New York City. She had been visiting at 223 West Canton street, Boston, where Mr.

Mays lives.

The couple reached Norumbega park about 5 Tuesday afternoon, and, after en-gaging a cance, started out for a river trip. They had been on the water more than an

They had been on the water more than an hour when they reached a point close to the north boundary of the park.

Both were thrown into the water.

Both were thrown into the water. Miss Cox sank instantly, and did not reappear. The young man made frantic efforts to reach her side, but without success.

Several occupants of canoes near by went to his aid, and he was rescued in a very exhausted condition. The woman was completely lost to view.

Patrolman Coombs of the Metropolitan park commission police was near by at the time and rendered all possible aid. Sergit. Edward West of the river police was summoned, and with several officers began dragging for the body. It was not recovered until $1.5, when it was found by Fred Young.

dragging for the body. It was not recovered until $3.15, when it was found by Fred Young.

The spot where Miss Cox sank is considered particularly dangerous, although there is only about eight feet of water there. The strong current had, however, carried the body some distance.

The remains were taken to the head-quarters of the Metropolitan park commission police, and latter viewed by Medical Examiner Utley. Miss Cox's father and sister in New York were notified by telegraph.

The number of canoeing accidents this season in the vicinity of Tuesday night's tragedy is unprecedented. Clarence I. Burr of Framingham was drowned June 21, Miss Lizzie Cahill last Thursday evening, Race Hall of Jamaica Plain last Satudan night and 4 year-old Thomas L. Stanton on Saturday afternoon.

The activity and usefulness of the metropolitan park police has been highly commended in these cases.

The relatives of the young woman arrived in West Newton Wednessay, and later the body was taken to New York City.

LABOR DAY AT NEWTON LOWER

FATHER CALLANAN'S GREAT PICNIC.

Rev. P. H. Callanan has arranged for a grand celebration of Labor day, Monday, Sept. 3, at Newton Lower Falls. For ten Sept. 3, at Newtor Lower Falls. For ten years Father Callanan has had charge of St. John's Parish, and during that time he has provided many opportunities for the enjoyment of his people and their many friends from the neighboring towns. Each and every celebration that has been arranged under his supervision has been remember to the the attractions offered the markable for the attractions offered, the large attendance, a strict adherance to the published programme, and an honorable distribution of prizes offered. From the inauguration of these celebrations down to the present date there has been a large increase in the attendance from year to year, which bespeaks the growing popularity of these evening. The Irish piper belongs to a former generation and when one who is a master of the instrument appears he has a thousand welcomes from the lovers of the national music of Erin's Green Isle. The Irish piper and the break-down dancing of enthusiastic contestants for the prizes always excite the furere of the spectators. The Irish piper for Labor day and evening is the genuine article. Besides the music and dancing there are sports, games, rases, athletic contests, gay, grave and grotesque. The grounds at night are to be brilliantly filuminated, and there are seats for a thousand spectators on the grounds and pavilion. The admission to the grounds is free. Eleven large tents will be erected on the grounds and these with two mammoth pavilions will afford shelter for all in case rain should fail.

Labor day has become an established institution and there is no finer spot for a day's recreation, no greater attractions to be found for a day and evening's cutting than the grounds of St. John's Parish at Newton Lower Falls. Ten great Tug-of-War contests will take place. An athletic pavilion accommodating 2000 people has been erected. Electric cars from all points go direct to the grounds, and the thousands who vist Normbega Park are within ten minutes ride of the grounds.

Everything is free to all and no tickets are required.

Late last Friday aftern on the young woman who lost her life in a canoe accident at Riverside the evening before, was identified as Miss Lizzie Cahill.

[Jamaica Plain News.] We cannot agree that the display of such we cannot agree that me display of such ability as would lead a great corporation to seek the services of an attorney should properly debar that man from the public service. Were this so, the nation would service. Were this so, the nation would have been deprived of the services of Richard Olney and John D. Long, and Massachusetts could not have accepted the services of a number of her best public officials, whose signal ability, as in Mr. Powers' case, had won for them the recognition of large business interests. As Mr. Williams is himself an attorney whose cagerness for similar recognition is undisquised, this argument seems uncommonly awkward and weak. If Mr. Williams is really of congressional timber, who can doubt that his professional experience will in due se son be marked by this same sucprived of any of his fitness for public service. Both men are attorneys, seeking clients. If either man is employed by weathnier and more important clients than the other, the reasonable assumption is that he has shown greater ability and loyalty in serving them than has the other. And if such a man is drafted for the service of the public and accepts that service, he can be relied upon to work loyally and unselisinty for the public—the greatest client a man can have. Any objections which the voter may have to an attorney in public service will operate more strongly against Mr. Williams than against Mr. Powers. If the public does not want an emiently successful lawyer, it certainly does hot want an ordinarily successful one.

A VISIT IN GREENWICH, CONN.

Greenwich, Conn., Aug. 14, 1900.

Your correspondent finds himself for a few days a visitor in old and beautiful few days a visitor in old and beautiful Greenwich in the very south-west most corner of Connecticut, the town being bounded by the state of New York. It is old because discovered by Adrian Block in 1614, six years before the Plymouth settlement, although not settled until July 16, 1640, when Capt. Daniel Patrick, a distinguished Facilish pinger, accompanied by 1640, when Capt. Daniel Patrick, a distinguished English pioneer, accompanied by Robert Feaks, landed upon Greenwich Point, which extends into Long Island Sound. They concluded a bargain with Orrenoke, one of the sons of Poneez, a powerful Indian chief of that time and region, for land lying between Asanenck and Palommusk rivers. The deed now rests with the town archives. Robert Feaks, a very few years ago, had but one living descendant. Capt. Patrick was an old soldier and was second in command during the Pequot war, and it was his division that drove the Indians from the fort and region. In 1672 there were 27 proprietors, among whom was one John Mead.

fort and region. In 1672 there were 27 pro-prietors, among whom was one John Mead, who was also prominent in building the First Congregational meeting house. Greenwich originally belonged to the Dutch settlers of New York, but in 1650 became part of Connecticut. In 1666 the first school house was erected. The present High school building, the gift of one of the Havermayers, is a model in the artistic arrangement of the large grounds surrounding it, embelished with shrubs and flowers.

Commander Hardy off eastern end of Long Island, and the alarmed people posted santies everywhere. It is related that one Peter Horton, more fearful than wise, supposing one of a lot of American ressels to be a real live British vessel, threw down his gun, "cut sticks," and exclaimed, "Now legs! If you ever did your duty do it now," and it is seriously reported by eye witnesses that in his flight he actually tore down three rows of standing corn. Up to the year 1850 every tamzble wedding in the town was celebrated by Skimeton parties, which meant turn out of drums and guns and generally a large six pounder to fill in the clinks with its boisterous thunder tones to celebrate and nag the groom and his bride.

the clinks with its obserous tunder tones to celebrate and mag the groom and his bride.

In 1850 the last one took place and a so-cilled poetic account is on record and is really quite funny. It relates that this particular marriage occurred on a Sunday night in winter. It goes on after this fashion:

fashion:

The two stood up and Dominie Gorse
Tried up a knot as strong as a horse
The knot all tied, the bride often kissed
The cake passed round, and what each one wished.
The balow passed the form of the cake passed round, and what each one wished.
The balow wasn't half drinked up:
The barry below wasn't half drinked up:
My dear, dear sir, now truly tell me.
My dear, dear sir, now truly tell me.
How would you act and what would you do
If the Skimeton should visit you?
Oh! No fear, not of that good friend sir cried,
They'll not salute Sunday night my bride,
But she uld they come, I we a barref full
Of cider, the right sparkling, hard school,
Sir spoke hie a man so all will say.
Next day came, and though unsuspected,
A Skimeton had been collected.
Night soon came; the B'hoys were on hand,
The chief addressed in manner bland,
Said he: There will be no fitting done,
But a bridgeroom treat for all and one.
He tool to them what was said to Gorse;
Long loud cheers for the generous groom,
For cuter they had plenty of room.
Then marched down the street dragging their gun.
And feeling well were agape for fun.

THE FINE SONNET BYWHICH JOHN JAMES INGALLS WILL BE REMEMBELED'

Master of human destinies am I; Fame, love and fortune on my footsteps wait;
Cities and fields I walk; I penetrate beserts and seas remote, and passing by Hovel and mart and palace, soon or late
I knock unbidden once at every gate.
If sleeping, wake; if feasting, rise before
I turn away; it is the hour of fate
And those who follow me reach every state
Mortals desire, and conquer every foe
Save death; while those who doubt or hesitate
Seek me in vain, and uselessly implore;
I answer not, and I return no more.

The little child is safe from ordinary dangers in the care of the faithful dog. But neither the dog's fidelity, nor the mother's love can guard a child from those invisible foes that lurk in air, water and food—the germs of disease. Children need to be specially watched and cared for. When there is loss of appetite, lassitude and listlessness in a child, an attempt should be made to revive the appetite and rally the spirits. In Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery parents have found an invaluable medicine for children. Its purely vegetable character and absolute freedom from alcohol and narcotics commend it to every thoughtful person. It is pleasant to the taste, unlike the foul oils and their emulsions offered for children's use. "Golden Medical Discovery" makes pure blood and sound flesh, and absolutely eliminates from the system the poisons which feed disease.

Give the little ones Dr. Pierce's Pleas-ant Pellets when a laxative is needed. They're easy to take and don't gripe.

A REDUCED TAX RATE.

Any reduction in the tax rate is welcome to the announcement that the rate this so the announcement that the rate this year will be twenty cents less than last will please the tax-payers. It is not much, to be sure, but it is better than an increase, which Boston has, although it elected a Mayor on the issue of more economy in city affairs. Cities are expensive affairs, and the general rule is that any change in party management means an inchange in party management means an in-change in party management means an increased expenditure.

Here in Newton we are fortunate in having no parties in city affairs, so we do not have a large crowd of hungry partisans anxious to get in, and cur affairs are in general well and wisely managed. Mayor Wilson has been an economical mayor, but even his cine watch over the finances has even his close watch over the finances has even his close watch over the mances has failed to make any great reduction in the tax rate. There are so many regular expenses that have to be met anyway, such as the care of streets, schools, the regular departments and interest money, that there is probably not much chance of a material reduction in the tax rate until big material reduction in the tax rate until one payments are made on the city debt, which will be in three or four years.

The assessors seem to have done their duty well, as they have found an increase of $1,215,500, which is something unusual for this year. In new buildings there is for this year. In new buildings there is an increase of $924,950, in spite of the very dull times in luiding oper-tions, owing to high prices caused by the operations of the trusts. Probaby a good deal of this increase, however, was on buildings be gun before the present year, as the builders says there has been very little doing in Nawton this year, as in all other places.

ers says there has been very inthe doing in Newton, this year, as in all other places. On land the assessors made an increase of $278,350, and in personal property there is a very slight gain, only $10,300 in spite of alleged great prosperity of the country and the increased prices of stocks. But and the increased prices of stocks. But the great majority of personal property es-capes taxation under our present system, and the assessors have to guess at what each man is worth, and if there is no kick they feel sure that they did not guess high create.

A good many of the towns and cities bout us report a loss in valuation, so that Newton can think itself fortunate in find-ng an increase.

THE CONGRESSIONAL NOMINATION

The only development in the contest for The only development in the context the Congressional Nomination from this district this week, is that Mr. Fred H. Williams has organized his campaign committee of men from Brookline and towns in Norfolk county, and is evidently determined to keep the office in Brookline if he that they would get several delegates in Newton, but the mere publication of it is sufficient to defeat the scheme. Newton men are so united in favor of Mr. Powers that the agents of the Brookline candidate would be treated without ceremony if they came here openly. Newton is so united life years, that there is no chance for a division, and no delegate who is not openly for Mr. Powers would stand the slight-set show in any canner.

Rev. Ezra P. Gould.

Rev. Ezra

Republicans regret the stand Mr. Williams has taken, as they think his anxiety to hold office casts discredit upon their town, and will hurt it in the future when Brookline wishes to take advantage of the locality argument.

A NEW weekly paper has been started in Boston by the Republican League of Massachusetts, with the secretary as editor. It takes for its motto President Tucker's query "why not start in with the idea of making a good politician instead of a reformer?" but the trouble is that there are so many ideas of what a; "good politician' is. Some think he is a man who will get collect for his followers, together with fat is. Some think he is a man who will get offices for his followers, together with fat contracts and other perquisites. This seems to be the idea of this new weekly paper, for its leading editorial is in defense of the theory that the spoils belong to the victors. This is what certain civil officers we sent to Cuba thought, and they acted upon it too literally and are now in jail. Politician is certainly an unfortunate name for a paper, as it has come to mean a man for a paper, as it has come to mean a man who is in politics simply for what he can make out of it, without any troublesome ideas of statesmanship, or honesty, or any-thing else. This is hardly what President thing eise. In its is natury what resident Tucker meant, when he used the word, and if this newspaper sails under such a flag its voyage will be very brief. As showing the politician's idea of things, the paper is interesting, and it makes all sorts of revela tions of what the machine contemplates. It wants General Curtis Guild elected to the Senate and Senator floar retired, which is certainly a poor return for the Senator's recent recantation of all his serious convic-tions. The paper thinks that Gen, Guild would be a fit companion for Senator Lodge, and it thinks this is complimentary to Gen. Guild! Evidently the machine has lots of work cut out for it this fall.

THE BOSTON POST had an interesting in The Boston For had an interesting interview, this week, with George Fox Tucker of New Bedford, the reporter of decisions of the Massachusetts Supreme Court. Mr. Tucker was a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress from his district, but unfortunately he is a Quaker and has some uncomfortable prejudices against things as they are. After looking the field over, and having some practical experience with local politicians, he retired in disgust. He is very outspoken and says his decision not to run is due to the Republican corruption in that part of the state. He touches the local sore spot when he mentions the New Bedford bridge case, and it would seem as if here were a scandal which ought to be probed and ex-posed to the world. Money is evidently plenty in connection with that affair. The plenty in connection with that affair. The architect got over $50,000 out of it for his commission. Even at the late session of Legislature, according to the lobby returns, the counsel in the bridge case, Thomas F. Desmond, got, or charged $11,500 for his services, which was by all odds the largest fee paid to any one at the State House, as far as the returns show. Fred S. Stanley, who was also on the case, gave his services for nothing. The case is very singular and the bridge will cost over $1,000,000. Tucker puts his finger on this case, also on the produgal expenses by the late Congressman Simpkins and says that local politics generally are so corrupt that he will not try for Congress this year. Mr he will not try for Congress this year, Mr. Tucker thinks that things in the state are in the same condition, and evidently Quakers have no place in modern politics, although Mr. Tucker says he will vote for McKinley.

The Observant Citizen in the Boston
Post says that "The best time to go on a vacation is always a perplexing question.

I never get a vacation, but I often discuss the question. The main point comes over the early or late summer. Should it be at the start to freshen you for the heat of a city, or should it come at the end, when you certainly need a rest? It shally the etty, or should it come at the end, when you certainly need a rest? Usually the question is answered by the dictates of the head of the firm. I asked a well known man the other day which he preferred. "Confidentially," he said, "the time 1 want it most is the day I get back from it."

It is interesting to see some of our local automobilists when a policeman appears in the distance. The brakes are brought into play and by the time they are passing the bluecoat they have slowed down from forty miles an hour, more or less, to the legal limit. If the policemen should hide habind have been in section sections as the behind bushes in certain sections as they used to do on the Jamaica Plain parkway, they could help to reduce the tax rate of the city several times a day. In fact, the ordinance in regard to speed seems to be disregarded by most of the auto men.

PERRY S. HEATH is sending out circu mined to keep the office in Brookline if he can.

It is said that the committee has boasted that they would get several delegates in Newton, but the mere publication of it is sufficient to defeat the scheme. Newton men are so united in favor of Mr. Powers that the agents of the Brookline candidate strength of the Bro lity, and it is calculated to do me

METROPOLITAN PARKS.

HEARINGS ON APPORTIONING THE COST OF THE SYSTEM.

The commission appointed by the supreme court upon the apportionment of the cost of the Metropolitan Park system have been holding hearings this week, and all the towns and cities have been represented, presenting their views as to the basis of the apportionment. Poor towns think that the valuation should be the basis, but to this week towns as Brock line strengents which portionment. Foot towns think that the valuation should be the basis, but to this such towns as Brookline strenuously object, and urge that population should be the basis. The Brookline representative also urged that nearness to the parks should enter into the apportionment, and asserted that they were all so far away they were of no benefit to Brookline. Every town and city of course is looking out solely for their own interests,

City Solicitor Slocum of Newton said the area of his city is 20 square miles and the population 27,590. There is about one-third of an acre to each person. The city park areas are 160 acres. The boulevards are eight miles in length.

The metropolitan park takings in Newton amount to 118 acres.

He read a table of the distances from his city to the various metropolitan parks,

Mr. Slocum submitted that population should have substantial consideration in the apportionment. The parks are for the people. He did not think the legislature intended to place the whole burden on valuation.

The good influences of the Allen school has been often attested to by prominent men who have been stulents there, and it promises to continue its successful career, under the active conduct of Dr. Frank H. under the active conduct of Dr. Frank II.

Wood and Mr. Albert E. Bailey, both graduates of Harvard, of successful experience as teachers. They are endorsed by President Eliot and professors at Harvard, and by Profs. Burton and Weld of the Institute of Technology. Mr. N.T. Allen will continue in close connection with the school, which he has done so much to make a helpful influence to students, and Miss Allen, a graduate of Smith College, and Miss Jewett of the Mass. Normal Art school will continue in their respective departments. The Allen school has a recort of half a century of successful work, and its graduates number over 4,000, scattered over every state in the Union, and in many foreign countries. Newton people will be interested in having it maintain its high standing among preparatory schools of the highest grade, as it has come to be one of the institutions of the city, and it offers many special advantages to Newton pupils.

AN INTERVIEW WITH KRUGER.

ABOUT RHODES, CHAMBERLAIN, ENGLISH CAPITAL AND THE PROFITS FROM THE RAND GOLD MINES.

(Allen Langre in Ainslee's Magazine.)
"Mr. Kruger," I asked, do you hold Mr, Rhodes responsible for this war?"
"Yes, he replied, 'I see the shadow of one large head and then two smaller ones near by. I find no traces of Rhodes where Milner and Chamberlain are not. These three made the war, They will not be content until they see all Africa under the British flar."

mere Aimer and Chamberlain are not. These three made the war, They will not be content until they see all Africa under the British flaz."

"This brought up a most interesting feature of the South African question, namely foreign capitalism and the gold nines contention. The world has been told through various sources that the Boer legislation and manazement have elogged the progress of this industry, and it has been pointed out but for English capital the Transwal wealth would never have been developed.

"This is what Mr. Kruger has to say:

"My country has been a god send to promoters like Rh des and Barnato. Both of them came out lere poverty-stricken and without influence. Now they talk as though they had put the quartz into the earth, and vanut about their money developing the had. But what did they do? Why, persuaded the public in England and Europe to invest so generously that not in y these adventures of the seed of the content of the public of th

"What has been the cost thus 'ar?" I ventured.

"Mr. Kruger hesitated at this, but after consulting hurriedly with several advisers, replied, About four million pounds.

"At that rate, then, you can keep up the conflict indefinitely."

"Yes with the help of the Almighty. We are getting one million pounds out of the mines every mouth. With this we can buy all our foodstuffs, and as for ammunition, that we can make right here, every thing from a Manaer builet to a Long Tom shell. Fortunately, the English were kind enough to give us enough supplies at clear-cost to feed our army six months. You see we grow everything here except stuar and cone, and they come through Delagoal

The Philippine Speculation.

(New York Herald.)

Feeble attempts are made to show that our trade with the islands is improving. It would be very curious if the presence of more than 60,000 troops, supported there at more than 60,000 troops, supported there at the expense of the American peopl 1, did not necessitate increased importations. As a matter of fact, the entire purchases of the islands from the rest of the world before the war did not exceed on the average six 4000,000 a year, while the exports averaged less than $17,000,000. That is to say, we have already sunk in the archipelago a sum equal to the entire value of its exportable products during a period of 11 years, and the attempt to bring the Filipinos under subjection is still costing us four times as much as all the products of the islands are worth—not the profit on the products, but their gross value.

To say nothing of the principles involved or the loss of inestimable lives, the widows and orphans scattered over our land, the thousands of brave tellows who will return with shattered health to drag out miserable lives—to say nothing of all this, nor of the unspeakable miseries inflicted upon the Filipinos because they refuse to accept an imperialistic yoke and claim the right of self government, it would seem that as a mere cold-blooded business proposition we are engaged in a very bad speculation. the expense of the American peoul , did

WAS A PHANTOM OF DELIGHT

She was a phantom of delight
When first the gleamed upon my sight;
A lovely apparition sent
To be a moment's ornament;
Her eyes as stars of twilight fair,
Like twilight's, too, her dusky hair,
But all things else about ther drawn
From Maytime and the cheerful dawn;
A dancing shape and image gay
To haunt, to startle and waylay.

I saw her upon nearer view,
A spirit, yet a woman too!
Her incusehold notions light and free
And steps of virgin liberty;
A countenance in which did metals to be a second to the second Sweet records, promises as sweet; A creature not too bright or good For human nature's daily food; For transient sorrows, simple wiles, Praise, blame, love, kisses, tears and smiles

And now I see with eyes serene
The very pulse of the machine,
A being breathing thoughful breath,
A trayler between life and death;
The reason firm, the temperate will,
Endurance, foresight, strength and skill;
A perfect woman, nobly planned,
To warn, to comfort and command,

THE LLAMA'S CURSE

A Story of Tibetan Magic.

The waiter brought us drink and the change out of Tom Martin's half sovereign. I pushed the latter over to-ward him with my left hand, and with ward him with my left hand, and with the right raised the water bottle to dilute my whisky.

"Your change, Tom," said I.

"Yes, of course," said Tom, who was absorbed in the story he was telling me. He put out his hand as if to pick the money up, but seemed to remember something, for he drew his hand back suddenly.

"Good heaven!" said he, "and I had forgotten that."

He took out his handkerchief, wrap ped it around the foreinger of his right hand and then, with the fore-finger so covered, gently scraped the money toward him, piece by piece, and earnestly looked at each coin.

"Now, look here, Tom," said I, "this is a very pretty story that you have been telling me, but don't try and give it an air of reality by a performance like that is a story that you have been telling me, but don't try and give it an air of reality by a performance like that."

"You can believe it or not, just as you like," said Tom, "but I tell you, you like," said Tom, "but I tell you, Fred, that piece of money is coming along this way some day. I have seen it once and—I left it on the table. You don't eatch me touching any coin while I am certain that one is in circulation. But let me conclude what I

"Urga is one of the most peculiar places you could think of, and one of our first duties was to present ourselves to the grand llama. We had to selves to the grand llama. We had to get a palanquin, for it was only meet that Europeans of our importance should go in state, and it was while en route that we suddenly came to the praying mill. This was a sort of 'roundabout,' with huge wooden posts sticking out at the side, which every Euchdlist passing was supposed to take bedd of and much the mill round at hold of and push the mill round at

"What caused Phil to do what he did then I don't know, but something seemed to impel him to get out of the palanquin, make a run over to the mill, catch hold of one of the wooden posts and commence to push it around at its topmost pace. The square where the mill was erected was pretty well filled with host of the square where the mill was erected was pretty well filled. with people, and when some of those saw what had been done they came saw what had been done they came rushing toward us, shouting and ges-ticulating. "Oh. anything rather than the came over the palanquin, dragged us out, and for two minutes there was the liveliest fight on record going on. We got the worst of it and, bruised, bleeding and insensible, were carted off to prison.

"We were taken before the grand llama, and then and there he ordered us to be sent across the Siberian frontier with the utmost dispatch. The next day we were hurried along under an excort of soldiers, and it was not long before we arrived at the frontier, the town of Miamatshin, which really is the Mongollan portion of Kiakta. We were taken along to the yellow posts which marked the actual frontier, and there the soldlers of the llama stopped. We were removed from the palanquin in which we had been carried and were commanded to sit down a few yards from the posts. Not 20 feet away were the black and white posts of the Russian Cossnek who stood there on sentry.

"Town was dead and cold, and in his right hand there were 27 coins. I look at the top one; it was a German stopped. We were removed from the posts of the Russian constant for the the soldlers of the llama from the posts of the Russian constant for the the soldlers of the limit and spread the posts of the Russian constant for the theory of the Russian Cossnek who stood there on sentry.

"Our guards spread themselves out, then there came forward a Ruddhist priest, who began to talk to us in a jargon which, of course, we could not understand. Our first duty when we were in Kiakta was to gc straight to the governor and lay our complaint before him. He was agitat ed when he heard of the ceremony at the frontier, and told us that the Budthe frontier, and told us that the Bud-dhist priest had put into circulation two coins which had received the sun god's course and that these coins would circulate throughout the world, harm-less to everybody except the two they were destined for. We should never know when they were coming; we should take them in the ordinary way; we should handle them, but only for one moment, the next moment we should be dead."

One day Tom sent for me, and it was to tell me that he was going to be married. This struck me as something married. This struck me as something peculiar, for I had thought Tom Mor ton was one of the last men likely to fall in love. The wedding duly came off, everybody was pleased, and Tom and his bride went away to the south and his bride went away to the south of France. A few more weeks rolled by and Tom returned. There was to be a reception at their London house, and the invitation which was sent me was one which I could not well refuse. In the evening I had the opportunity of a chat with Tom. We had gone out on the balcony, which overlooked the garden, and there I purposely made reference to the superstition which he had for the llama's coin.

"Perhaps," said I, "now that you have gone unscathed all these years, you are beginning to lose faith in the

"Well, to tell you the truth," said Tom, "I am getting a little shaky about it, and when one begins to reason superstition on any subject is likely to get knocked out. It has struck me that, after all, it may be but mere show you something."

I rose, threw my eigarette end away and followed him. We went along the corridor to the drawing room, which was crowded, and even as we entered I heard Mrs. Morton's voice.

"I really do believe it will be such fun." she was saying. "Here comes Tom, and now we will try. A coin, if you please, from each of you. Let me see—how many are there here?—26. Good! Then I want 26 coins. Now, Tom." she said, "take off that wretched glove and let us demonstrate wretched glove and let us demonstrate that you can touch money with your ungloved hand."

engine team was kept standing at the pole of the engine, hitched up, the horse belonging to the other being in his stall. The reason was extremely simple. Some men on electrical wires were occupied in front of the horse's stall, where in case of an alarm they would have offered more or less impediment to his free movement from the stall to the engine. About the middle of the seventeenth century the fully became known in Germany, and a scientist named Gesner gives the first description of this flower. First only the yellow variety was known, and then other colors were produced by crossing. The Dutch, particularly the citizens of Haarlem, produced the most wonderful yardeties of duced the most wonderful varieties of this flower and obtained enormous prices for them.

In 1634 the trade in tulips assumed a peculiar turn. It degenerated into a peculiar turn. It degenerated into a sort of a game of chance, so that in 1673 the authorities felt called upon to interfere and to issue edicts against extravagance in tulips, as they former-ly had against trains and laces. This interference would seem to be justified if one reads that in 1606 a single flower of this sort, called the Viceori, was paid for with two cargoes of wheat, four cargoes of rye, four fat oxen, eight fat hogs, 12 fat sheep, two casks eight fat hogs, 12 lift sheep, two cases of wine, four barrels of beer, two tons of butter, 1,000 pounds of cheese, a complete bed, a suit of clothing and a silver tankard.

Another builb, the Semper Augustus, was paid for with 4,600 gold guilders and a coach with a double team of barrels. In Marslem the tuils create

In Haarlem the tulip craze reached its height in the decade from 1630 to 1640, when a price of 12,000 gold guilders (about $9,000 American money) is recorded for a single bulb.

A Jote of Sydney Smith's.
On the occasion of a dinner Sydney Smith was the guest, and when the evening was over the host thanked the wit heartily for the entertainment he had afforded. "I shall not forget you, Mr. Smith," he added. "Thank you. Take care you don't forget yourself tomorrow (it was Saturday) in church," rejoined Smith, whereat the host, Kershaw by name, rather bridled up.

"I hope, sir, I know how to behave "Well" said Smith "I nope, sir, I know now to behave myself in church!" "Well," said Smith good temperedly, "if I catch you smiling I will call you by name." "You may," rejoined the visitor. "The thing is absurd. I will give you a donation to the York hospital if it happens."

On the ensuing morning Smith read the prayers reverently, as he always did, then ascended the pulpit, looked around the church and rested his eye on the visitor whose name was Ker-shaw. That gentleman said afterward that he did not know what possessed him, but so it was he gave a broad smile. Thereupon the preacher was seized with a violent inclination to sneeze, and, applying his handkerchief with suitable action, he sounded "ker-ker k-ker-shaw" three times over.— From "The Reminiscences of Half a Century," by R. #### A Theory

A Theory
"I wonder how Solomon became the wisest man on carth."
"That's easily explained," replied the man with the intellectual but worried face.
"You see, Solomon had a large number of families, and of course his children asked questions, just the same as all children do. I have no doubt Solomon was like anyone else, and had a certain dislike to exposing his ignorance. When one of his children would ask him something he didn't know, he'd make believe he wanted a drink of water and then go out and look in the back of the dictionary. I shouldn't be surprised if he were compelled to do this fifty or sixty times day. Under the circumstances a man couldn't help getting wise."—Washington Star.

Gentlemen:—I must say in regard to GRAIN-O that there is nothling better or healthier. We have used it for years. My brother was a great coffee drinker. He was taken sick and the doctor said coffee was the cause of it, and told us to use GRAIN-O. We got a package but did not like it at first, but now would not be without it. My brother has been well ever since we started to use it. Yourstruly,

THIS WORLD IS ALL A FLEETING SHOW.

This world is all a fleeting show, For man's illusion given; he smiles of joy, the tears of woe, eccitful shine, deceitful flow, There's nothing true but heaven!

And false the light on glory's plume,
As fading hues of even,
And love and hope and beauty's bloom
Are blossoms gathered for the tomb—
There's nothing bright but heaven!

Poor wanderers on a stormy day, From wave to wave we're driven, And fancy's flash and reason's ray Serve but to light the troubled way; There's nothing calm but heaven!

—Thomas Moore,

THE EGOIST.

Cecil Arthur Dovely could not under stand why he made no progress with Mary Barclay. His position as the chief dispenser of pills and postage stamps in the biggest drug store of a country town had given him an exaggerated idea of his own importance. He was not a particularly bad looking young man, but was very conceited in young man, but was very conceited in his manner. His broad, high forehead his manner. His broad, high forehead was surmounted by his carrot colored hair brushed a la pompadour; his eyes, a light blue, were lacking in strength and expression, and his dress was just a trifle too flashy for the station in life he had been called upon to fill. To crown all, he owned a horse and bugcrown all, he owned a horse and bug-gy—that charmed possession which in rural communities so enhances one's prestige with the eligible young ladies. (Cecil, who was not a bad fellow at heart, had kept the girls of Rossville and their anxious mothers guessing and their anxious mothers guessing for a long time, and the news that he had been offered a partnership in his employers' store did not lessen femi-nine interest in him. He used to ride around the circle of Rossville femininaround the circle of Rossville feminin-ity and select whom he would to go "buggy riding" with him on a Sunday afternoon. There was one young lady in the town who resisted Dovely's wiles, or, rather, those of his horse and buggy, and the prospect of a part-nership in a partnership, and she it was whom Cecil, with no other motive at first than perversity, determined to

One day he decided on a grand attack upon the fortress of Mary's heart. He wrote for permission to call on a cerwrote for permission to call on a certain evening, and received it. Thus encouraged, he awalted the event which would mark him victor or vanquished. He scarcely hoped for the former; he dreaded the latter. He sought to embellish his language with quotations from the poets and studied the most effective manner in which to exploit his many captivating qualities.

It is, therefore, needless to say that when he called on her he talked principally about himself. He was, however, quite puzzled at the sudden and energetic interest that Mary seemed energetic interest that Mary seemed to manifest in all that he said; but, to manifest in an that he said, but, encouraged by it, he soared into giddy heights of eloquent self exploitation. He wound up the whole monologue with a passionate avowal of his love for Mary and an almost tearful entreaty for her heart and hand in return treaty for her heart and hand in return. Mary was genuinely interested in Ceeli, and, in consequence, he was the very last person in the world she would have suspect it. So she tried to simulate indifference by affecting a sort of platonic feeling for him. Such a regard, however, did not come up to Dovely's requirements, and when he objected to being side tracked from the main line of love to the siding of sisterly affection and demanded a direct respective to his appeal Mary showed an response to his appeal Mary showed an response to his appeal Mary snowed an inclination to temporize. In brief, she asked him to call upon her a week later, and if, after mature consideration, he were of the same mind, she might think the matter over seriously. Dovely protested that his present frame of mind was not the result of which impulse but the full blown. frame of mind was not the result of sudden impulse, but the full blown flower which she had planted in his bosom with the first glance of her eyes long ago. He vowed that the end of time would find his love unaltered and unalterable—all of which he had read to the way to prepare our Frayr Man His In "How to Propose, or Every Man His Own Lovemaker." Mary, however, remained firm, and Dovely went back to his pills and plasters. It would be vain to describe the battles fought between hope and fear, exuitation and despair, in the young drug clerk's brain during that week. He was sustained somewhat by his inordinate vanity, but beneath all lay the suspicion, ever so faint, perhaps, that Mary had been laughing at him. When poor Dovely pulled the beil handle of the Barclay house on the appointed night, he was in "How to Propose, or Every Man His Own Lovemaker." Mary, however, on the appointed night, he was house on the appointed night, he was so full of nervous uncertainty that his knees trembled and his heart seemed to smite his ribs in the very terror of doubt.

The door was opened by Mary, who resided him with such a very least of the control of received him with such a pleased look and cordial pressure of her soft, warm and that his conceit, coward that it was, as soon as it believed all danger to be passed, mounted again to the most conspicuous heights and crowed more lustily than before. The magic of her glance transformed him from the expedient to the prince, and he the suppliant to the prince, and he strutted across the hall to the drawing room and seated himself in the best chair, prepared to receive homage from the girl.

Mary expressed great joy at his kindmary expressed great joy at his and ness in calling and archly confessed that she had suffered not a little fear that something might detain him. These delicate compliments caused Cecil considerable chest expansion, and when Mary humbly begged to be excused for a few minutes while she attended her mother, who was ill, he tended her mother, who was ill, he granted her the brief respite with al-most royal graciousness. When she had gone Cecil picked up a magazine and was complacently perusing its prosy and academic pages when he was startled by the sound of voices in the same room with himself. He looked about quickly and, seeing no o..e, experienced a sensation of fear. As the sounds proceeded Dovely sat in mute amazement. For a moment he suspected that he was going mad. He was superstitious, but ghosts, according to his way of thinking, always manifested themselves to the eyes rather than the ears and with sbrouds rather than dialogues. There was something uncanny in the sounds, too, as if issuing from a metal casket. Dovely would have attempted an investigation, but very fear held him vestigation, but very fear held him rooted to the chair. He could not escape, and he began to feel that he had been selected by some restless spirits as the custodian of their confi-dences. The sound of the voices at first several like an eake of samething first seemed like an echo of something he had heard before, and this circumstance deepened his perplexity. The conversation seemed to be between a man and a woman. The man's tones were imperious, those of the woman half flattering, half concillatory.

"You know men are such deceivers," "You know men are such deceivers," the voice was saying. "You play with a woman's heart as a child does with a toy. Then you look for another that is newer to you, though perhaps not to game there are a property of the pro some others, and another fellow, perhaps has thrown aside and bruised the heart that you pick up, comes along and picks up the very heart that you have thrown aside."

A soft laugh of tolerant condescension followed this speech.

"Oh, that's the old story with wom-"Oh, that's the old story with women," replied the man, "you are all wrong; you don't understand man.

Your feminine minds can't grasp the depth and breadth of his nature. I have tried often to make some women

Here a soft little sigh, like a zephyr touching the maple leaves, stole across the room, and then the imperious tones

"I know women. I've seen a good deal of life. Didn't I live more than a year in New York?"
The perspiration stood out in beads on Dovely's forchead as he stared in the direction of the voices and clutched the arms of the chair in which he sat. It seemed like a nightmare. The echo was getting clearer and clearer. He hated the dreadful sounds, but felt that anted the dreadful sounds, but telt that he must suffer the ordeal to the end. And memory told him that the end was yet a long way off and the path there-to full of thorns of humiliation and shame for him. He began to feel like a disembodied spirit that stands beside a disembodied spirit that stands beside its erstwhile prison and contemplates with horror the ravages that debauch-ery has wrought on its once beautiful form. But through the nightmare he was sustained by the sweet reflection that he was not irreclaimable and that that he was not irrectainable and that this scourging was at worst only a se-vere lesson from which he would emerge a better man.

The imperious tones of the man and the conciliatory, even pleading, tones of the woman went on., With deep humiliation he followed the mysterious dialogue to the growing point of his dialogue to the crowning point of his datague to the crowning point of his own shame. He could hear the soft, solicitous tones of the woman leading the man on to make a fool of himself. And he heard the man following with braggadocio and bombast right up to the very pitfall that had been prepared for him. The grandiloquent and prefor him. The grandiloquent and pre-posterous phrases in which a proposal was next couched struck him as being so comically conventional that he would have laughed aloud had not the humiliating reflection of his own con duct covered him instead with shame. Then he heard a sweet voice asking him to think it over and then come back in a week, if he were still of the same mind. Even then he did not realize the truth. He wondered if he were not asleep and this an awful dream. The volume that he had been holding fell from his knee and startled him. He put his hand to his forehead and brushed the beads of perspiration away and said: "Thank God, it was a dream." duct covered him instead with shame dream.

At that moment Mary entered the room and smilingly apologized for keeping him waiting. She drew a has-sock over to him, and, seating herself, upon it and looking up in his eyes, said: "I'm awfully sorry I kept you waiting. Arthur; I know you must have been so lonely. But there"—she stopped suddenly and knitted her brows—'I really believe you have been spleen "I really believe you have been asleep and dreaming. You look it, quite."

The poor young man took her hand in both his own and looked fixedly at her. "I don't know whether I've been asleep or not, but I certainly must have been dreaming—such a horrid dream"—and he passed his hand quickly over his eyes as if to wipe away the last his eyes as it to wipe away the last traces of a nightmare. Then he took her hand again. "Mary," he said slow-ly, "you told me to come back tonight if I were still of the same mind as when I was here last. I have come to tell you that I am not of the same mind." Mary looked surprised and would have spoken, but Dovely broke in quickly: "It is not that I don't love you as much as ever—aye, a great deal more than ever before—but I feel that I have been a foel; that I'm not worthy of you, and that it was a presumption for me to ask you to mary me. I believe that I can be a more modest and sensible man, and that I want you to give me the opportunity to prove it before giving me your answer."

Mary's answer was worthy of her brain and her heart:
"Arthur," she said, "what you have said proves that you are all right, and I'll take you on faith." Next morning the phonograph was sent back to town, it having succeeded in eliminating forever the capital "I" from the personality of Cecil Arthur Dovely, and the fun of it was that Cecil thought he did it himself.—Chicago Times-Herald. Mary looked surprised and would

THE HEADLESS HORSEMAN.

An Incident That Happened In the Franco-Prussian War.

It is a peculiar circumstance that hardened and trained troops will go through a long fight surrounded by all the horrors that are inseparable from war without flinching and with the utmost apparent callousness, and the same men will be struck terrified by a single trifling incident.

single trifling incident.

Every war of any importance, particularly wars between civilized nations, is prolific in incidents of trivial character in themselves, but so unusual and unnatural that they appeal to the natural institutive between the property of the propert unnatural that they appeal to the natural instinctive horror of men more suddenly and intensely than perhaps the main terrors of days of carnage and surrounding scenes of suffering. Such an incident is the one, for example, which occurred at the battle of Worth in the early days of the Franco-Pressian war.

In the heat of the great battle a wing In the heat of the great battle a wing of the Prussian army was charged by the regiments of French culrassiers in the hope of turning the wing and facilitating the falling back of the French infantry. But the culrassiers were driven back by the unflinching Prussians. Again the culrassiers charged, and again they were driven back by the withering fire of shot and shell.

again, and as the enemy waited for again, and as the enemy water for them to draw nearer a horrible, blood freezing terror selzed the Prussians, and for a moment it looked as if they would turn and fly or be cut down without defending themselves. But in a moment they had pulled themselves together and beaten back for the third and last time the gallant culrassiers.

The sight that terrified the Prussians appears nothing very much in black and white. It was a regiment of culrassiers led at a dashing rate toward them by a headless officer sitting upright in his saddle and apparently encouraging his men after having been decapitated by a cannon ball.—Cincinnati Enquir-

WHAT ARE VOLCANOES?

They Are Not Burning Mountains a We Understand That Term, "What are volcanoes?"

"What are voicanoes?"
Nine out of every ten persons would immediately have an answer of some sort to the question above, for have they not a lively remembrance of having learned in their schoolbooks that "a volcano is a burning mountain, from the summit of which are sent out smoke and flames?' This popular fancy has been exploded by scientists, whose work is to explode popular fancies.

In the first place, volcanoes are not necessarily mountains. In reality they are just the reverse—that is, holes in the earth's crust. Out of these are thrown the materials which, accumu-lating, form the heaps which we popularly call mountains.

These are, then, the result and not the cause of the action. Neither are they "burning," as we understand the term. There is no combustion, nor any action we might reasonably call "burning."

The action need not necessarily take The action need not necessarily take place at the summit, for eruptions are just as frequent at the sides or even at the base. The so called "smoke" is nothing more or less than the clouds of condensing steam which are formed on every ocasion when an eruption of

Lastly, the "flames," so called, are merely the reflection of the mass of molten rock and material inside the crater on the clouds of steam above, thus appearing as a glowing light friction, too, set up by the motion of the materials causes electricity, and hence the lightning discharges which add to the illuminating effect.—Pearson's Magazine.

The dandy's dress consisted of a blue coat, with brass buttons, leather breeches and top boots, and it was the fashion to wear a deep, stiff white cravat, which prevented you from seeing your boots while standing.

All the world watched Brummel to imitate him, and order their clothes of the tradesman who dressed that sub-the tradesman who dressed that sub-lime dandy. One day a youthful beau approached Brummel and said: "Permit me to ask you where you get your blacking?" "Ah!" replied Brummel, gazing com-placently at his boots, "my blacking positively ruins me. I will tell you in confidence. It is made with the finest champague!"

An Unexplainable Fact.

"The old superstition," said a leading physician, "that when death lays his hand on us our bodly health is made perfect has now been substantiated by the most advanced medical science. People dying of paralysis and bodly ailments which have kept them confined to their couches for years and paisfed their limbs so that movement was impossible regain all their physical strength just as they cross the borderland. No; we can't explain why. All we know is such is the case."

Wanted to Remain Popular.
"I have only one request to make before I go," said the prominent Kansan on his deathbed, "and that is that my real friends will shoot the man who, real friends will shoot the man who, after I am gone, starts a movement to erect a statue of me by popular subscription. I am supposed to be popular, and after I am gone I don't want that idea broken."—Wichita Eagle.

—An Italian named Cloude Tulone, with a loaded revolver in his possession, gave the police of division 3 considerable trouble last Sunday evening. About 9 o'clock while a number of Italian occupants of Cousens' block, on Langley road, were enjoying a social time, one of the party became disorderly in his behavior. He was ordered from the rooms, and thereupon began firing a revolver. All the residents of that section became alarmed and appealed to the police. Patrolman Mariner, who had made a professional visit to the same place earlier in the evening, arrived on the scene and placed the obnoxious fellow under arrest. In court before Judge Kennedy, Morday morning, Tulone was sentenced to serve thirty days in the house of correction.

DROWNING IN CHARLES RIVER LAST SUN-DAY MADE FIFTH ON NEWTON SECTION WITHIN EIGHT DAYS

Five drownings within eight days is the sad record of the Newton portion of the upper Charles river. Sunday, Richard Wildbur, 24, the fifth victim, lost his life

There were no witnesses of the accident, which occurred at a comparatively narrow part of the river within a short distance of the Ætna mills, Nonantum. It was precisely the same place that Samuel P., Thrasher, secretary for ex-Mayor H, E. Cobb, lost his life on Aug. 23, 1898.

cisely the same place that Samuel P. Thrasher, secretary for ex-Mayor II. E. Cobb, lost his life on Aug. 23, 1898.

Wildbur was employed as a barber in Newtonville and had been in this city but three weeks. Formerly he resided in Boston, but during his Newton residence made his home with Mr. Everett Gordon at 153 Linwood avenue, Newtonville.

About 9 Sunday morning Wildbur left his boarding place in company with two young sons of Mr. Gordon. He accompanied them to the river bank off California street. The boys announced that they were about to go in swimming and asked Wildbur to join them. He declined, informing them he could not swim.

The boys entered the water, leaving Wildbur on the bank. They had preceeded nearly a quarter of a mile up the river when a shout attracted them. Looking backward they failed to see Wildbur either in the water or on the bank. Returning as rapidly as possible to the spot where they had left him they found only his clothes.

The boys became alarmed and ran to the house of E. P. Burnham, who lives in the vicinity. He, with Mr. Jess Hammond of Danversport, hurried to the scene, and the latter dove for the body, and with Mr. Burnham's help got it to shore. Efforts of resuscitation lailed and Dr. Donnel, who was the suggestion of suicide, that Wildbur was endeavoring to swim when he reached deep water or possibly a dangerous hole as there are said to be several in that part of the fiver.

Scarcely anything is known of Wildbur's antecedents here. His employer spoke well of him and it seems the young man had made a number of friends in Newton-ville.

A Night of Fires.

During the severest part of the heavy During the severest part of the neavy rain storm, which passed over this city between 9 and 10 Monday evening, accompanied by intense thunder and lightning, fire broke out in the barn on Claremont street owned and occupied by C. E. Lord in the rear of his estate. An alarm was rung in from box 13 at 9.40.

The fire was caused by lightning, and it The fire was caused by lightning, and it was but a short time after the barn was struck that it was all in flames. The coachman and another man removed with great difficulty two horses, several cows, carriages and other articles. The building was burned to the ground in an incredibly short time, and the efforts of the firemen proved further. Sweral tons of hav were short time, and the efforts of the firemen proved futile. Several tons of hay were ruined, and it is reported that some hens were burned to death.

The loss is estimated at about $2,000 and is partly covered by insurance.

At 12.30 a. m., Tuesday, box 117 was pulled for an incipient blaze in Mr. John Flood's house on Washington street, corner of Thoration street.

The family awoke shortly after midnight thind the rooms on the upper floor filled with smoke. With the assistance of Patronian McKell they removed two drawers from a bureau, the contents of which were busing. The damage was slight. #### Lieutenant Ryan's Birthday.

Lieut. John Ryan of police headquarters celebrated his 55th birthday anniversary last Saturday and was the recipient of many hearty congratulations. His 23 years of police service have won him many friends.

In connection with the birthday anni In connection with the birthday anniversary the lieutenant tells an interesting story. On Aug 25, 1864, his 19th birthday, he was a member of Hancock's 2nd corps, Miles' division, Meagher's Irish Brigade, which occupied the works at Reames' station, Virginia, of the Weldon railroad. The works had been formerly occupied by Wilson's cavalry, which was surround.

made its quarters. Along in the afternoon there were four attacks by the confederates. The first three were repulsed, but in the fourth the federals were driven out. Lieut. Ryan was wounded in the thigh, neck and foot. The federals lost 1600 men and several pieces of artillery.

He was a patient at the Emery hospital, Washington, until Dec. 13 of the same year. He started home on that day and met in the Washington airlived station the 18 remaining men of his regiment under command of Lieut. Col. Cartwright. Lieut. Ryan himself was the only representative of Co. C2s, Mass. Vols. 2nd brigade, 1st division, 2nd corps.

He passed a short time in his northern home and then reenlisted in Co. K, 61st Massachusetts, and was discharged in the field at Washington at the expiration of the civil war. At the close of the civil war he entered the 7th U, S. cavalry. In this command he served as 1st sergeant in Co. M, under Gen. Custer. With the latter general he fought in every engagement, skirmish and campaign participated in by the regiment, and was one of the relief expedition.

Lieut. Ryan claims the distinction of firing the first shot to open the great command. His own company lost 25 men out of 45, and all but 9 horses.

The lieutenant commanded the detail that buried 45 enlisted men and officers, among them Gen. Custer, Capt. Thomas W. Custer, Adjt. W. W. Cook and Capt. Calhoun.

Lieut. Ryan's service was from Dec. 13, 1861, until Dec. 21, 1876. During both regular and volunteer service he was in 44 enragements. As a member of the police force for 23 years he has served as patrolman, sergeant and lieutenant. The latter position he now holds.

Funeral of Rev. E. P. Gould.

Funeral services over the remains of Rev. Dr. Ezra P. Gould were held Satur, day afternoon at three o'clock from the chapel at Mount Auburn cemetery. The officiating clergymen were Rev. Dr. Batten, officiating clergymen were Rev. Dr. Batten, who was an assistant with Dr. Gould in the Philadelphia Divinity school and Rev. Dr. George W. Shinn of Newton, an old friend of the deceased. Music was rendered by a company of vested choristers from Cambridge. The interment was in the family lot. Among those present were Prof. Whitaker, an old college friend of the deceased, President George E. Merrill of Colgate University, Rev. Dr. Alvah Hovey and many Newton friends. A new book entitled The Theology of the New Testament, by Dr. Gould has just been published and an interesting fact in connection with this work is that after the author became too ill to write he dictated to his wise and daughter.

Society and "Society."

Everyone must have often noticed that in recent years the word "society" is fre-quently printed in quotation marks. Though we all know pretty well what that Though we all know preity well what that means, yet an occasional review may tend to form and maintain clear ideas on the subject which may serve as useful, practical principles of action.

The sentiments expressed by writers when the word is so printed show that they recognize the fact that society, like everything else that is real and valuable, may and often does have its counterfeit, the merely formal, technical and artificial, as distinguished from the substantial, essential and natural. What then is the essential difference between society and "society?"

as distinguished from the substantal, assential and natural. What then is the essential difference between society and "society" or, the society is simply mankind acting out the social instincts of the race, and always insisting on the superiority of essential substance to outward form, however, also insisting that what is good insubstance should manifest itself in agreeable form; while "society" is a limited company, willingly living and acting apart from society, principally through an evil preference of form and show to substance and reality.

Then, when we come to distinguish more closely between society and "society," must we not further say that society lives for reality, to enjoy each one's free, natural individuality at its best; that it cheerfully does the world's work, accepts every human face as a letter of introduction, sometimes, of warning, and, in its sincere and society and comply essentiale and realized conventional, technical or even mock society, lives to multiply forms and ceremonies, prides itself on knowing and obeying them to the uttermost, and in using them to bur out society, and lives more or less completely to be seen and talked about, to be amused, and to shirk the world's work. In which society, "in which can one best find and realize the high ideal, simplicity, reality, freedom, or what better individual or social ideal could any one strive for?"

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly curse nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. It is a godsend to weak, sickly, run-down people. Cure guaranteed. Only 30c. Sold by Arthur Hudson, druggist.

For World's Championship.

James L. McCusker, champion swimmer of America, and Percy Cavill, champion swimmer of Australia and England, have arranged a match consisting of five con-tests, which will take place on the Chutes, tests, which will take place on the Chutes, Huntington avenue, Boston, Sept. 8. The winner will prove himself champion of the world. They will swim one-fourth mile, 5 miles, 1 mile, 2 miles and one half mile in the order given. The purse will contain $1500. The lake will be deepened if feet and the course will cover 100 yards. The lake is much larger than baths in England in which are held the championship contests. Both Cavill and McCusker are training in this vicinity. The latter trots regularly over Newton streets and is under direction of Walter A. Smith life guard and swimming instructor at the Riverside Recreation grounds.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

TREMONT THEATRE—"One touch of nature makes the whole world kin"—such is the motto of Eleanor Merron's quaint rural drama, "The Darry Farm," which, after long runs in New York and Chicazo, has net with instantaneous success at the Tremont Theatre. The play contains that "touch of nature" to a remarkable degree, and therein lies its great charm. A simple, homely story of the loves and hates, the nobler and meaner natures, the tragic and comic occurrences, the joys and griefs, that help to make up the sum of existence in rural communities as elsewhere. This is the foundation of "The Dairy Farm." The characters are of the sort to be found in the simplest country life, The stage setting—an entire new outfit was prepared expressly for the Boston engagement—is extremely picturesque as well as realistic. Old furniture, old farming tools, old vehicles, horses, cows, sheep, chickens, are introduced to give the idea of actuality, and the people are dressed in the costumes of the period, fifty years ago. Boston playgoers have heartily endorsed the commendations of those of other cities, and the Tremont promises to be crowded during the three weeks that remain of the engagement. The attraction to follow "The Dairy Farm," on Sept. 24, is Anna Held, the famous Fr-nch comedienne and singer, who will appear, supported by a strong company, in that fundient of molern musical larces, "Papa's Wife."

"I had an interesting and unexpected ex perience with former President Cleveland during his last term," said a naval officer of high rank, "which taught me a lesson I ought to have known before, and illustrates how he sometimes went behind the record when he wished to inform himself as to the accuracy of official documents.

"I was at the time chief of a division in the Navy Department. A woman whose name it is not necessary to mention, used to annoy me greatly by soliciting my aid to secure her a place as charwoman in the War, State and Navy building. She would come to my office every day until her presence became exceedingly distasteful to me.

war, State and Navy building. She would come to my office every day until her presence became exceedingly distasteful to me.

"One day she produced a petition for a pension of $30 a month for disabilities alleged to have been incurred in an exposion in the old arsenal building in the reservation on the Potomac during the war, and where she had been employed in some capacity. The petition was headed by the name of an officer superior in rank to myself and bore half a dozen names of other persons of compartitive prominence in the capital. To get rid of her I affixed my signature. The private pension bill was finally taken up and passed by Congress. It was vetoed by Mr. Cleveland. Before the veto wished to the presence of the veto wished to the presence of the presence of the veto wished to the presence of the veto wished to know whether I was personally acquainted with the applicant. I said that I was not. He asked if I knew anything of her antecedents, the nature of her wornds, her past and present moral character, all of which I had venched for to the President by my signature to her petition. I was forced to confess to my great charrin, as I was personally acquainted with the President, that I knew nothing about her beyond what I had seen of her in my office.

"My polite inquisitor then informed me that private inquiries made at the instance of the President had proved the falsity of her petition in all respects save that she had been employed by the government at the time of the explosion. Nothing in the papers showed that she had been in the building at the time of the explosion, and she was otherwise unworthy of governmental assistance.
"In his veto message Mr. Cleveland made those in the War, State and Navy building feel uncomfortable by his sarcastic remarks about officers and gentlemen who testified to the character and worthiness of those of whom they knew nothing, and scored Congress for passing a bill with the proof of injuries absent from the record.

"In Mis veto message Mr. Cleveland made those in cord. "In Washington the petition-signing habit, formerly so much in vogue, has fallen into dislavor, and officials are very cautious about whose petitions they place their signatures.—Washington Star.

NEW CONTAGIOUS BUILDING.

PLANS ARE COMPLETED FOR ONE CON NECTED WITH THE NEWTON HOSPITAL -BIDS RECEIVED.

The Newton hospital plant is to be enlarged by the erection of a building for the treatment of infectious diseases. There will be an administration building with one ward and possibly two. This latter point has yet to be decided as it will be necessary to increase the appropriation (now $35,000), if two wards are constructed with the administration

The entire expense is to be met by the city, but there will be no decision or award of contract until Mayor Wilson returns from a vacation trip next week. The hospital authorities are said to be favorable from a vacation trip next week. The hospital authorities are said to be favorable to a larger building. What position the mayor will assume is not yet known.

Tuesday afternoon bids were opened in the office of Buildings Commissioner George H. Elder. The specifications provided for the erection of the administration building with one ward and with two wards. The figures: A. Fales & Son, administration building and one ward, $24, 1994, with two wards, $33,994; William Crane, administration building and one ward, $23,893, with two wards, $37,873; Mead, Mason & Co., administration building and one ward, $23,893, with two wards, $37,873; with two wards, $37,873; with two wards, $37,873; with two wards, $36,968; J. Hunt, administration building and one ward, $22,183, with two wards, $35,249.

It is reported that the contract will be awarded Mr. Hunt.

PLANS OF NEW BUILDINGS.

The new buildings of the Newton Hospital bave been designed by Kendall, Taylor and Stevens, conforming to the general scheme of the four new buildings planned by them for the same hospital two years ago. Like them, it is to be of brick with stone trimmings. It is to go up on practically the same spot—on an isolated hilt-top—as the old contactious ward, one end of which was recently burned, and the other end of which will be torn down. As frequently happens in such cases, the burned ward was always overcrowded, and its contagious patients had to be put in other departments. The new building is planned for fifty-two patients, almost double the capacity of the old building, and at a time of stress could easily accommodate more.

planned for fifty-two patients, almost double the capacity of the old building, and at a time of stress could easily accommodate more.

The contagious department includes three buildings, thirty feet apart, and unconnected save by open roofed passageways. Standing between two pavilions is the main, or executive building, two stories and a half high, with dormer windows on the roof. A short hall from the front door leads into a corridor extending the entire width of the house, and through doors on each side right through to the pavilions. On the front side of this corridor are parlor, office, pharmacy and laboratory; at the rear diving-room and kitchen On the second floor of the executive building are six chambers and a bathroom, and the third floor, which will be unfinished at first, is planned for five chambers and a bath, The two pavilions, sooth and south of the executive building, are identical. Each may be entered from the outside by the open passageway, or from the executive building leads in each of the pavilions to a certidor at right angles with it. At each ead of this corridor is a ward containing test beds. To give plenty of air and light. A containing room, special-dict kitchen, lavatories, bathroom, linen-room and suspect ward. of good things.

—The alarm from box 55, early Tuesday morning, for a fire in the tenement block owned by John Dolan, was extinguished after much difficulty in locating the many burning places. The fire was confined about the roof, where it started, and the fireman's axe was in constant use in making an opening to get water to the smouldering flames. The fire was discovered quickly by Officer Tainter, who rang in the alarm, and with assistance removed the furniture of Mrs. McFarland, the only tenant in the block, and the furniture and supplies of John Prendergast, who occupies the lower part as a barber shop. The damage was largely from water. The fire was the work of an Incondiary.

FLIES LIVE ABOUT TWO WEEKS.

[Harvey Sutherland in Ainslee's Magazine

"Owing to the natural diffidence of flies, not much is known of their family arrange-ments or how long they live after they get to be old enough to vote. It is estimated, though, that if papa and mamma of the early spring could hold out to attend a fami-ly reunion of their offspring held in the latter part of August, upwards of 2,000,000 of their own blood and kin would come to of their own blood and kin would come to the picnic, not counting maggots in arms. of their own blood and kin would come to the pienie, not counting maggots in arms. Fortunately for them, papa and mamma do not live much more than a fortnight. Even a fly's perseverance would be unequal to the task of keeping track of 2,000,000 of descendants. As Artemus Ward says "This is 2 mutch."
"Fortunately for us, files do not live much longer than a fortnight, for if they were long-lived and preserved their fecundity, man would soon be forced to look for some place where things were not quite so crowded and the real estate advertising columns would be full of. They have learned that 'it is estimated' acts on the same principle as a boy's 'over the left.' and authorizes them to tell with impunity the most jawdropping, eyebulging whoppers, causing the public to wag heads and cluck 'cuck! Look at that now! There's learning for you!

"There's a good dean of the 'it is estimated' about the life history of the fly for the reason that the beast is hard to rear. Other insects will live, move and have their being in a box with a gauze over it and let in the air and light. All they ask is board and lighted, stock with all the delicacies of the stable, and the garbage box, and the inmates incontinently turn up their toss and light of the proper questions, photographs for sale for their own benefit. Living In Porto Rico. A young teacher who has just reached home from Porto Rico tells us some interesting stories of the things which impressed her there. The turnishing of the rooms was one of these. Her interest in furnishings began as soon as she landed in San Juan and read the sign on the staircase ladding to the parlor. It read: "Please do not disturb the parlor furniture." The parlor furniture, when she came to see it was as funny as the notice. There was a rug in the centre of the room, and on this was of these require round, unpolstered one of those peculiar round upholstered seats usually associated with large steambeats around here, a circular affair with a circular back tapering up to what in a steambeat is usually a pole supporting an upper deck. This was right enough in itself, only suggesting some public place, but around the rug on which stool the circular seat were arranged a hollow square of easy chairs, the furniture which the proprietor requested the public to respect and refrain from moving. men in the state, notwithstanding his loca-tion, and he made his paper a great influ-ence for good. He was almost too extreme-ly partisan in his politics, but he had a vein of independence in him that often broke over the party traces, and he was a very able writer. In his term as Senator at the State House he won the respect of all by his ability and fearlessness, and he was often spoken of as a pro-unient candi-date for Congress. He was also very popu-lar at all the newspaper men's meetings, and he was generally chosen as the presid-ing officer of all the associations to which special session for September 5th. It is special apolitician as his worst enemies habitually represent him, yet he would not therefore be made a boss. A boss is not only a partisan politician, that is, one concerned with partisan politician, that is, one concerned with partisan political parties. Many politicians are not political machinists. In England, indeed, while nearly every public man is a partisan politicial machinists. In England, indeed, while nearly every public man is a partisan politicial machinists. In England, indeed, while nearly every public man is a partisan politicial machinists. In this country, Messrs. Reed, Edmunds, Blain, Bayard, Thurman, all partisan politicians, and none of them wholly ignorant of partisan political machinists, as was Mr. Tilden, for example. None of them could have properly managed his own campaign in an important popular election, as Tilden could and did manage it. No one of the men first mentioned was a boss, or could have been; their lack of training as political machinists forbate it. but, Tilden might be most the proposed and a tright the express teams are heard bringing huge trunks. The rush will not begin, of course, till next week, when every one will be unrying home to be ready for the opening from the great activity of the coal teams about the eity, and the rattle of coal teams about the eity, and the rattle of men first mentioned was a boss, or could have been; their lack of training as political machinists forbade it; but Tilden, though a most accomplished machists, yet was no boss." It is easy to recognize the real thing after this lucid explanation, as

Mr. Powers was then called upon and made one of his brilliant speeches, in which he neatly countered upon Fred H, Williams by showing that he never said anything about his discovery that the corrections are restricted the legi-that the corporations controlled the legis-lature while he was in the Senate, or tried to remedy the evil, and on his retirement from the senate he immediately accepted a retainer from a railroad corporation; that if all lawyers who had been employed by corporations should be deburred from nonwas no boss." It is easy to recognize the real thing after this lucid explanation, as the papers are giving examples of it daily, but the question is how to combat the evil. Bosses are no friends to civil service reform, for obvious reasons, and that is one reason why the reform is so stubbornly fought, for the enforcement of reform principles weakens their power. After civil service reform, says Judge Lowell, "the most effective method of weakening the boss is to separate as far as possible local elections from national. This will encourage independent voting in its best sense, that is, local voting, independent of really irrelevant national issues. The partisan voting truly reprehensible does not consist in voting for the party's candidate in elections where partisan principles are involved, but in voting for a candidate labeled with the party name is an election wholly unconcerned with partisan principle. Again, we should not only separate local from national elections, but should simplify elections of all kinds. The choice of a multitude of officers by direct popular vote may be practically democratic in a small community, where all the candidates are individually known to every Labor Day Excursion to Nova Scotla.

An excellent opportunity to visit Nova Scotla is afforded those who take advantage of the Yarmouth Steamship Company's Labor Day excursion. The speedy steel steamer Yarmouth of this line will leave Pier I, Lewis wharf, on a special trip Saturday at 5 p. m. reaching Yarmouth the following day. The return trip will be made Monday evening, reaching Boston Tuesday morning. The round trip rate is only $3. There are regular sailings of the Yarmouth line boats from Boston each week on Monday. Thesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 2 p. m. Reduced rates to all points now prevail.

candidates are individually known to every one; but in a large constituency the long ballot confuses the ordinary voter and so unduly strengthens the partisan machinery and helps the boss. At the last state election in Massachusetts each voter had from nine to twelve officers to choose, and at the last municipal election in Baston about twenty. The simplification of our elections is a reform whose importance has been much underestimated, for the boss thrives on an election so complicated that the voter must of necessity be guided in his choice by the machine." When the crowd outside the clubhouse insisted upon seeing and heāring the winner, he was helped out upon a window ledge by his friends and held there by the coattails and the legs. The crowd cheered him wildly. He was too confused to speak. They cheered him again. He threw out his hand in a gesture of helplessness and moved his lips in some inaudible mumble of apology for his inability to deliver a speech. They could not hear on account of the noise that they were themselves making, but they encouraged him with a generous applause. He saw his escape and proceeded to shake his head and work his lips in a fine frenzy of oratory, gesticulating cloquently and smiling his thanks. The noisy and good natured crowd cheered him to the ecno, and his friends drew his high legs his head and work his firends drew him to the ecno, and his friends drew him to the ecno, and his friends drew him to the ecno, and his friends drew paign club for Ward 22 was formed with great enthusiasm. After this a committee brought Mr. Powers into the hall accompanied by ex Senator Harwood of Newton, and the latter was introduced to the company and paid a high tribute to Mr. Powers. He said that while he was in the legislature Secretary Long and other able attorneys appeared before his committees to represent their clients, and Mr. Powers was one of these. But although he had long been a personal friend, he never asked him about the case or sought to induce him in any way, tusting solely to the merits of the case. Mr. Harwood said "we want to send a man to Congress like Samuel W. Why He Carries a Cane.

Why He Carries a Cane.
"You wonder why I always carry a cane except when I am carrying an umbrella," remarked a well known Philadelphian the other afternoon.
"Well, I don't mind telling you. It's all on account of umbrellas."
"Can't see the expection," raigined. "Can't see the connection," rejoined the friend to whom he was talking.

"Didn't suppose you could. But you will when I have explained. You lose an umbrella every once in awhile, don't you? Put It down somewhere and walk off and leave it?"

"Yes; I have had that happen to me frequently."
"Well, I used to, but not since I took to carrying a cane. An acquaintance in Chicago put me on to the scheme. Get a cane of some kind,' he said to me one day lead carry! Get a cane of some kind, he said to me one day, and carry it every day and every night that it doesn't rain. By that means you become so accustomed to having something in your hand you are lost without it. Then when a rainy day or evening comes and you are compelled to carry an umbrella about with you the benefit comes in. Say you have gone into a restaurant and when you come out the rain has stopped. You walk out into the street without your umbrella. Presto! has stopped. You walk out into the street without your umbrella. Presto! After you have taken perhaps a dozen steps you miss something. Your cane carrying hand is minus the burden it usually bears. Back go your thoughts to your umbrella and back go your steps to got it. Simple? Of course it is, but the simple things oftentimes prove the most valuable."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Four Legged Wenther Prophets

Four Legged Weather Prophets.
Though the tortoise is an excellent weather prophet, the fact is known to comparatively few people. Tortoise farmers on the African coast notice that even 24 hours before rain falls these curious animals prepare for it by seeking the convenient shelter of overhanging rocks. It may be a bright, clear, sunshiny morning, but the farmers believe implicitly in the tactics of the tortoise, who is seldom mistaken, for the downpour is certain to come for the downpour is certain to come within the time stated.

A pet tortoise would be a practical present to bestow on one's friends. This curious premonition of the approach of rain is shared by many other animals and birds and may be explained partially by the fact that while rain is forming the atmosphere is increasing in weight, but there may also be some need of moisture which makes them aware of its approach or some habits of life which make them thus sensitive. Cool and Methodical.

A lawyer who worthily bears a distinguished name occupies an old fashioned mansion on the edge of New York. His sister, who lives with him, tells a laughable story, which is reported in Harper's Round Table, illustrating his coolness and love of method.

Recently his sister tiptoed into his room some time after midnight and told him she thought burglars were in the house. The lawyer put on his dress-ing gown and went down stairs.

In the back hall he found a rough looking man trying to open a door that led into the back yard. The burglar had unlocked the door and was pulling at it with all his might. The lawyer, seeing the robber's predicament, called "It does not open that way, you idiot! It slides back!"

The Blue Pencil.

"This," said the man who was showing the visitors about the office of the metropolitan daily, "is the copy readers' room. It is the place where the matter sent in for publication is boiled down to the right dimensions."

"Doesn't that make it warm?" gig-gled one of the young women.
"No," he replied. "But the men who write the stuff get pretty hot over it sometimes."—Chicago Tribune.

His Advice.

"Is it hard to propose to a girl?" asked the novice in affairs of the heart.

"Sometimes it's a good deal harder not to propose," returned the man of worldly experience thoughtfully. "It's always well to be on your guard."

Real

Corkscrew Seed.

There are some seeds which "literally corkscrew themselves into the ground." The most remarkable instance is perhaps that of the Spina pennata, a beautiful south European grass. The actual seed is small, with a sharp point and stiff short hairs pointing backward. The top end of the seed is produced into a fine, twisted, corkscrewlike rod, which is followed by a plain cylindrical portion, ending in a long, delicate feather, the whole being more than a foot in length. Owing to this feather the seed falls to the earth point downward and sticks in the ground.

But even if the seed should settle on its side, damp, by acting on the hairs winds, elongating itself upward. Being covered, like the seed, with backward pointing hairs, it usually presses against some blade of grass or other obstacle, with the result that the seed is pressed into the ground.

On the spiral becoming dry again, it curls up, and the seed is not drawn out of the ground owing to its backward pointing hairs, but the spiral and the feather are easily drawn down. On the return of damp the spiral again unwinds and, acting as before, drives the seed still farther down until at last it is quite buried. is quite buried.

A Couple of Shocks.

"Where have you been, Mr Rocky?" demanded the boss.

"Oh, sir," replied Rocky mendaciously, "my landlady is a most excellent woman, and she has been so ill that I had to stay at home to nurse her."

This excuse went, and the boss turned away. The following day Rocky felt like he had sand in his head, and a headache as long as a rainy Sunday in the country developed. He staid at home, sending the excuse that his landlady was dead and he had to attend the funeral. Later in the day a woman entered the bookstore and inquired for Mr. Rocky.

"The reason I cam, here," she explained, "is because I am his landlady, and not having seen him for a week I plained, "is because I am his landlady, and not having seen him for a week I became uneasy and called to inquire about him."

"His landlady!" gasped the boss. "Why, woman, he's attending your funeral this very day and has been nursing you for a week."

It was a shock to the poor woman to find she was dead, but a shock of another sort struck Rocky when he came back to work. It was his funeral that time.—Louisville Times. time.-Louisville Times.

Distinctions In Being Kicked.
The Arabs, clever horsemen as they are, are quite as liable to accident as English grooms. But the Arab likes to be kicked by a thoroughbred norse and cannot endure to be put to any pain by an animal whose pedigree is at all defective. An English surgeon had been setting the broken leg of an Arab who complained more of the accident that had befallen him than was thought becoming in one of his tribe. This the surgeon remarked to him, and his answer was truly characteri-tic. The Juvene Eltot Blook, Elmwood St., Newton. NOT WORK, BUT WORRY.

It is not the work, but the worry, That drives all sleep away, As we toss and turn and wonder About the cares of the day. Do we think of the hand' hard labor Or the steps of the tired feet? Ah, not But we plan and ponder How to make both ends meet.

It is not the work, but the worry,
That makes the world grow old,
That numbers the years of its children
Ere half their story is told,
That weakens their faith in heaven
And the wisdom of God's great plan.
Ah, 'tis not the work, but the worry,
That breaks the heart of man!

His only chance of escape was to reach the mouth of a little creek which emptied liself into the Connecticut river just above the entrance of the latter into Long Island sound There he had a boat stationed, with two faithful attendants, hidden beneath the high banks of the creek.

Thus sat Hetty Marvin, the young daughter of Governor Griswold's cousin, when her hunted friend sprang past, her jute the read to escape his past her into the road to escape his past her into the road to escape his pursuers. Hetty was a timid child of about 12 years, yet thoughtful and wise beyond any of her elders. She was frightened by the headlong haste with which the governor rushed across the meadow. But she quickly comprehended the scene and instantly quieted her faithful Towser, who, though a friend of the family guest, thought it becoming to bark loudly at his hurried footsteps.

Isn't yoar name Hetty Marvin?" he asked pleasantly.

"Just so, Hetty; that was very true I hope he won't have to fly far. Where was he going to hide? You see I could help him if I knew his plans."

Now, Hetty was not a whit deceived by this smooth speech. But she was willing to tell as much of the truth as would consist with his safety, and she judged that her frankness would serve her kinsman better than her silence, so she answered her questioner candidly:

"My cousin said he was going down to the river where he had a boat and wanted me to tell the men that were

"Hetty." aga "Hetty," again began the smooth tongued Tory, "you are a nice child. Everybody knows you are a girl of truth. What did your cousin say when you told him you could not tell a falsehood?"

"He said he shouldn't think I'd betray him to his death."

"And you promised him that you wouldn't tell which way he went if you were killed for it?"

"Yes, sir."
"That was brave; and I suppose he thanked you for it and ran down the road as quickly as possible?"
"I promised not to tell where he

Now, the governor had arranged a signal with his boatmen that a white cloth by day or a light by night displayed from the attic window of his hiding place, which was just visible at the mouth of the river, should inform them if he were in trouble and put them on the alert to help him.

Meanwhile the victim lay safe and quiet where the shrewdness of the little cousin had hidden him until the time came for her return for supper. Then he bade her go as usual to her home, telling her to ask her mother to place the signal lamp as soon as it grew dark in the window for the boatmen and send him some supper, with his valise, which, in the hurry of his departure, he had left behind.

The signal recalled the boat, which after twilight had ventured in sight of the shore and the farmhouse, and the becoming to bark loudly at his hurried footsteps.

Her wise forethought arrested the governor's notice and suggested a scheme to clude her pursuers.

"Hetty," he said, "I am flying for my life, and unless I can reach my beat before I am overtaken I am a lost man. You see the road forks here. But you must tell those who are chasing me that I have gone up the road to catch the mall wagen, which will soon be along, you know. Then they will turn off the other way."

"Oh, cousin," said the little girl in an agony of distress, "I cannot tell a lie—indeed I cannot. Why did you tell which way you were going?"

"Hetty, child, surely you would not betray me to my death? Hark! they rare coming! I hear the click of their horses' feet. Oh, Hetty, tell them I have gone up the road instead of down, and heaven will bless you."

"Heaven never blesses those who speak falsely. But I will not tell them which way you go. even If they kill me. So run as quickly as possible."

"It's of no use. Unless I can deceive them I am a dead man."

"Cousin, cousin, hide under my welf cloth. They'd never think of looking here for you. Come, get down as quickly as you can, and I'll cover you and stand sprinkling my linen."

Angry that their expected prey had escaped from the house where they hoped to secure him, the six mounted Tories, headed by a British officer, dashed along the road in swift pursuit. At sight of the girl in the meadow the leader of the party paused.

"Child," he said sternly, "have you seen a man running hereabouts?"

"Yes, sir," replied Hetty, trembling and flushing.

"I'll have it out of her?" exclaimed the furious officer, with an oath.
"Let me speak to her." said his Tory guide. "I know the child, I believe.

He was a most worthy young man with a fondness for discussing socio logical and moral questions, and once started on his hobby he could scarcely be headed in any other direction. He had been quite devoted in his attention to one young woman for as much as six months, but she had been unable to six months, but sale had been unable to bring him to his senses, though she was willing to confess that she had tried repeatedly to do so. Of course she had done it in the delicate ways women have in those matters, but what he needed was a club.

It is a fact of comparatively recent discovery in chemical metallurgy that metals lose their vitality from repetitions of shocks and strains and may be said, as the expression is, to suffer from fatigue—that is, they may be worked till their melegates for the held. worked till their molecules fail to hold together.

As is familiarly known, bars of tin, rods of brass and wires of any metal will separate owing to fatigue if bent backward and forward continuously. But by careful experiments, however, the fact is made to appear that a rem-edy exists for this condition of metals if the overstrain does not border on rupture, and this remedy is very much like that which is applied in the case of an overworked human frameof an overworked human frame-

Street, Boston. What America has at Stake in China.

What America has at Make in China. In con firming the exact extent of America's interests which are now at stake in China, let us note more carefully the returns for 1899 in comparison with those of 1899. Our direct trade, not including Hong Kong, with China, was valued in 1889, in exact figures, at $19,819,540; in 1899 at $33, 112,708, or an increase of $13,293,168. In this same period it is well to observe that this same period it is well to observe that our exports to China increased far more rapidly than our imports from China, thus rapidly than our imports from China, thus tending to make the balance of trade in our favor. In 1889 our exports were less than three million dollars, in 1899 they amounted to fourteen and out of millions. To form a just estimate of our exports were commercial exchange with China, the trade of Hong Kong should be included. Although this is a British colony, it is essentially a part of China. Ten years ago we bought of, and sold to, China and Hong Kong products valued approximately at $25,000,000 clast year we nearly reached the $44,000,000 mark for the same field, or a remarkable increase of $18,000,000.—John Barrett, late U. S. Minister to Siam in Harper's Weekly.

The man who asks questions and in sists on their being answered is a fater than the street where the houses cost from $25,millar presence at all party meetings. He is known as the heckler. The speaker is not allowed to disregard him. If a statement is disputed, it is the orator's place to make it good. Any mem-gerous man to cross in debate, but the personal feeling against him was so bitter for years after his withdrawal from the ranks of the separatists that many an unhappy man was driven to tilt against his shield. It was delicious knew only by his first name, could by the restal his fees have been generous. He knew all its patrons by name, and his politeness and eagerness to render service many an unhappy man was driven to tilt against his shield. It was delicious watch Mr. Chamberlain's handling of the situation. He would pause when the interruption grew serious and give the heckler a chance to make himself well heard. "Now if you will allow me I will ask that gentleman to get

The heckler, now quite unnerved, would stammer out something, and Mr. Chamberlain, listening with a malicious smile, would quietly readjust prosperity. The house had actually his eyeglass and, turning to the author been bought by tips, for its owner's dience, fling out a reply—cool, cutting salary probably averaged about $15 a and decisive.—Sydney Brooks in Harweek.—New York Sun.

How Twain Introduced Hawley.

"As a conscientious Republican in his political preferences Mr. Clemens took an car preferences are cleared stook an active interest in the presidential campaign of 1880. While visiting in Elmira, N. "'General Hawley is a member of my church at Hartford and the author of Beautiful Snow." Maybe he will deny that. But I am only here to give him a character from his last place. As a pure citizen I respect him, as a per-sonal friend of years I have the warm-est regard for him, as a neighbor whose vegetable garden adjoins mine, why—why, I watch him. As the au-thor of "Beautiful Snow" he has added a new pang to winter. He is a square, true man in honest politics, and I must say he occupies a mighty lonesome po-sition. So broad, so bountiful is his character that he never turned a tramp empty handed from his door, but al-ways gave him a letter of introduction to me. Pure, honest, incorruptible, that is Joe Hawley. Such a man in politics is like a bottle of perfumery in a glue factory—it may moderate the stench, but it doesn't destroy it. I haven't said any more of him than I would say of myself. Ladies and gentlemen, this is General Hawley."

The practice of kissing the hands was instituted by the early Roman rulers as a mark of subjection as much as one of respect, and under the first Cæsars the custom was kept up, but only for a time. These worthies conceived the idea that the proper homage due to their exalted station called for less fa-miliar modes of obelsance, so the privi-lege of kissing the emperor's hand was reserved as a special mark of condescension or distinction for officers of high rank.

Roman fathers considered the practice of kissing of so delicate a nature that they never kissed their wives in the presence of their daughters. Then, too, only the nearest relatives were allowed to kiss their kindred of the gen-tler sex on the mouth, for in those days, as now, kissing was not a mere arbitrary sign, but it was the sponta-neous language of the official neous language of the affections, especially that of love.

Under the Romans if a lover kissed Under the Romans if a lover kissed his betrothed before marriage she in-herited half of his wordly goods in the event of his death before the marriage ceremony, and if she died her heritage descended to her nearest relatives.— Frank H. Vizetelly in Woman's Home

Chinese as Cooks.
Second only to the French are the Chinese when it comes to culinary skill, and with simple materials the and with simple materials they will contrive to put together a meal which would shame an ordinary American cook. In peasant families the wife or daughter does the cooking, but in all large establishments the cooks are in-variably men.

Innumerable are the illusions and legerdemain tricks of custom, but of all these perhaps the cleverest is her knack of persuading us that the miraculous by simple repetition ceases to be miraculous.—Carlyle.

000 up was surprised not long ago by seeing a man known to all New York-ers who patronize a well known res-taurant coming from a house several doors below him with an air of proprie tor's place to make it good. Any member of the audience may rise to his feet and shout out a contradiction whenever he feels like it, and by the custom of English public life the speaker is expected to make some reply on the spot.

Mr. Chamberlain was always a dandard contradiction with the custom of English public life the speaker is expected to make some reply on the spot.

A Practical Joke.

He was a wag and was passing a large draper's shop in Manchester. There, drawn up, were three or four vehicles, and among them was a closed brougham with the driver fast asleen on the box. Evidently the mistress was inside the shop. Without a word the wag stole quickly up and, opening the carriage door, carefully slammed it In an instant the straightened himself up and gazed up the street as if he had never seen any the street as it he had never seen any-thing more interesting to look at in his life. Then he stole a look over his shoulder and saw the wag standing, hat in hand, apparently conversing with some one inside the carriage.

"Thank you, yes. Good morning," said the practical joker and bowed himself gracefully away from the door, turning as he did so to look at the coachman and say, "Home!"

"Yes, sir! Tch! Get up!" and away want the brangham "home" went the brougham "home."

Where that "home" was, who the where that 'home' was, who the mistress of the carriage was or what she did or said when she came out of the shop or what the cachman did or said when he stopped at the door of "home" and found the carriage empty all that only the coachman and the lady know.-London Tit-Bits

A Clever Blind Man.
The New Orleans Times-Democrat tells of a blind man in a southern city who goes to the postoffice every day small, light riding which he holds slightly inclined to the which he holds slightly inclined to the front, with the tip just touching the pavement. His sense of touch has become so delicate that the whip is almost an artificial eye. When the point encounters anything, he makes a few swift passes over the surface and generally determines the exact character of the obstacle. It is done so quickly and defly as to attract no attention, and few passers have the least suspicion of the old man's infirmity. When he reaches the pastoffice he turns unhe reaches the postoffice, he turns un hesitatingly, mounts the middle stairs walks over to the lock boxes and with-out any feeling around thrusts a key into the right aperture.

A Charmed Life.

The scenery along the Kentucky river above and below Harrodsburg has been justly compared to the highlands of the Hudson. Towering cliffs hundreds of feet in height impress the beholder. In "Historical Sketches of Kentucky" an inside a second holder. In "Historical Sketches of Kentucky" an incident & stold of one of the highest of these.

Jotham Strout was hoeing corn in the bottom just opposite the ferry, when his attacking the state of the state of the second sta his attention was attracted by a rat-tling noise above his head. Looking up, he was staggered at seeing a man tumbling down the fearful precipice, now touching and grasping at a twig, now at a root, without being able to check himself. Finally, with a crashing of limbs, he landed in the top of a buckeye tree about 50 feet above the general level of the bottom.

Mr. Strout ran to the place with all haste, dreading to find a dead man and not doubting he would be terribly injured if alive, for the distance the man hand follow was 120 feet and fern the had fallen was 170 feet, and from the rock to the top of the tree where he lodged was 42 feet.

"That's what I'm trying to find out, my friend." was the answer. "It's my impression that I am alive, but rather Not a bone was broken, and despite a few bruises the man seemed to be as sound as before the terrible fail.

"That fellow bore a charmed life," was Mr. Strout's remark whenever he told the story.

Leighton and the Poor Student, Of Leighton's hearty, eager helpfulness many instances might be given. Here is one. After a certain prize day at the academy a student was passing through the first room on his way to the entrance. He looked the picture of delection and discontinuous dis the entrance. He looked the picture or dejection and disappointed wretchedness—poorly and shabbily dressed and slinking away as if he wished to pass out of the place unnoticed. Millais and Leighton, walking arm in arm, came along, pictures of prosperity.

Leighton caught sight of the poor, developer trader.

downcast student. Leaving Millais, he darted across the vestibule to him and, taking the student's arm, drew him back into the first room and made him sit down on the ottoman beside him. Putting his arm on the top of the otto man and resting his head on his hand, Leighton began to falk as he alone could talk, pouring forth volumes of earnest, rapid utterances, as if everything in the world depended on thing in the world depended on all words conveying what he wanted them to convey. He went on and on. The shabby figure gradually seemed to pull itself together, and at last when they both rose he seemed to have become another creature. Leighton shook hands with him, and the youth went on his way rejoicing.

It is certain that if other help than advice were needed it was given. But it was the extraordinary zest and vitality which Leighton put into his help which made it unlike any other. He fought every one's cause as others fight their own.—London Telegraph.

Two stories are attributed in The Railway Magazine to the witty bishop of Oxford. He was once talking to some boys in a school and said to them; "Now, my boys, I dare say you think it's a very fine thing to be a bishop. But I assure you I'm a very busy man. I have to go about all over my diocese, and I haven't time to study like you have. In fact, nearly all my study has to be confined to only one book. It begins with a 'B.' Do you know what it is?" "The Bible, sir; the Bible," shouted the boys all together. "No," replied the bishop, with a merry twinkle in his eye. "It's called 'Bradshaw!"

The other story is still better. On one occasion when he alighted from the train at Wheatley, the station for Cuddesden palace, an officious porter rushed up to him and asked, "Any articles in the van, my lord?" "Articles," said the bishop grimly. "Yes, 39 arti-cles." Off hurried the porter and wor-ried the guard almost out of his senses by the way he searched the van and detained the train. Presently he came back to the bishop with a crestfallen expression of countenance. "There are only seven, my lord." "Only seven? Ah, you're a Dissenter then, I should —Wednesday afternoon Mrs. John Cheffon of California street told the police of division 2 a story which has led them to believe she was victumized. A man, she said, representing to be a sewing machine agent, called at her home about noon that day, and, during the course of a business conversation, remarked that he could dispose of a sewing machine owned by her. As she possessed two, she was quite willing to part with one for a reasonable consideration. The man, she says, loaded the machine on his wagon and drove away. Now she would like to have the police find him, also the machine.

Why Franklin Did Not Write It,
"It has always been a curious puzzle
why Franklin, the man of ripe age, of commanding distinction and of approv commanding distinction and of approved literary skill, was not selected to write the Declaration instead of Thomas Jefferson, then only 33 years old and comparatively unknown," says John Gilmer Speed in The Saturday Evening Post. "It could not be that Franking Post. "It could not be that Franklin was passed by because he had done everything in his power to avert the war and reconcile the differences between the colonies and the mother country, for all wise men in the colonies did all that honor permitted in that direction until the die was cast.
No; it was not a fear of Franklin's earnestness in the cause of the colonies.
It was probably the fear of Franklin's humor.

"He was not only the greatest man "He was not only the greatest man of his time, but he was one of the greatest humorists of any time. And so his associates were possibly afraid that he would put a joke in the Decla-ration and passed him by and selected the lank young Virginian with the freckled face.

"As it was. Franklin did have his joke, for when the members of con-gress were about to sign the Declaration Hancock, whose earnestness is ex cressed in the bold signature which pressed in the bold signature which comes first, said in his own earnest way: 'We must be unanimous. There must be no pulling different ways. We must all hang together.'

"'Yes,' replied Franklin; 'we must hang together, or we shall be pretty sure to hang separately.'"

A Divinity Student Routed. "One day we were traveling across the plains in the caboose of a freight train," writes Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady of his experiences as "A Missionary In the Great West" in The Ladies' Home Journal. "A young divinity student was with us. He was one of the ambitious kind of divinity students who when they who wreck a parish or two when they begin and finally drift upon the eccle

He main-tained the affirmative—that the less a man knew and the less education he had the happier he was—with so much skill and adroitness and showed such mastery of logic and literature that he routed the poor boy—horse, foot and dragoons—so effectively that the young man rose and went out on the platform to hide his chagrin, leaving the sun posed tramp chuckling over his pipe in huge enjoyment at his easy victory. "The bishop had listened without say-ing a word, and when the student left ing a word, and when the student left he turned to the man and inquired sharply, 'What college do you come from, sir?' 'Yale!' answered the man without thinking. The unlucky admission destroyed the man's argument, for he was a living example of the fallacy of his own proposition."

Europe's City of Crime. The Italian city of Artena, situated about 40 miles from Rome, is known as the City of Crime. Ever since the six-teenth century every criminal who has escaped from prison or done his time has emigrated to Artena, and today practically every inhabitant is a criminal or the child of criminals. Every family takes the law into its own hands, and it is reported not a day passes without many murders being committed in the streets. The Italian subtaction have now some to look up. authorities have now come to look upon Artena as hopeless and remark that it is far better that criminals should kill criminals than that innocent persons should be their victims. It is said that on one occasion when 23 murders had been committed in that city in one day the fact was reported in one of the Italian papers in the following terms: "Since our last issue (24 hours before) there have been 23 sudden deaths in Artena." and no further notice of the Several residents of West Newton hill watched for some time Tuesday afternoon the operations of a young man who ap-peared to be opening letter boxes and de-stroying the contents. Becoming alarmed stroying the contents. Becoming alarmed at his suspicious behavior they notified police headquarters by telephone. An officer in citzens' clothes was detailed on the search and was not long in finding a young man who admitted having opened boxes. The young man's explanation, was not sufficient to convince the officer of his immocence and both went to police headquarters. Here it developed that the young man was a clerk from the West Newton station who had been sent out by Superine themdent Stary to change the cards bearing
